

COLUMBIA COLLEGE TODAY

March 1980

CCT polls the students on the draft and the presidency

Sovern is named University President

Marcus report on the arts and sciences

The Brethren as seen from below,
by Gerard E. Lynch '72

Richard Rodgers '23
(1902-1979)

Cross-Country's foray to Oxford, by Coach Pete Schuder

Plus Alumni, Faculty and Campus News, Letters, Books, Sports . . .

PHYLLIS KATZ

Letters

Jogging Memories

TO THE EDITOR:

I read with interest Lawrence Shainberg's "Going Nowhere Fast" and thought that he, T. Krishna Murphy, "Baba" Limbic, and your readers might like to know of early pioneering efforts in Slow Distance running conducted by me and several classmates at Columbia College in 1942.

World War II had terminated such options in Physical Training as golf, bowling, and tennis; instead, as part of our military preparedness, the administration hired several Swedish instructors in gymnastics. These pleasant but incredulous men, having seen our lack of conditioning, took stern measures to improve us. Among the measures was the following: each student would run a mile and be clocked; he would then run a mile each week thereafter and be clocked, to check his improvement.

Unfortunately, they let word of their plan get out, with almost predictable results. Limbic's theory of "ambition-centers" needs modification, for ambition can be made of stuff less than stern and still be ambition. Fear, as the poet says, contends with desire. Among ourselves, we agreed, in our sophomoric wit, to exploit the peculiar nature of Columbia's indoor track, which at that time ran through steam tunnels and behind walls, so that the runners could not always be observed. We would, we decided, run so slowly and establish such slow distance records that it would be a cinch to improve. I remember vividly that I ran my first mile, in a group of about eight, and that it took me twenty-two and a half minutes—and I did not finish last.

Murphy took 16 minutes per mile on his fifteen-mile run, and to reduce (increase) that time he required special equipment—"the no-stride belt." It is clear that Columbia men were tougher in our day and had greater endurance than do the members of the Robert Wilson brigade.

John Crossett '45
Professor of Classics
Cornell College
Mount Vernon, Iowa

TO THE EDITOR:

Lawrence Shainberg's "Going Nowhere Fast" [November '79 CCT] gave me pause. Drum tight all the way through, the progression of Zennish concepts doubles back on itself with the Neuro-wilsoners. Their seminal statement is "... the ultimate ambition of a damaged brain is to cure itself of brain damage." Everybody's reasoning makes sense until this statement. It sounds true, and is reassuring to his readers, hyperkinetic career people. But the ambitions don't equate. The desire to reduce the need to move is indeed an ambition, but of another order than the need to move itself. So saying that the "problem at its source" is "ambition" is simply taking advantage of the ambiguity in his use of the word.

Other than that, real cute, Shainberg.
Peter M. Basch '77
New York, N.Y.

No Solo Flight

TO THE EDITOR:

As an active and interested alumnus and one who has long been involved with intercollegiate athletics at Columbia, I am delighted to see attention given to sports in Columbia College Today and its companion publications.

I was somewhat taken aback, however, by a comment in the December, 1979 Alumni News Edition under the headline "Campbell Resigns as Football Coach." The assertion in question was "Coach Campbell's own spirit was so infectious that his presence on campus has been widely credited (emphasis added) for the remarkable turnaround in Columbia's athletic fortunes."

As most other members of the Columbia community who are interested in its athletic activities, I was pleased and excited when Bill Campbell accepted the football head coaching position six years ago. I remain an admirer of his and recognize the contributions he has made with regard to the athletes that he had coached. That he did not achieve success as measured in terms of wins and losses is unfortunate and ultimately led to his decision to resign. Let us, however, accept his performance realistically, and in the context of the football program, as I am certain he himself has done.

Little purpose can be served by acknowledging an absence of success in the arena within which he was charged while at the same time assigning him credit for the achievements of others. To do the latter is misleading at best and insulting to those coaches who have taken over moribund programs and reached heights that their sports at Columbia have never experienced. No one denies Bill Campbell's popularity, but the recent achievements of the swimming, soccer, cross-country, basketball and tennis teams are the result of a great deal of effort and intelligence on the part of dedicated coaches.

Let me cite the first three sports as examples. Don Galluzzi inherited a swimming program that was an embarrassment. Through incredibly long hours of devoted effort he established a recruiting system that has brought many talented swimmers to Columbia. This combined with his coaching abilities has turned a once anemic team into an Eastern powerhouse.

John Rennie began with a soccer team that could win only one game in three years. Through his intelligence and organization he recruited remarkably gifted athletes and in his last year at Columbia won the school's first Ivy League championship. Dieter Ficken inherited Rennie's athletes this season and quickly demonstrated his coaching and leadership skills in not only repeating as Ivy champs but reaching the NCAA final 4, an accomplishment rarely matched in Columbia's recent athletic history, by any sport.

Cross-Country's improvement began after Pete Schuder arrived at Columbia as an assistant coach. In his third year at the helm, his team won the Heptagonal Championship for the first time in the 41 years that the event has been con-

Volume 7, Number 1
March 1980

EDITOR: James C. Katz '72

MANAGING EDITOR: Phyllis T. Katz

STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER: Nick Romanenko '81

Published bi-monthly by the Columbia College Office of Alumni Affairs
and College Relations
DIRECTOR: William Oliver '64
for Alumni, Faculty, Parents and Friends of COLUMBIA COLLEGE, founded in 1754, the men's undergraduate liberal arts college of
COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

Address all editorial communications to:

100 Hamilton Hall
New York, N.Y. 10027
Telephone: (212) 280-5538

Second class postage paid at New York, N.Y. (USPS 990-180)

© 1980 Columbia College Today
All Rights Reserved

On the cover: Pro-draft and anti-draft students converge at Alma Mater on January 30. Photo by Phyllis Katz.

tested. That victory did not come easily; it required dogged recruiting with outstanding coaching as the top nine runners included six who were highly regarded high school performers plus three others who were Columbia walk-ons.

I am sorry to lose Bill Campbell, but let us keep his contributions in perspective, and not deify him at the expense of a crew of highly motivated and talented coaches who are relatively unknown outside of their respective sports.

Herman W. Kane '61
New York, N.Y.

News/Faculty

Sakharov Invited to Columbia

Nobel laureate Andrei Sakharov, abruptly exiled from Moscow by Soviet authorities in January, has been invited to join the Columbia University faculty as a visiting scholar in the physics department.

At a January 25 rally in John Jay lounge, called in support of the dissident scientist, University Provost Michael I. Sovern announced that the chairman of the physics department had asked the University to extend the invitation.

"We cannot know whether his capricious government will ever allow Sakharov to go, but we who live in freedom must try," Mr. Sovern said.

At last report, the University had received no reply from Dr. Sakharov.

Marcus Panel Reports

In a comprehensive 264-page study of the arts and sciences departments, released in December, a blue-ribbon faculty commission called for the University to pursue a program of "selective excellence," in which Columbia will "do only what it can do superlatively."

Analyzing the long-range needs of Columbia's departments of instruction in the humanities, social sciences and natural and mathematical sciences, the commission declared:

"Columbia is one of the most important universities in the world, but it cannot take its continued distinction for granted." Safeguarding Columbia's standards of excellence will require strong measures, the commission

NICK ROMANENKO

Michael I. Sovern Is Named 17th Columbia President

On January 7, Trustees chairman Arthur B. Krim '30 announced the appointment of Michael I. Sovern '53 as the successor to Dr. William J. McGill, who will step down after 10 years as Columbia's chief executive on June 30.

Mr. Sovern, the noted labor mediator and former Law School dean, was unanimously chosen by the Trustees following the recommendation of a presidential search committee. For the past year he has served as Columbia's Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost. "I have spent most of my life here," he said in an official statement. "I love Columbia and could not have asked for a better fate."

wrote. "It implies a major and, perhaps in its conscious manner, an unprecedented search for new talent."

The panel—comprised of 19 tenured professors chaired by Steven Marcus '48, Delacorte Professor in the Humanities—was appointed by President McGill and spent 18 months preparing its report. It recommended that Columbia:

- unify the 28 arts and sciences departments under a single academic leader with the rank of vice president.
- devote an increasing portion of its resources to the natural and mathematical sciences—including the addition of some 17 lines of tenure, and new or upgraded facilities for chemistry, physics and astronomy.
- establish a "continuing faculty body whose function is to attend to academic planning."
- create new interdepartmental bodies, such as a "federation" of European languages and literatures.

- involve senior faculty in elementary language courses.
- further exploit the advantages of its New York location by forging new relationships with other institutions.
- continue to improve its physical facilities and surroundings—Hamilton Hall was termed "under-maintained to the point of scandal."

The report, which many outsiders considered surprising in its candor, was frank about the shortcomings of several departments and critical of the University's administrative leadership "in the decades that preceded 1971." In the 1950's and 1960's, the panel observed, Columbia "expanded and diffused its programs beyond its means and beyond its ability to remain excellent everywhere." The commission projected the retirement, resignation or death of about 70 of the present 120 tenured professors in the humanities. It believes that 12 of these positions could be gradually eliminated, but proposed that savings in this area be allocated to assistant professorships.

Commission chairman Steven Marcus: An unprecedented search for new talent.

The report noted several environmental or "quality-of-life" problems affecting faculty morale, such as the high cost of schooling for faculty children and the "virtually moribund" condition of the Faculty House. Calling life on Morningside Heights "not commodious or particularly entertaining," the commission grumbled: "Shopping is terrible, decent restaurants few; there isn't a major bookstore, a quality movie house, or an art gallery in the neighborhood." Columbia was criticized for failing "to make the most of its nearly unique ability to control in part the quality of its own neighborhood"—a contention which community activists are certain to dispute; nonetheless, the report calls for Morningside Heights to aspire to "the attraction of Greenwich Village, the animation of the Latin Quarter, the ethnic excitement of a Chinatown."

President McGill, in a letter of thanks to Professor Marcus, noted that progress is already being made in several areas addressed by the commission report. These include: faculty pay raises averaging 11 percent next year; the recent appointment of three prominent scholars in economics and history; active plans for a new chemistry building; improvements in maintenance, library, laboratory and computer programs; reorganization of neighborhood real estate management; and plans for a major capital fund raising campaign.

Yale Campaign Director Named Alumni VP

Terry M. Holcombe, who was executive director of Yale University's successful $370-million capital fund drive, was named Columbia's Vice President for Development and Alumni Relations in October. He succeeded Howard A. Rusk, Jr., who resigned in March.

The Campaign for Yale raised $374 million over a five-year period, the largest such effort ever undertaken in higher education. Eighty percent of the funds raised came from Yale alumni.

Mr. Holcombe will head University-wide fund raising efforts at Columbia, which receives more than $35 million annually in contributions from alumni, foundations, corporations and others. In 1977-78, Columbia led the nation in the amount of bequests, and ranked third in total gifts to colleges and universities, with $49 million.

Mr. Holcombe, 37, graduated from Yale in 1964, and received an M.A. in international relations from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. Prior to joining the Yale campaign in 1975, he spent eight years with ACCION International, a non-profit corporation involved in Latin American development projects, and three years as vice president for college advancement at Whittier College in California.

News Bulletins

• Died: John Gorham Palfrey, 60, Dean of Columbia College from 1958 to 1962, in Boston on October 28, 1979. A Columbia law professor for 28 years, Dean Palfrey was a graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Law. A specialist in the legal and political aspects of nuclear energy, Mr. Palfrey was appointed to the Atomic Energy Commission in 1962 by President Kennedy, and served for four years. After his AEC term, he was a fellow of Harvard's Institute of Politics and later was a fellow of the Woodrow Wilson International Center and the Brookings Institution. Survivors include his wife, Clochette Roosevelt Palfrey, a son and a daughter.

John Gorham Palfrey
(1919-1979)

WILLIAM HUBBELL

• Appointed: International economists Jagdish Bhagwati and Padma Desai, who are husband and wife, each as Professor of Economics. The appointments represent a major step in the University's commitment to upgrade the economics department.

Professor Bhagwati, currently the Ford professor of economics at M.I.T., has written extensively on international trade and has edited the Journal of International Economics since 1971. Professor Desai, a specialist in Soviet economics, is currently teaching at Boston University and is a research associate at Harvard's Russian Research Center. She is an authority on economic policy and development in her native India, and on the role of women in economics.

• Appointed: Yosef Hayim Yerushalmi, 47, one of the world's foremost Jewish historians, was named Columbia's first Salo W. Baron Professor of Jewish History, Culture and Society and Director of the University's Center for Israel and Jewish Studies, effective July 1. Dr. Yerushalmi will leave Harvard University, where he holds the Safra professorship in Jewish history and Sephardic civilization and serves as chairman of the department of Near Eastern languages and civilizations.

The Salo W. Baron Professorship was established by the University last

BRADFORD BACHRACH

International economists: Professors Jagdish Bhagwati (left) and Padma Desai will join the Columbia faculty on July 1.

Incommunicado: Columbia's favorite ape, Nim Chimpsky, managed to acquire a 125-word sign-language vocabulary during a 5-year project headed by psychologist Herbert Terrace; however, Nim showed no evidence of "mastering the conversational, semantic, or syntactic organization of language," Dr. Terrace recently concluded.

April to honor the man who has been called "the dean of American Jewish scholars." Professor Baron taught for 33 years prior to his retirement in 1963.

- University cleared: A New York City Building Department board of inquiry has ruled that Columbia was not at fault in the tragic death of Barnard freshman Grace Gold, who was struck and killed on May 15 by a piece of masonry which became dislodged from a University-owned building at 601 West 115 Street.

- Final sale: The 11.6 acre Delafield Estate in Riverdale, N.Y., one of the city's last intact private estates, has been sold by the University for an undisclosed sum to a private developer, it was announced in November. The firm plans to build 33 single-family dwellings and to subdivide the 19th century mansion itself into apartment units.

Since it was bequeathed to Columbia in 1966 by the late Edward Delafield, the estate has been used only intermittently by Columbia. Former University President Grayson Kirk resided there for a time after 1968, and the biological sciences department used the estate's greenhouses. More recently, the estate housed Nim Chimpsky, who has since moved to Norman, Oklahoma. Mr. Chimpsky declined to comment on the sale.

Alumni

La Vía del Tren es Peligrosa

It's fast, noisy, filthy, and almost broke. And quite possibly the world's most complex and unruly transportation system.

But to Richard H. Ravitch '55, New York's Metropolitan Transit Authority is another in a series of monumental public management problems he has been called on to solve.

Mr. Ravitch, who was appointed part-time MTA chairman in October by Governor Hugh Carey, brings a strong track record to his new post. A 1958 Yale law graduate, he has had a successful career as a builder and is widely credited with having rescued the state's Urban Development Corporation from financial collapse in 1975, when he served as UDC chairman. The MTA, which runs New York's subways, buses, and commuter railroads, is in a similar predicament.

"The immediate problem is obviously the financial problem," Mr. Ravitch noted at the time of his appointment. Upon taking charge, he was immediately faced with a rebellious transit union at contract time, and the public's wish to save the 50¢ transit fare—both political issues of the highest order in the city.

Criticizing the MTA has become one of New York's favorite sports, but the system's new chief brings first-hand knowledge of what is inevitably called "the straphanger's plight."

"I take the subway at least twice a day," affirmed Mr. Ravitch. "I expect to use them a lot."

A Critical Vote

William W. Golub, Frank E. Karelsen III, and Ann Sulzberger Sand have been selected as candidates for a six-year term as Alumni Trustee of the University, in an election which will determine whether the alumni at large will continue to exercise a vote in the trustee selection process. Ballots will be mailed to the 133,731 University alumni in mid-March.

According to several alumni officials, the board of trustees has decided to end the expensive procedure of polling the alumni body unless this year's election

(continued on page 7)

A Shift to the Center?

Campus poll shows backing for Carter and draft registration, but misgivings about the draft itself

The draft, U.S. foreign policy, and the presidency—matters given a new urgency by the events of this winter—were the subject of Columbia College Today's latest survey of student opinion, conducted on January 31-February 1.

Our findings show that: 1) a majority favors draft registration—and equal liability for women in that event—but has pronounced misgivings about a peacetime draft; 2) compared to their student predecessors in 1976, today's undergraduates are far more inclined to support American military intervention abroad; 3) Jimmy Carter is the leading presidential candidate, although at this early stage, a large number of students are still making up their minds.

1) The Draft: While 57% of the respondents supported President Carter's proposal to reinstate selective service registration, any move to reinstate the draft itself was considered premature by a large majority. On this question—the draft itself—the breakdown was: 16% in favor, 14% undecided, 7% unalterably opposed, and 63% conditionally opposed, that is, unless certain conditions existed. Asked to indicate which circumstances would lead them to condone reinstatement of the draft, 76% of the conditionally opposed group specified "Only after a formal declaration of war;" 41% checked off "After a direct request for military assistance from a U.S. ally;" 40% would change their view if personally convinced "that the volunteer army is inadequate (in quantity or quality) to insure national security;" 30% "if provision were made for student and other deferments;" and 25% if personally convinced "that the draft would be administered equitably." (Percentages add to more than 100 because students were allowed to indicate as many circumstances as they felt they agreed with.) By a margin of almost 7-to-1, students felt that women, too, should be included in any draft registration.

2) U.S. foreign policy: As a rough test of opinion currents in this broad area, CCT repeated a question on military aid that we had included in a survey of Columbia students in 1976. This year's answers showed a markedly increased willingness to commit American aid to foreign nations; for example, the support levels for West Germany, Israel, and South Korea jumped 27, 18, and 19 percentage points, respectively.

3) The Presidency: From a list of presidential candidates, students were asked to check off three favorites; to mark those they considered "totally unacceptable;" and to indicate their first choice, if they had one. While 44% had no current first choice, the clear front-runners were Carter, Bush, Kennedy and Anderson. The most egregious candidates were judged to be Reagan, Connally and Dole.

* * *

The survey was based on a sample of 100 students, using an unscientific cluster sampling technique: they were accosted by interviewers at selected heavy-traffic locations on the south campus, such as Hamilton lobby, John Jay dining hall, and Butler Library. Only U.S. citizens enrolled in Columbia College were eligible to participate in the 2-page written survey. The poll took place on January 31-February 1, not long after the President's State-of-the-Union address and Sen.

The results:

Students favor draft registration . . .

Yes	57%
No	39
Undecided	4

An end to isolationism . . .

"If (country listed below) were attacked and requested U.S. military intervention, would you support this request?"

Country	Definitely or Probably YES	Definitely or Probably NO	Not sure
Canada	94%	5%	1%
West Germany	87	10	3
Japan	72	14	14
Israel	65	15	20
Egypt	58	15	27
Saudi Arabia	50	23	27
Pakistan	40	31	29
Yugoslavia	36	29	35
South Korea	31	38	31
Thailand	24	35	41

A landslide vote for including women in any draft registration . . .

Yes	74%
No	11
Undecided	15

. . . President Carter wins straw poll:

Candidate	Among 3 favorites	Totally Unacceptable
Carter (18)*	69%	9%
Bush (13)	54	16
Kennedy (9)	39	32
Anderson (8)	37	8
Brown (3)	22	35
Baker (1)	20	17
Ford (0)	15	27
Reagan (2)	14	60
Connally (1)	8	59
Crane (0)	4	30
Dole (0)	1	45
No current first choice (44)	—	—
Other (2)	—	—

*First choice votes in parentheses

Kennedy's Georgetown University speech opposing draft registration. On January 30, the Columbia campus was the scene of an anti-draft rally which attracted counter-demonstrations and led to a few scuffles and widespread news coverage. About 800 persons endured icy temperatures to attend the rally. A week later, the student council voted to conduct a poll on the issue; if the results differ markedly, CCT will report on the later poll in the next issue.

Alumni (continued)

returns exceed 17,500, roughly 13 percent of the electorate.

To become an Alumni Trustee, candidates pass through several procedural gates: ordinarily, candidates are first proposed by representatives of the several alumni associations comprising the nominating committee of the University Alumni Federation. After screening the proposed candidates, the committee places three names in nomination for the general election which decides the alumni trusteeship, subject to the board's final approval. Mrs. Sand was originally proposed by representatives of the School of Social Work alumni; Mr. Karelsen by the Federation's General Alumni Group; and Mr. Golub by the College Alumni Association and the School of Law Alumni Association, jointly.

William W. Golub '34, '37L is a senior partner in the law firm, Rosenman, Colin, Freund, Lewis and Cohen.

Frank E. Karelsen '47 is a 1950 graduate of Yale Law School and a partner in the law firm of Kurzman, Karelsen and Frank.

Ann Sulzberger Sand '54SW is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and a member of the Advisory Council of the School of Social Work.

All three candidates live in New York City.

Alumni Bulletins

• Political alternative: Biologist and author Barry Commoner '37, long known as a spokesman for environmentalism and other social causes, has founded the Citizens Party, a newly-registered group which, Dr. Commoner hopes, will be able to get on the ballot in 20 or 30 states during the 1980 elections. Launched last June, the Citizens Party has evoked enthusiastic response from thousands of people most of whom, Dr. Commoner told The New York Times, are "people frustrated with the failure of the two conventional parties to discuss real alternatives, to discuss a new approach on issues like productivity or renewable energy sources."

Jose A. Cabranes '61

• Trade places: Erwin A. Glikes '59, publisher of the trade book division of Harper & Row and president and publisher of its subsidiary, Basic Books, was named publisher of Simon & Schuster's trade-book division in November. A former assistant dean of student affairs at the College, Mr. Glikes began free-lance writing and editing for Basic Books while still at Columbia.

• Sworn in: Jose A. Cabranes '61, as U.S. District Court judge in New Haven, Connecticut. Mr. Cabranes, 39, is the first Puerto Rican-born federal justice to serve within the continental United States. A 1965 graduate of Yale Law School, Mr. Cabranes has been general counsel and director of government relations at Yale since 1975. He will step down from his chairmanship of the board of the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund, but will continue to teach a Yale seminar in the international law of human rights.

• Honored: The NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund paid tribute to its director-counsel Jack Greenberg '45 at a November 29 dinner at the Hotel Pierre in New York. The celebration marked Mr. Greenberg's 30th year of service to the fund, which he has directed since 1961. A 1948 graduate of Columbia Law School, Mr. Greenberg worked under Thurgood Marshall, now a justice of the Supreme Court, on the

Barry Commoner '37

Brown v. Board of Education suit which led to the Court's landmark ruling in 1954 barring racial segregation in the nation's public schools. An adjunct professor of law at Columbia, Mr. Greenberg is the author of two books, Judicial Process and Social Change and Race Relations and American Law, and is currently collaborating on a third, The Liberated Man's Guide to Fine Cooking.

• Mercy mission: Dr. Theodore C. M. Li '73, a senior resident at The New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, is coordinating a project for the center and the International Rescue Committee to aid Cambodian refugees in Thailand. Dr. Li is among the first of those volunteers who, on a rotating basis, will set up field hospitals, first-aid training courses, and possibly a public health program.

• Died: Richard Franko Goldman '30, educator, composer and conductor, in Baltimore on January 19, 1980. The son of Edwin Franko Goldman, founder of the world-famous Goldman Band, Richard Goldman succeeded his father as conductor in 1956 and served for 24 years. During that time, Mr. Goldman is credited with having elevated the status of band music in general by commissioning new works and reviving little-known compositions ranging from Berlioz to early American popular music. Thousands of New Yorkers became acquainted with the Goldman Band through its annual free concert series in the city's parks, sponsored by the Guggenheim Foundation. A former composition student of Nadia Boulanger in Paris, Mr. Goldman was prominent as a music educator at the Juilliard School from 1947-60, as well as at Princeton, Columbia and N.Y.U. He was also active as a composer, translator, librettist, collector, and critic, and wrote or edited several texts, notably Harmony in Western Music. Mr. Goldman was named director of the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore in 1968 and president the following year.

• Died: The Hon. Murray I. Gurfein '26, judge of the Second U.S. Court of Appeals, at 72, on December 16, 1979, in New York City. A former aide to Thomas E. Dewey and a prosecutor at Nuremberg, Judge Gurfein practiced law in New York before being appointed by President Nixon to the federal bench in 1971. Shortly thereafter, he ruled against the government's attempt to suppress The New York Times's publication of the Pentagon Papers, which, he wrote, "would [not] vitally affect the security of the nation, except in the general framework of embarrassment. A cantankerous press must be suffered by those in authority in order to preserve freedom of expression and the right of the people to know." Survivors include Judge Gurfein's widow, Eva Hadrass Gurfein, and two daughters.

• Honored: Raymond D. Mindlin '28, the James Kip Finch Emeritus Professor of Applied Science, was one of twenty Americans chosen to receive the National Medal of Science, awarded by President Carter in a White House ceremony on January 14.

Professor Mindlin is celebrated for his work in the mathematical theory of elasticity and its application to complex technological problems. The high-frequency quartz crystal oscillators used in fine watches are based on equations devised by Dr. Mindlin some thirty years ago. His many awards and honors include the Great Teacher Award of the Society of Older Graduates and a 1946 Presidential Medal of Merit, presented by President Harry Truman for work which aided the U.S. military effort in World War II. Dr. Mindlin retired from teaching in 1968 but continues to conduct research at his Ridgefield, Connecticut home.

Since the award was created by President Kennedy, seven Columbia scientists (including Professor Mindlin) have won the National Medal of Science: the late Theodosius Dobzhansky (1964), Leon Lederman (1965), Louis Hammett (1967), the late W. Maurice Ewing (1973), Erwin Chargaff (1974), and Chien-Shiung Wu (1975).

Guest Column:

The Brethren: As Seen From Below

How are we to judge those law clerks who breached the Supreme Court's confidentiality?

by Gerard E. Lynch '72

The publication in December of Bob Woodward and Scott Armstrong's much-publicized reportage, The Brethren: Inside the Supreme Court, has provoked fierce reactions from the legal community and others.

My perspective on The Brethren is different from that of most reviewers, because I've worked inside the Supreme Court—as law clerk to Justice Brennan three years ago. As such, I am acutely aware of the extent to which this book is based on the opinions and observations of the Court's law clerks. To me, therefore, evaluation of the book is important largely as it bears on a private moral concern: How are we to judge the actions of those law clerks who provided confidential information and documents to Messrs. Woodward and Armstrong? Since the authors did not persist when I declined to be interviewed, I have the luxury of hindsight in considering the question. Since the consequences of an action are clearly relevant to its moral status, hindsight is no small advantage.

PHYLIS KATZ

What, then, will be the impact of The Brethren? The conventional response of the legal establishment—that the book will undermine the stability and dignity of our Supreme Court—seems a bit overwrought. The book contains no shocking revelations. Instead, the Justices appear as human beings, working hard to arrive at well-reasoned and just solutions to complex and emotionally charged legal problems. Obviously, they do not always succeed; obviously, tempers occasionally flare; at times, personal relations strain over petty matters. (Imagine yourself locked up nine months a year, year after year, with the same eight strong-willed individuals, asked not only to debate but to resolve the legal issues raised by capital punishment, affirmative action, school integration, and abortion.)

No one who knows anything about the law, about the history of the Court, or about human relations could have expected anything very different. I don't believe that such knowledge has been or should be confined to an elite, or that the larger public has only now learned that the Justices do, after all, put on their robes one arm at a time.

Nor would I expect the operations of the Court to be much affected. The Justices will go on talking to their clerks, because they have to, and arguing with their colleagues, because that is their job. There may be some hard feelings among the Justices, but anyone who has sampled the hate mail that flows into the Court knows that whatever personal weaknesses may affect the Justices' work, egos too weak to withstand others' low opinions are not among them.

Gerard E. Lynch '72 served as law clerk to Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan, Jr. in 1976-77. Raised in Brooklyn, N.Y., Mr. Lynch was valedictorian of the Class of 1972, and graduated first in his class at Columbia Law in 1975. Currently an Assistant Professor of Law at Columbia, where he teaches both constitutional and criminal law, Mr. Lynch is planning a leave to serve as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in the Southern District of New York.

COURTESY, THE SUPREME COURT

I doubt, however, that this defense will be entirely welcome to the authors of The Brethren. The claim that their work will do lasting harm to the Supreme Court—by “demythologizing” a priesthood whose efficacy depends on an aura of saintly infallibility—cannot be wholly unwelcome to the authors and their sources, since it puts the argument on high ground, inflating the significance of their book as it exaggerates its threat. Moreover, it is a criticism journalists have a ready defense to, for they are accustomed to being told that the public is better off not knowing certain things, and to replying that “The truth shall set you free.” But if the sensational exposé turns out to be an almost unreadably quotidian, uncompromisingly detailed account of exactly who said what to whom about the first drafts of opinions, some of which even a law professor is hard put to recall, then the value of the book is lessened every bit as much as the harm it threatens.

This is not to say that The Brethren is without value. Trivial gossip is indeed the stuff of which the book is made, but the same relentless, painfully unstructured accumulation of detail that makes the book so dull ultimately redeems it from insignificance, by creating a remarkably accurate depiction of life at the Court. True, the Court must in the end be judged by the justice of its decisions, and not by the Justices' private reactions to pornographic cartoons. Still, The Brethren, by its attention to the details of the Court's daily operation, brings home in a particularly vivid way some important truths about the human dimensions of legal institutions, and the role of moral choice in the making and interpretation of the law. Not new truths, to be sure, or truths unobtainable elsewhere, but important truths nevertheless.

Trained to respect legal craft rather than moral leadership, too many clerks are smugly confident that they could do a better job than the Justices they serve.

But that, I am afraid, brings me back to the question I began with. Granted that The Brethren poses no threat to the nation, the Court, or the law; granted even that the benefits from its publication, though small, outweigh the inconveniences. Is that enough to justify breach of confidence, personal betrayal, and theft? I can only conclude that it is not. On this issue, the particular ethic of the legal profession seems to be in rough accord with more general ideas of personal morality.

Just as the journalist is accustomed to rejecting the idea that “the public is better off not knowing,” so is the lawyer accustomed to the uncomfortable position that “even if the public is unquestionably better off knowing, I may not reveal what is told to me in confidence.” At some level this may represent a strictly utilitarian judgment by society that, in the very long run, our institutions of justice will work more equitably if clients can have absolute assurance that what they tell their attorney will go no further. But whatever the basis for the obligation of confidentiality, it must be felt by the lawyer as a moral claim of great urgency. And in any given instance, the lawyer-client relationship is based on a simpler, more familiar moral relationship: the attorney promises her client confidentiality. She gives her word.

For most of us, such moral claims are not unconditional. If a law clerk observed a Justice engaging in plainly unethical conduct, one might well argue that the clerk would be justified, or even obligated, to break his word, or even to pilfer the document that proved his case, for the good of the nation. But the violation of a professional undertaking of trust is a significant moral decision requiring extraordinary justification. For me, providing a detailed account of what is already known in a general way is not sufficient justification; nor is puncturing the reputation of a Chief Justice believed by a law clerk—justly or not—to be vain and petty.

I have to conclude that, despite the real value of The Brethren, those clerks who served as its sources seriously misjudged the moral implications of their actions. And I am afraid I have a pretty good idea why they did.

The clue, readily apparent to the reader of The Brethren, is the intellectual arrogance of many of the law clerks. Selected on “merit,” trained as outstanding law students to respect legal craft rather than moral leadership, too many clerks are smugly confident that they could do a better job than the Justices they serve (and, apparently, are eager to prove it by showing a reporter what the boss wrote before they polished it). Some of them seem to have thought that revealing to the world that the Justices are not as bright as the editorial board of the Harvard Law Review is sufficiently important to justify breaching the trust that had been placed in them.

A careful reading of The Brethren against the background of how it came to be written may teach a very important lesson after all: that given the nature of the Supreme Court, rich experience in life, political and moral sensitivity, and strength of character are as important in a judge as intelligence and scholarship. Better the Brethren than the Best and the Brightest.

Bookshelf

Beyond Broadway by Julian Olney '22. Behind the scenes with the noted concert, lecture and theatrical producer, whose clients included Paul Robeson, Charles Laughton, and Sir Winston Churchill, (Dorrance & Co., $8.95).

Prefaces to the Experience of Literature and The Last Decade by Lionel Trilling '25. The seventh and eighth volumes of a planned twelve-volume uniform edition of the works of the late Columbia teacher and scholar. Prefaces reassembles Professor Trilling's essays from a 1967 anthology The Experience of Literature. The Last Decade, edited by Diana Trilling, is a collection of essays and reviews written from 1965 to 1975, (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, $12.95 and $9.95).

Devil Take Him by Ralph de Toledano '38. The author's nineteenth work; a fast-moving suspense novel with a supernatural twist. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, $11.95).

To tour midwest: Professor of English George Stade, author of Confessions of a Lady-Killer, will address members of the Cleveland and Detroit Columbia Alumni clubs in April.

Harvard Guide to Contemporary American Writing, edited by Daniel Hoffman '47. A comprehensive critical survey of post-war American fiction, poetry, drama and literary criticism. Contributors include Leo Braudy, Josephine Hendin, Nathan A. Scott, Jr., and Gerald Weales '49, (Harvard University Press, $18.50).

Cell Receptor Disorders by Theodore Melnechuk '48. An introduction to new biomedical research on abnormalities of the molecules that bind hormones and neurotransmitters; associated disorders include breast cancer, diabetes, obesity, and possibly schizophrenia, (Western Behavioral Sciences Institute, $10).

On Semantics by Uriel Weinreich '48, edited by William Labov and Beatrice S. Weinreich. The complete writings on semantics by the late educator and linguist, (University of Pennsylvania Press, $28.50).

Breaking Ranks by Norman Podhoretz '50. A political memoir, by the editor of Commentary magazine, (Harper & Row, $15).

The Sacred Hoop by Bill Broder '52. A fictional account of momentous events, from prehistorical North Africa to the American frontier, (Sierra Club Books, $12.95).

Vibrations, or, It Seemed Like A Good Idea At The Time, by Maxwell E. Siegel '54. A comic novel, by a former Jester editor, about a Connecticut business executive and widower who is startled to find himself falling in love with his daughter-in-law, (William Morrow, $7.95).

New Dimensions 8, edited by Robert Silverberg '56. The latest of a series of science fiction collections assembled by the award-winning writer, (Harper & Row, $9.95).

Free to be Muhammad Ali by Robert Lipsyte '57. For younger readers, a sensitive portrait of the world's favorite boxing champ, (Bantam, paper, $1.75).

The Catfish Man by Jerome Charyn '59. The author's 14th novel is "a conjured life"—set in the West Bronx in the 1940's, (Arbor House, $10).

The Food Connection: How the Things You Eat Affect the Way You Feel—And What You Can Do About It by Drs. David Sheinkin and Michael Schachter,

'61. A guide to detecting and combating one of the most common yet least recognized causes of malaise—the brain's sensitivity to certain foods, (Bobbs-Merrill, $10).

Mathematics: A Topical Approach, Courses I and II by Richard Klutch '62 and Douglas R. Bumby. An alternative to the algebra-geometry-algebra "sandwich" for average junior high level students, integrating several branches and theories of math, (Charles E. Merrill Publishing Co., Course I, $9.60; Course II, $9.90; teachers' guides, $3.90).

Confessions of Summer by Phillip Lopate '64. The author's first novel, about a summer love triangle in New York today, (Doubleday, $9.95).

The Art of Playing the Recorder by Daniel Waitzman '65. A mini-encyclopedia of recorder technique, by an award-winning performer, (AMS Press, Inc., $11 cloth, $4.95 paper).

Taking the Fifth by Mark Berger '66. An analysis of the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination focusing upon its historical evolution, policy objectives and application by the U.S. Supreme Court, (Lexington Books, D.C. Heath and Co., $23.95).

Milestone: Elizabeth McCaughey's biography of first Columbia president William Samuel Johnson became the five millionth volume to be acquired by the Columbia University Library.

The Legend of Job in the Middle Ages by Lawrence L. Besserman '67. A study of representations of Job in medieval literature, art, and theology, (Harvard University Press, $12.95).

Winners and Losers: Campaign Songs of the Critical Elections in American History by Peter Janovsky '68. A two volume recording of campaign songs for elections from 1800-1976, with extensive notes, background and lyrics, (Folkways Records, $8.98 ea.).

Psychological Development from Infancy: Image to Intention by Marc H. Bornstein '69 and William Kessen. A collection of essays on the growth of the young child as a perceiving, thinking, and feeling human being, (Lawrence Erlbaum Associates, $29.95).

Day One by David Lehman '70. A chapbook of new poetry. Illustrated by Stefanie Green, (Nobodaddy Press, 100 College Hill Rd., Clinton, N.Y. 13323, $2.50).

From Loyalist to Founding Father by Elizabeth P. McCaughey. The political odyssey of William Samuel Johnson (1727-1819), the first president of Columbia College, (Columbia University Press, $22.50).

The Gnostic Gospels by Elaine Pagels, Professor of Religion (Barnard). Examination of the long-suppressed texts of gnostic Christianity and their historical importance, (Random House, $10).

The Question of Palestine by Edward W. Said, Parr Professor of English and Comparative Literature. An impassioned discussion of Palestinian national aspirations, with detailed consideration of both historical and current aspects of the issue, (Times Books, $12.50).

Confessions of a Lady-Killer by George Stade, Professor of English. A Nabokovian murder story in which the protagonist, a manager of the Columbia bookstore, takes aim at the consciousness-raisers, (Norton, $10.95).

Renaissance Thought and Its Sources by Paul Oskar Kristeller, Frederick J. E. Woodbridge Professor Emeritus of Philosophy; edited by Michael Mooney, Associate Provost. A systematic account of major themes in philosophy, theology, science, and literature, by a preeminent intellectual historian of the Renaissance, (Columbia University Press, $25).

Richard Rodgers (1902-1979)

Richard Rodgers '23, the world renowned composer of "South Pacific," "Oklahoma!" and dozens of other works, died in New York on December 30 at the age of 77.

In his remarkable six decades in the American theater, Mr. Rodgers came to be regarded as one of the premier melodists of the 20th century. One evening shortly after his death, the theaters of Broadway dimmed their lights in tribute, an honor accorded only once before—to the late Oscar Hammerstein 2d '16, Mr. Rodgers's celebrated musical collaborator.

"Melody flowed out of him spontaneously," wrote the distinguished theater critic Brooks Atkinson in The New York Times. "He was in the delightful tradition of Kern, Offenbach, Johann Strauss, Lehar and Herbert. It was his intention to write music that would please ordinary people. To that extent, his ability as a man of the theater kept his genius in check. The beauty he created was solid and substantial."

Born in Manhattan in 1902, Richard Rodgers grew up near Mount Morris Park in Harlem (where, in 1970, he built a theater and recreation center). He attended Townsend Harris and Dewitt Clinton High Schools and was already an active songwriter in his teens; Mr. Rodgers entered Columbia in 1919, having been preceded at the College by his brother, the late Dr. Mortimer Rodgers '19. He was strongly influenced in that choice by two other College students who had dominated the Columbia musical stage in that era, Oscar Hammerstein 2d and Lorenz Hart '18.

The Rodgers and Hart Varsity Show of 1920, "Fly With Me," impressed a producer so much that the team was invited to write for the Broadway stage. The successful and prolific partnership of Rodgers and Hart lasted until 1942, and saw such Broadway triumphs as "Babes in Arms" and "Pal Joey," as well as permanent contributions to the

Richard Rodgers '23 (left) with his famed collaborator, Oscar Hammerstein 2d '16.

American songbook: "Thou Swell," "My Funny Valentine," "It Might as Well be Spring," "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered."

The failing health of Larry Hart caused Mr. Rodgers to seek the talents of his longtime friend, Oscar Hammerstein 2d: together they wrote "Oklahoma!" in 1943, now considered a turning point in the evolution of American musical theater. Over the next 16 years, the Rodgers and Hammerstein partnership yielded an extraordinary series of hit shows, including "Carousel," "South Pacific," "The King and I," "Flower Drum Song," and "The Sound of Music."

After Mr. Hammerstein's death in 1960, Mr. Rodgers continued to compose for the Broadway stage. Alone and with others, he created "No Strings," "Do I Hear a Waltz?" "Two by Two," "Rex," and, in 1979, "I Remember Mama," a musical version of a play he had produced in 1945. His compositions included music for television (the scores for "Victory at Sea," "Winston Churchill—the Valiant Years," and "Cinderella," with Oscar Hammerstein), a ballet, and a nightclub revue.

Highly interested in the development of the arts and theater in America, Mr. Rodgers at various times served as president and producing director of the Music Theater of Lincoln Center, a director of The American Theater Wing, the Philharmonic Symphony Society of New York, and the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, among other groups. Among numerous honors and tributes, Mr. Rodgers earned the Pulitzer Prize twice (for "Oklahoma!" and "South Pacific"), an Oscar (for "It Might as Well Be Spring"), and seven Tony Awards. In 1978, he was honored by President Carter at a White House reception; in the same year, Mr. Rodgers joined Artur Rubinstein, Marian Anderson, George Balanchine and Fred Astaire as the first recipients of the annual Kennedy Center Honors.

Mr. Rodgers enjoyed a long and fruitful relationship with Columbia University, although in his 1975 autobiography, Musical Stages, he expressed disappointment that his dream of establishing an arts center at Columbia had not generated more interest on the part of the University. Mr. Rodgers served as a trustee of Barnard College, and was a patron of the John Jay Associates of Columbia College. In 1961, he shared the Alexander Hamilton Medal, the highest honor of the College Alumni Association, with Mr. Hammerstein.

Whether composing before the lyrics were written, as he did with Lorenz Hart, or after, as he did with Oscar Hammerstein 2d, Richard Rodgers had the extraordinary ability to fashion unforgettable melodies of universal appeal. "People have an emotional need for melody, just as they need food or personal contact," he once wrote. The degree to which Richard Rodgers was able to fill that need may never be equalled. "There is," observed Brooks Atkinson, "a little of Rodgers stored away in the subconscious of every American."

Fund News

Fund Correction

The report from the East Campus Campaign published in the 28th Annual Fund Report omitted the names of an important group of college alumni and friends who contributed $204,804.78 in the 1978-79 year, bringing the annual total collected for the East Campus Campaign to $340,265.23. To these most generous individuals, the College Fund extends heartfelt gratitude:

Benjamin J. Bittenwieser '19
Mrs. Gertrude Schweitzer, Fr. '21
Lawrence A. Wien '25
William E. Petersen '27
Arthur B. Krim '30
Arthur V. Smith '31
Judson A. V. Hyatt '34
Daniel F. Crowley '36
Connie S. Maniatty '43
Mark N. Kaplan '51

28th Fund Tops Million

The 28th Columbia College Fund has exceeded $1 million in total gifts received as of December 31, 1979, more than twice the amount logged at the same time last year. 3,787 alumni, representing 13% of the total body, and 365 parents and friends have contributed $1,042,438 so far to the fund, which is scheduled to close on June 30th. Over $700,000 of that amount is in the form of vital general purpose gifts.

Fund staffers attribute the strong showing to an earlier start and better organization among staff and volunteers.

Fund Bulletins

• Little's legacy: Lou Little, the legendary Lion football coach who died at 85 last May, bequeathed the bulk of his $300,000 estate for scholarship aid to Columbia College students, it was announced in October. The funds were earmarked for the Lou Little Scholarship Fund, which was established in 1977 by Coach Little's former players at a Baker Field ceremony in his honor. Coach Little also left many personal items to Columbia including his correspondence with President Eisenhower, photos, plaques, and trophies.

Rodgers Revival

A revival of the 1920 Varsity Show, "Fly With Me," will be staged on campus by members of Columbia's School of the Arts Theatre Division in late April.

Originally produced in the Grand Ballroom of the Astor Hotel, "Fly With Me" was one of Rodgers and Hart's first collaborative efforts.

In agreement with the current producers that the original book "was not very good," Mr. Rodgers had approved major re-writing of the script. Since his death, however, the Theater Division has decided to stage a production that is as faithful as possible to the original, as the University's memorial tribute to Mr. Rodgers.

Other memorabilia, including the football used during the 1934 Rose Bowl game, have been loaned by Columbia to the national collegiate Hall of Fame in Kings Island, Ohio, to which Coach Little was elected in 1960.

• Cosmic generosity: The College Fund recently received a $2,500 general purpose gift from the Cosmos Soccer Club, presented in the name of its star midfielder, Franz Beckenbauer, and in recognition of Columbia's outstanding soccer program. In accordance with NCAA regulations, gifts to the College from professional sports organizations are earmarked for general scholarship purposes.

Razed, but not fazed

A charred envelope recently arrived at the College Fund office, bearing the return address of Edward M. Lawton '43. Blackened around the edges, the letter caught the immediate attention of Negash Abduraman, an international affairs student who is currently working as gift recorder for the Fund. He read us the class note on the flap:

"As you can see from the soot on this envelope," wrote Mr. Lawton, "we were burned out of our home in the early morning hours of Nov. 3, but we are going to rebuild on the same site. As usual, I am sending you a few hand-picked seniors from Williston Academy [where Mr. Lawton teaches] for the Class of '84."

The near-ashened envelope also contained Mr. Lawton's annual gift—in this case, some legal tinder for the College Fund.

Classified

SERVICES

HANS UTSCH & CO. Investment bankers helping small business concerns to raise capital, both publicly and privately. Peter Lerner '69, (212) 344-5350.

ENGLE INVESTMENT CO. An SBIC making equity-type loans to small business concerns. Peter Lerner '69, (212) 344-5350.

ARE YOU CONSIDERING the purchase of your first piece of artwork? The Art Collector's Service provides novices with professional consultation from simple referrals to a thoughtfully complete shopping service and comprehensive collection plan. Yale MFA '73. (203) 357-9221.

Having a party? A reception? Need a bartender? Call: COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY STUDENT BARTENDING AGENCY for professional, reliable service through the metropolitan area. (212) 280-2392.

WILLIAM BORDEN '60C, is presenting workshops nationwide in personal growth, holistic education, and the application of humanistic psychology to business. To arrange a workshop, write to him at 307 Princeton St., Grand Forks, ND 58201, or call (701) 775-5224.

HELP WANTED

ATTENTION, DOCTORS: An opportunity for you to return to summer camp. Camp Monroe is a coed children's camp, 1 hr. north of NYC. We are looking for a resident physician to complement 2 RN's for a period of 2-8 weeks. Family and children's accommodations available. If interested, please contact: Stanley Felsinger '66, (914) 782-8695 or write: Camp Monroe, Monroe, N.Y. 10950.

FOUNDED 1940 CAMP MONROE only 40 miles from New York City

MEETING THE NEEDS AND INTERESTS OF TODAY'S YOUTH IN A TRADITIONAL SETTING

Stanley Felsinger
Director

Private lake, olympic pool, 2 indoor gyms, over 50 land and water sports including boating, canoeing, kayaking, water skiing, fishing, hiking, backpacking and overnighing thru beautiful Orange County, tennis, go-karting, gymnastics, Universal Gym, basketball, soccer. Active, diverse program includes: arts & crafts, dramatics, camper operated Radio Station, nature, dance & trips. $1500 tuition (FULL SEASON ONLY) includes horseback riding on our private trails, laundry, linens, medical insurance and transportation from N.Y.C. to and from camp. Accredited AMERICAN CAMPING ASSOCIATION AND ASSOCIATION OF INDEPENDENT CAMPS. Co-ed C.I.T./Waiter program vacancies (11th Grade-Part-Fee)

Mature exp. staff: 2 RNs and M.D. on premises. Dietary laws. Now serving 3rd generation of campers on 200 beautiful acres. Always open for inspection • REQUEST FREE 100 PAGE YEARBOOK Stanley Felsinger-Owner/Director Camp Monroe, Monroe, NY 10950
Phones: (914) 782-8695; (212) 229-4599

Renting, selling, hiring, looking to buy or swap? Reach 36,000 interested families with a CCT Classified ad. 50¢ per word, 10-word minimum, with 10% discount for College students, alumni, faculty or parents. For larger display rates, write Columbia College Today, 100 Hamilton Hall, New York, N.Y. 10027, or call (212) 280-5538.

ORDER NOW

For Fly With Me

the Richard Rodgers Memorial April 22-26 at 8 pm; 25-26 at 2 p.m.
McMillin Theatre, 116th St. & Bway.

and join us for the N.Y. debut of Peking Man by Cao Yu, "China's great playwright" . . . Arthur Miller March 25-30 at 8 pm; 29-30 at 2 pm April 1-6 at 8 pm; 5-6 at 2 pm Horace Mann Theatre, 120th St. & Bway.

Presented by the Theater Arts Division of Columbia University

Peking Man	Fly With Me	Discounted Subscription Price for Both Shows
Reg. Price $8	Reg. Price $8	$15

Make Checks Payable to Columbia University and Mail to: Theatre Arts
605 E. Dodge Hall
Columbia University
New York, NY 10027

NO REFUNDS & NO EXCHANGES

	PEKING MAN	FLY WITH ME
DATE	M	M
1st CHOICE	E	E
DATE	M	M
2nd CHOICE	E	E

NO. OF FULL PRICE TICKETS:

PEKING MAN FLY WITH ME
+ × $8 = $

NO. OF SUBSCRIPTION SETS:

+ × $15 = $

MY TAX DEDUCTIBLE CONTRIBUTION TO COLUMBIA THEATRE ARTS = $

TOTAL REMITTANCE ENCLOSED $

For Best Selection—Return Coupon within 10 Days

NAME _____ () _____
ADDRESS _____
CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

(Please note mail orders received after March 11 will be held at the box office.)
Please enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.

Sports

New Football Coach

Robert J. Naso, an assistant football coach at Rutgers University for the past 21 years, has been named to succeed Bill Campbell '62 as Columbia's varsity football coach.

The appointment of Mr. Naso, who had served as the Scarlet Knights' defensive coordinator since 1967, was announced at a Low Library press conference on December 18th, and culminated an intensive search.

At the press conference, Mr. Naso indicated that the Lions' offense will switch from its veer formation to the multiple "I", "with lots of shifting and motion." On his own coaching style, he remarked: "I'm very thorough—complete and demanding on the field from a mental standpoint. I want the team's complete concentration. But I'm very sympathetic to other individual needs, both on and off the field."

Mr. Naso also stressed the need for "a year-round program at Columbia—we will recruit twelve months a year." He added, "I think Columbia has enough strength within its reputation in other areas that we can adequately recruit student athletes without a new stadium."

Sports Bulletins

• Fall honor roll: The Ivy League champion Columbia soccer team (14-4-1), which advanced to the NCAA final four this year, also paced Lion sports in post-season honors.

Sophomores Steve Charles and Barry Nix both earned first team All-America honors as well as placing on the all-region and All-Ivy first teams. (Charles, who set an all-time Columbia scoring record and was named Ivy League player of the year, has since withdrawn from the College to play professionally for his home town club in Sheffield, England.) Seniors Shahin Shayan and John McElaney also made first team All-Ivy, while Kurt Swanbeck and Giovanni Vitale drew honorable mention. Shayan was later named offensive MVP in the Soccer Senior Bowl in Tampa, Fla., and was drafted by the New York Apollo of the American Soccer League.

The football varsity (1-8) contributed two players to the All-Ivy first team: senior Mike Brown, the Lions' all-time interception leader, and junior offensive guard Sean Cannon. Defensive tackle Rico Josephs, a junior, made second team.

Top: Junior forward Kurt Mahoney is Lions' leading scorer in rebuilding year.

Bottom: Heavyweight Jay Craddock has been almost invincible, as Columbia earned at least a share of the Ivy League title. (Photos by Nick Romanenko, Columbia Daily Spectator.)

Sophomore Wally Collins, who led cross-country to its first Heptagonal championship, was also selected as All-Ivy.

• Mid-winter briefs: As CCT went to press, the varsity teams were concluding their seasons and priming for post-season competition . . . Varsity wrestling had already nailed down a share of its first Ivy championship since 1961, led by Jay Craddock and Dave Galdi . . . A freshman-dominated basketball team, after a quick start, got bogged down in a streak of close losses. Stand-outs included Kurt Mahoney and Richie

Gordon, a freshman starter out of Boys and Girls High in Brooklyn, where he was All-City last year . . . Don Galluzzi's swimmers enjoyed a victory over Princeton, their first in many years, and prepped for a high finish in the Easterns. Freshman Tony Corbiero was ranked #1 nationally in the 1000-yard freestyle.

• Top trainer: Mike Capetto, head athletic trainer at Columbia for the past six years, has received the Thomas Sheehan Award from the New York State Athletic Trainer's Association. The award is given annually to the individual "who has exemplified the qualities of athletic training and has done the most for the profession of sports medicine in the state."

'You chaps beat us at our own game'

Cross-country's adventures in the hills of Oxford

by Pete Schuder

The Columbia cross-country team stood on the bluff of Shotover Park, a beautiful country setting overlooking the Oxfordshire Valley. Or so we were told.

"Well, chaps, here it is," said Dominic Golding, the Oxford University cross country captain, indicating the course we would race over in three days. We had to take his word for it, as we peered through an eerie fog which prevented our seeing beyond ten feet. I expected to hear the Hound of the Baskervilles in the distance.

Joining the team for a "dry run" over the course, I began to run on a field that was rutted and sodden from a three-day rain. Then, without warning, we went sharply downhill. The path was extremely narrow and slippery, lined on both sides by thorny mulberry bushes. After two abrupt turns we lost sight of each other, but quickly employed a system of shouting through the fog to stay in contact. The shouts also came in handy as the somewhat solid ground gave way, first to sludge and then to quicksand. There was no such thing as ankle deep mud here; if your knees were still showing, you were on terra firma.

At the bottom of the hill we approached a plowed clearing which we hoped would allow our team to employ the pack running tactics that had been so successful in winning the Heptagonal Championship earlier in the month. How wrong we were.

A muddy field allows movement all right, but very little of that movement is forward. I had the sensation of running through a field of chocolate ice cream. My feet seemed to get heavier and heavier as I slid from side to side. Since we had only come about 1½ miles, I knew I couldn't be that tired yet. I looked down and saw two huge chunks of mud where my feet used to be: there was no sight of my running shoes. I didn't have to worry for long, because the next half-mile was pure swampland, a regular wading pool.

Now that my shoes were again visible, I was ready for the next challenge. Or was I? Up we went, and went, and went. We climbed so high that ice crystals began to form in our hair. Suddenly, we were back on the open field where we had started. At last, the finish line.

"For the actual race," explained Dominic, "we do this loop three times and finish at the other end of the field." Thanks, pal, just what we wanted to hear. If we don't drown the first time around, we get two more chances. Oh, to run on a golf course again, where the biggest puddle is around the ball washers.

Three days later, when we returned to Shotover for the formal competition, the fog had finally lifted and for the first time we actually saw Shotover Park.

It was beautiful. Castle-like farmhouses dotted the rich, green hills and valleys throughout the area. Off to our right was the valley we had blindly run through the previous Wednesday. Today, it looked peaceful and inviting, unlike earlier, when it was covered by that eerie, menacing fog.

The two teams lined up, the gun sounded, and the competition between England and the States was on. I decided the best job I could do as coach was to head straight for the swamp in case anyone got swallowed up.

Through the first loop of the course, the Oxford "lads" took a commanding lead. They seemed to fly across the meadow, hardly getting their feet muddy. The Columbia team seemed to watch in awe as it oozed along behind.

The second lap was better. Charles Miers, Wally Collins and Paul Loomie began to make inroads on the Oxford lead. As they moved up the valley, the Lions had even conquered the slippery terrain of the plowed fields.

The knees began to come up higher, with the stride becoming shorter to compensate for the poor footing. Paul Hoffman, Jim Hannon and Rick McNally also mastered the course and moved past the tiring Oxford squad. As it reached the top of the final hill, the Columbia team had gained total control of the race. One of the Oxford runners put it best after the competition. "Blimey, you chaps beat us at our own game."

The Columbia squad was just completing its warmdown as the sun began to set over Shotover Valley. A feeling of accomplishment radiated from the team. Slowly, the fog began to roll in again, blanketing the entire area. Far in the distance, I thought I could hear the howl of a hound.

By the Beautiful "C"

In response to many inquiries from our readers, CCT is pleased to offer 8x10 glossy prints, suitable for framing, of the photo which appeared on the back cover of the November, 1979 Columbia College Today.

To obtain your copy of the photograph by CCT staff photographer Nick Romanenko, send $3.50 to Columbia College Today, 100 Hamilton Hall, New York, N.Y. 10027. Additional prints, $2 extra. Postage and handling are included.

Pete Schuder is Columbia's varsity track and cross-country coach and an avid reader of Conan Doyle. A 1968 Rutgers graduate, with an M.A. from Teachers College, he runs 50-60 miles a week in Central Park.

NICK ROMANENKO/COLUMBIA DAILY SPECTATOR

The Amsterdam Gate

100 Hamilton Hall
New York, N.Y. 10027

Second class postage paid at New York, N.Y.

Alumni News Edition

May 1980

Notice

to the Members of the Columbia College Alumni Association

The ANNUAL MEETING for the election of OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS and such other business as may properly come before the meeting will be held Saturday, May 24, 1980 at 6 p.m. at Arden House, Harriman, New York

Business Before the Meeting:

The Nominating Committee proposes the following persons as Directors of the Columbia College Alumni Association for a term ending in 1982:

President:

Joseph B. Russell '49

Vice Presidents:

Lawrence H. Rubinstein '60 (1st Vice-President)

Robert J. Senkier '39 (Vice-President for the Annual Fund)

Albert Dwyer '42 (Vice-President for Student Affairs)

Albert Dwyer '42 (Vice-President for Student Affairs)

Eric D. Witkin '69 (Vice-President for Academic Affairs)

Marshall B. Front '58, Chicago (Vice-President for Recruiting)

Treasurer:

Gerald Modell '56

Secretary:

Michael A. Stone '62

As Directors for a 3-year term ending in 1983:

Robert Brown '55

Dean Gamons '65

Joseph B. Kelly, Jr. '43

Frank Lewis '51, Phoenix

Bruce H. Nagle '70, Pittsburgh

Clifford Ramsdell '39

Charles I. Silberman '70

Rye Town Hilton, Here We Come...

Join the fun at the gala reunion weekend for all five-year anniversary classes, May 31-June 1 at the Rye Town Hilton in New York's Westchester County. If your class year ends in "0" or "5" (i.e., 1960, 1975) you should have mailed in your reservation by now. If you haven't, there's still time — so don't put it off! Contact Rose Brooks, Columbia College Alumni Association, 100 Hamilton Hall, N.Y., N.Y. 10027 (212) 280-5537, for details.

Inside...

- Summer job listings
- Announcements
- Class Notes
- Features

Reservation Form and Proxy Ballot

Please use this form as your proxy vote, whether or not you choose to attend the Annual Meeting; sign and mail to: Columbia College Alumni Association, 100 Hamilton Hall, New York, N.Y. 10027. For further information, call (212) 280-5537.

Reservations

- ☐ Please reserve _____ places for me at the Annual Meeting, Dinner, and Reception dance. I have enclosed $20 per place.
- ☐ I cannot attend, but have signed the proxy ballot.

(name)

(address)

(city, state)

(zip code)

(Make checks payable to C.C.A.A.)

Proxy Vote

I wish this to be my proxy vote for the nominees for the board of directors, listed above:

(signature)

(class)

(date)

Class Notes

Class Correspondent:
Norman H. Angell '10
108 Dumbarton Road
Baltimore, Md. 21212

'00-10

Class Correspondent:
Sidney S. Bobbe
25 West 54th Street
New York, N.Y. 10019

'11-15

Russell V. Burkhard, class of 1913, reports that he is confined in a wheelchair, and that he lives in an H.U.D. complex in Annadale, Virginia, but still rejoices in the challenge he finds there in the interchange of varied and interesting viewpoints of his fellow tenants, of many ethnic backgrounds, as well as in their kindness to him.

Louis Bernstein, class of 1914, who lives in Hollywood, Florida, reports that he is already looking forward to his 70th reunion, after just having passed his 65th!

Class Correspondent needed — if you would like to serve, write or call:
Columbia College Today
100 Hamilton Hall
New York, N.Y. 10027

'16

Class Correspondent:
Charles Steiner
25 Sutton Place South
New York, N.Y. 10022

'17

Class Correspondent:
Ralph E. Pickett
20 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10011

'18

Donald F. Sealy, emeritus professor at Brooklyn Law School, from which he retired after forty-five years, also ceased his active practice of law at the same time. He has been enjoying life in Scarsdale, playing a bit of tennis once a week (indoors in bad weather) thus keeping his weight below what it was when he was released from the Navy. Wow! When the occasion warrants, he manages to get in some traveling, always with his wife. In addition to casting a reflective eye upon the two textbooks he wrote and the five or six books of cases that he edited, he can think back to the L.L.D. that was conferred upon him by Brooklyn Law School in April of 1972.

Those of you who remember that fine article in CCT last year by Dr. James Gutmann, Professor Emeritus of Philosophy at Columbia, may wonder what more a man like that can do in the service of his fellow-men. Add these two items and rest assured that an esteemed emeritus professor doesn't just suddenly stop all activities. Jim has been appointed Honorary Director of the University Seminars, having served as director for six years following the death of Frank Tannenbaum, who founded the Seminars and was their director for over twenty years. In addition, he has continued to represent the ACLU in the field of human rights before the United Nations Trusteeship Council — a service that he has been engaged in for many years. In this connection he travelled to Micronesia in 1972 when he was in his 75th year. It's nice to know that one of the big men of our class is still in there pitching! Incidentally, he has been one of the most frequent and liberal of all the contributors to the funds.

In the obituary column will be found the names of four more members of our class — Ross A. Abel, Charles S. Ascher, Sydney Hunter, and Byron E. Van Raalte. A few additional words about two of them are in order. Charles Ascher had written to your correspondent early in January, just before his last fatal illness, and we had been considering how best to cover the many facets of his varied career. The column in the Times did the job far better than we could have done it.

Byron Van Raalte continued his interest in Columbia affairs all his life, in addition to being one of the most generous contributors. His wife, Peggy, used a beautiful line in the last sentence of her letter of January, 1980: "Next to me, he loved Columbia College most." Can you put it more poignantly and concisely than that? He served the class in many ways — class treasurer among them — and we shall, indeed, miss this stalwart!

Class Correspondent:
Stanley Jacobs
1130 Park Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10028

'19

While it may not be news, it is nevertheless nice to report that I had pleasant telephone chats recently with S. Marshall ("Siggy") Kempner and Hubert Larson, both of whom live out in California. "Siggy" is in San Francisco and Hubert in Rancho Santa Fe. Here in New York I bumped into Percy Cowan on the street one day not long ago. Percy, I am happy to say, is doing fine.

I suppose that at our age, there is not much news of things like promotions, marriages, career changes and the like. But if we heard from more of our classmates about what is going on in their lives, we'd have much more to report. Let's hear from you, please!

Class Correspondent:
Arthur A. Snyder
16 Court Street, Rm. 2504
Brooklyn, N.Y. 11241

'20

The 60th Anniversary Reunion Committee, chaired by your Correspondent, met at Dick Conant's office and was attended, in addition to myself and Dick Conant, by Carl Misch and Jules Singer.

Plans were discussed for making our reunion at the Rye Town Hilton Hotel on May 31 and June 1 a memorable affair, and an all-out effort will be made to secure a large turnout.

Our classmates realize that a 60th reunion only comes once in a lifetime. Snyder reported that, based on reservations already received, and verbal promises also made, that, as of early February, about twenty of our classmates, with five wives, will definitely attend. These are mainly from the New York metropolitan area. It is believed that the big event will attract classmates from all over the U.S., including far-away California.

Our second vice-president, Dick Conant, is busy winding up his Oh-Jay Neugeboren...

When the bantamweight novelist turned on the juice... by William C. Greenburg '59

Steven Goldleaf's piece on Jerome Charyn and Jay Neugeboren in the December 1979 Columbia College Today triggered a memory.

I knew that Neugeboren had become a successful author. I read a recent short story of his in the Atlantic, although I have not read Parentheses, which Goldleaf tells us is an autobiographical treatment dealing, at least in part, with literary life and the absence of political activism at Columbia during the 50's. I wonder if there is mention in Parentheses of a brief moment in Neugeboren's sojourn at Columbia. A moment that is completely out of character with what Goldleaf tells us about Jay Neugeboren. Call it a footnote. That's an appropriate literary term of sorts. Perhaps it was a caper, a lark, an adventure. I wasn't sure then, in the fall of 1958. And I'm not sure now.

In the fall of 1957, I was playing guard on the 150-pound football team. It was a good club, and we were enjoying a pretty good season. Penny Vann, the Texas Tornado, was at quarterback. Dick Dorazio, the Western Pennsylvania bulldozer, was creating mayhem on the line. The wild bunch from the Islands: the Sakuda brothers, Ray Fujii, and Irving Chang. (I always wondered where he got Irving from.) The Confederate contingent: Hank Hankins and Mike Johns, the terrors of Little Rock, and the Carolina flash, Sam Tindall. Chet DiLallo, who came down the Hudson with the tide and got hung up on a rock off Baker Field. And others.

In the fall of 1957, Jay Neugeboren was a student in Andrew Chiappe's Shakespeare course. I occupied a seat next to Neugeboren. The distinction was considerable. He always had a cheerful hello before class started, punctuated with a broad, innocent, but a bit devilish grin. He appeared to me as fragile, physically. But perhaps that was because I resembled a Pit Bull. He seemed like a hell of a nice guy. There was one thing I was sure of and it was that he was smart as a whip. In our brief exchanges he would talk football, and it was obvious that he followed the progress of the 150's. Among the books, note pads and other paraphernalia of learning that he carted around with him was this thick sheaf of typewritten papers. One day I asked what the papers were. They were his novel. I thought that was great. I was quietly in awe of such an undertaking. To me it was like conquering Everest. He told me what it was about, and I have forgotten. I don't even know whether that first work was ever published. No matter.

During one of our before and after-class talks, Neugeboren announced to me, the captain of the 1958-150's, that he was coming out for the team next season. I told him he was nuts. And after ascertaining that he had never played organized football, I advised him that one just did not embark on a gridiron career in one's senior year in college. He was adamant and serious, and he flashed that damned grin.

We became pretty friendly, exchanging greetings on campus and every now and again stopping to shoot the bull. I didn't give much thought to his upcoming football career. As a matter of fact, I didn't give any thought to it. He went about his scholarly and literary pursuits, and I continued my four-year quest to locate Hamilton Hall.

The fall of 1958.

Upon returning to campus after the summer, I hit the subway and headed for Baker Field. We were suiting up and telling the usual lies about summer conquests when I noticed a scrawny figure in the doorway, clad only in gym shorts. You couldn't see his face because it was hidden by the huge pile of athletic gear he was carrying — pads, cleats, helmet and the rest — the necessary attire of the sport of football. It wasn't until the scrawny figure let go of his mountain of junk that I saw who it was. I had forgotten about Neugeboren's intention to play football, but there he was, flashing that damned grin. I didn't think he would last. I gave him a day. Two days at most.

He lasted more than a day or two. He lasted the whole season. He did more than just last.

The fall of 1958 was not a glorious season for the 150's. Neugeboren mercifully spent the first few games on the bench. Then, on one particularly dreary afternoon against whom I cannot remember, Coach Furey sent Neugeboren in at halfback. I knew for sure he was going to get killed. No more novels. No more essays, paragraphs, phrases, nothing, zilch. A halfback dive was called, which meant that the ball carrier was Neugeboren, and he was going to run right over my butt. I felt I had to do everything I could to keep every jersey of a different color from touching him. The ball was snapped, and I cleared out as many bodies as I could. I turned for an instant and didn't believe what I saw. A madman. A demon. A weightless wonder barreling through the line with the abandon of a whirling dervish. The scrawny kid, who had written a novel, hit the line as quickly and as tenaciously as any running back I had ever seen. Unhesitatingly, he hit again and again. And he got hit again and again, hard. He didn't play very much, but when he did, he ran for daylight with the best of them.

I can't explain this experience of Neugeboren's. Only he can. So why try?

But I can't help feeling that somewhere deep within that sensitive writer has always lurked a closet halfback. And for his brief moment in the fall of 1958, that halfback came out of the closet.

William C. Greenburg '59 is a freelance writer living in San Bernardino, California.

For D.C. Alumni Only...

The College's regional alumni program has been forging ahead this winter. A very big step forward will be taken this May when the College alumni in Washington D.C., the largest body of College alumni outside of New York City, will organize themselves into an active group.

A steering committee of about twenty alumni, co-chaired by Ed Leavy '64 and Herb Zaslove '43, has met twice since January and is now planning the arrangements for a June 10 luncheon to which all College alumni in Washington are invited. The featured speaker will be Associate Dean Michael Rosenthal, who will bring the alumni up to date on the College and answer questions. Information concerning the organization of the group and a questionnaire about possible club activities will be included in the invitation. It is asked that Washington alumni please return the questionnaire whether or not they are able to attend the luncheon.

Volume 7, Number 2

May 1980

EDITOR: James C. Katz '72

MANAGING EDITOR: Phyllis T. Katz

STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER: Nick Romanenko '81

DESIGN: Linda Kaytes Jostelwicz

Published bi-monthly by the Columbia College Office of Alumni Affairs and College Relations DIRECTOR: William Oliver '64 for Alumni, Faculty, Parents and Friends of COLUMBIA COLLEGE, founded in 1754, the men's undergraduate liberal arts college of COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY.

Address all editorial communications to:
100 Hamilton Hall
New York, N.Y. 10027
Telephone: (212) 280-5538

Second class postage paid at New York, N.Y. (USPS 590-180)

© 1980 Columbia College Today
All Rights Reserved

business affairs for his scheduled retirement on April 1st. An excerpt from his article, "The History of the Class of 1920," was published in the December 1979 Alumni News Edition, and contained many nostalgic incidents of our freshman and sophomore days at the College in 1916 and 1917.

On November 18, 1979, Harry Gold-man, together with your correspondent and his wife, participated in a phonathon at The New York Times' offices and phoned classmates all over the country for the College Fund and also for our 60th Anniversary Reunion.

We phoned Hastings Dietrich in Norfolk, Va., who has been acting as nurse for his dear wife Dorothy, who we wish has a prompt recovery. Also Milton Turk, in Tucson, Arizona; and Sidney Seltzer, in South Palm Beach, Fla., who is coming to New York on June 15th and who needs a little persuasion to come north for our 60th reunion. Try and make it, Sid! Also, Joseph Kaufman in Washington, D.C., who has retired as an Administrative Law Judge for the federal government. Joe has diabetes and will try to come to our 60th but cannot eat everything.

Bill Matthews in Florida writes: "Sorry the 1500 mile distance prevents my attendance at our 59th reunion. I hope to make the 60th. My very best regards to each of my attendant classmates."

Lawrence L. Levy of N.Y.C. writes that he is preparing a brief note for an anniversary book, as requested. He is still practicing law. We hope and trust that each of our classmates, whether able to come to our 60th reunion or not, will forward his biographical sheet to your Class Correspondent, letting his brethren in the class know of his current activities and those nostalgic reminiscences of those good old days when we were students.

Dr. Harold A. Abramson is still in the practice of medicine, and is the director of psychiatric research at the South Oaks Foundation, Amityville, N.Y.

Members of the Class of 1920 are urged to send in their reservations and check deposits for our 60th Reunion to Rose Brooks at 100 Hamilton Hall, New York, N.Y. 10027.

Class Correspondent:
Nicholas M. McKnight
The Cupola
W100 Ridgewood Avenue
Paramus, N.J. 07652

Class Correspondent:
George G. Shiya
One World Trade Center, Suite 1345
New York, N.Y. 10048

Charles M. Brinckerhoff, retired chairman of the board, chief executive officer and chairman of the executive committee of the Anaconda Company, was named the 1979 recipient of the Hoover Medal of the American Institute of Mining Engineers. Founded in 1929, the award was instituted to commemorate the civic and humanitarian achievements of Herbert Hoover, with the first award presented to him in 1930. Charles received this coveted honor at ceremonies during the Institute's 109 annual meeting, held in Las Vegas.

Charley, as we knew him at the Delta Chi Fraternity House, then on 113th Street, was one of Carl Mermer's leading track men in 1922. We then voted him the most likely member of the Chapter to succeed. We were supported in this view by the fact that when he received the degree of Metallurgical Engineer from Columbia, he was the first recipient of the George Vincent Wendell Award for outstanding "character, scholarship and service."

Among the other awards he has received are the Order of Merit of the Government of Chile, the Distinguished Achievement Award of the Holland Society of New York, and an honorary degree of Doctor of Science from the University of Arizona. Charles and his wife are donors of an international fellows program — the Charles and Florence Brinckerhoff Scholarship.

Rexford Guy Tugwell: An Appreciation

by Leon H. Keyserling '28

[Editor's note: Rexford G. Tugwell — former professor of economics at Columbia, member of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "Brains Trust," and influential economist and historian — died last summer at the age of 88. Among Professor Tugwell's students at the College in the 1920's was Leon H. Keyserling, a young man from Charleston, South Carolina who went on to become a leading economist in his own right as Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers to President Harry S. Truman from 1950-53. Dr. Keyserling, who is now president of the Conference on Economic Progress in Washington, D.C., wrote this appreciation of his late teacher last fall.]

Entering Columbia as a freshman in 1924, I signed up for the first-year course in economics, but was told by the instructor that it was only open to sophomores. So I climbed to the 6th floor of Hamilton and walked unannounced into the office of Professor Rexford G. Tugwell. He asked only how old I was, said that "a man who is 16 years old can do anything in life he wants to," and permitted me to take the course. In this first moment, Rex Tugwell conveyed to me his faith in the young and the importance of their making up their minds about what they wanted to do in life.

His emphasis upon economics as an instrument for improving the well-being of people, rather than as an abstract or theoretical discipline, was almost unique in classrooms at that time, and would be unusual even if he were teaching today. The main text was one of Tugwell's books, entitled American Economic Life and the Means of its Improvement, a shining example of how economics should be taught. All the young men who sat around the table with him for two hours twice a week realized that they were enjoying something very special.

For my own part, although I gained much from other teachers I was close to — such as Harry J. Carman (later Dean), Arthur W. MacMahon '12 (later president of the American Political Science Association), philosophers Mortimer Adler '23 and Richard McKeon '20, and English teacher Raymond "Buck" Weaver — I was more inspired by Rex Tugwell than by any of my other mentors at Columbia, and more activated toward selection of public-service economics as my life work during the past 46 years.

Tugwell's inclinations were also illustrated by his interest in the student as a citizen rather than as a potential specialist. It was the custom then, as it still is, to leave the teaching of undergraduate economics largely in the hands of young instructors earning their way to a Ph.D., without these undergraduates getting to know or be taught by the economics luminaries in the graduate schools. But Tugwell believed that the economic thinking of the citizens at large was even more important than what the specialist thought; unfortunately, his insistence that some of the luminaries should teach in the College did not meet with the approval of the powers that were. This is one of many reasons why, even today, undergraduate economics courses often alienate or discourage students. None appreciated this more than Tugwell in his time.

Tugwell gave much to Columbia, not only as a teacher, but as a thinker about teaching. A very few years before I entered the College, he was one of the leading movers in the establishment of the course in Contemporary Civilization, required of freshmen — a course which on the average probably added more to the "education" of the undergraduate than any other single course at Columbia, and which gave impetus to the initiation of similar courses throughout the United States.

Rex Tugwell was far more than a member of the original "Brains Trust"

(about which he wrote a fascinating book). In the official positions he held during the early years of the New Deal, as Under Secretary of Agriculture and head of the Resettlement Administration, he displayed a creative initiative which still influences farm and land policies and planned suburban communities. And he would have accomplished far more, had he not attracted the usual opposition to the innovator. He also became a "whipping boy" because of his advocacy of improvements in the Pure Food and Drug Act; indeed, whenever Tugwell was embroiled in policy conflict within the administration, he was always on the side of those who needed help most. Some of the attacks upon him foreshadowed the McCarthy era: one of the shabbiest spectacles I have ever witnessed in Washington was his "cross examination" by Senator Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina prior to confirmation as Under Secretary of Agriculture. Tugwell bore this inquisition with his ingrained equanimity, although he was not at his best in this kind of burlesque.

But Tugwell's work in his two official posts was far less significant than his influence upon thought and policy throughout the Roosevelt administration. Without being a radical, he was far ahead of his time. In view of his emphasis upon looking at the whole picture and preparing for the future, our national policy today is better off to the extent, although inadequate, that his views were put into practice.

After leaving Washington, Tugwell rendered conspicuous service as head of the New York City Planning Commission. Later, during his years as Governor of Puerto Rico, he was a wonderful force in the development of a country whose problems he described in an excellent book, The Stricken Land. His prime protege was Luis Munoz Marin, his immediate successor as Governor.

A prolific writer until his 87th year, Tugwell produced more than a dozen major books. Among the most important of these was The Industrial Discipline, an examination of how government and business could join forces to overcome the Great Depression and establish a strong and just economy under freedom. There was also The Democratic Roosevelt, which persons so qualified to judge as Dorothy and Sam Rosenman '15 (he being perhaps FDR's most important adviser in the long run) told me was the best of all biographies of the most important President of this century.

Still another among his seminal projects was the 1934 book, Redirecting Education, of which Tugwell and I were co-editors. Contributors included Jacques Barzun '27 (later Columbia Provost and then University Professor), Charles W. Cole (later president of Amherst College and an American ambassador), and Joseph McGoldrick '22 (later comptroller of New York City).

After a number of years at the University of Chicago, Rex Tugwell became a resident scholar at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, which provided a congenial setting for his study and writing, by then more in the political science field than in economics. Thus, he demonstrated the versatility of his gifts. He seemed drawn irresistibly to studies of the Presidency, because he had known it so well, and because the Presidency has the greatest single bearing upon what happens to the America he loved.

Columbia men and women of all times may learn much by looking into some of Tugwell's permanently valuable books, the imperishable monument to the man. And they may take pride in the achievements of Rexford Tugwell as a teacher throughout his life, and as one so intelligently devoted to the public service whether inside or outside the government.

S. W. Antoville reports that when he left the College at the end of his junior year, he took a summer job with the U.S. Plywood Company and remained there for 45 years. He retired as chairman of the board and served another 10 years thereon before moving to Laguna Hills in Southern California.

Alvin P. Meyers was elected president of the Beverly Hills Charitable Foundation in October. He is now engaged in writing the history of the Nixon-Douglas 1950 Senatorial campaign for the Bancroft Library of the University of California at Berkeley.

Class Correspondent
Joseph P. Brennan
65 Central Park West
New York, N.Y. 10023

Class Correspondent:
Joseph W. Spiselman
873 East 26th Street
Brooklyn, N.Y. 11210

On January 21, 1980, Class President Al Robison hosted a luncheon for class officers and past presidents at the Yale Club to continue our activities for this year and the coming years. Present, in addition to Al, were vice-presidents Ed Farlow and Dave Cort; treasurer George Maedel; secretary Joe Spiselman; past presidents "Watty" Watkins, and George Jaffin, and guest Rose Brooks. Plans for the Dean's Day private luncheon were made and a separate mailing will be sent out. By this printing it is probably old news. Our treasurer reported some money in the class account and the class is solvent. Plans for the Annual Dinner (our 61st since our Frosh Dinner) were formalized. The class will be the guests of the Robisons at their home in Teaneck, N.J. on May 3, 1980. Classmates will be notified in the Dean's Day letter.

A proposal was made that the class make a commitment to the "Campaign to Assure the Quality of Life" at Columbia University through construction and rehabilitation on the East Campus. Specifically, the proposal was for a pledge of $250,000 to be used preferably towards Hartley Hall and Livingston Hall rehabilitation, with the sum to be raised by the time of our 60th reunion. It was so moved, seconded and unanimously passed. The class now has a real goal to meet! More on this at the Annual Dinner on May 3rd, so please come!

Rouel Casanjan was appointed adjunct professor of electrical engineering at Polytechnic Institute of New York and cited for authoring two textbooks and contributions to periodicals. He keenly recalls his days at Columbia, both the good and the bad, and relishes the memories.

Mort (Dutch) Groothuis and Josephine have just returned from another freighter cruise to South America's west coast. When they sailed, this writer and wife Florence visited them on board to find them well and exuberant. Dutch is well now; a shoulder injury kept him from our 55th; and Dr. Sid Bernstein attended him. Believe it or not, the Groothuis's were already planning another trip!

Spear Knebel lives in Canaan, N.Y. and is retired from the ministry and from the N.Y.S. Employment commission. He now helps operations at a New Jersey airport.

Dick Fairbanks wrote a few months ago from Deerfield Beach, Fla., that he and Amby Day and their wives are often together when Amby is in Florida. They also continue to see Bill Dillingham's widow during the winter. Dick and his wife travel to Montana to be with their children. The indestructible Dick has gone through major ailments, but is now swimming, golfing and boating. Maybe Dave Cort could re-do the Tom Swift series with Dick!

Bob Cortell wrote from California that he suffered a stroke a year ago, but is improving gradually and is now walking. He is retired.

Sam Schnierson is still active as Ac-

'23

'24

'21

'22

Class Notes

ting Chief of Medicine at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Montrose, N.Y.

Dave Ackermann sent greetings to the meeting above; and at that same meeting we were told that Syd Weinstein in Miami is ailing. Get well soon, Syd!

Bill Koppers and wife Serena had their photos on the front page of the September, 1979 CCT Alumni News Edition. Bill asked me to get some copies of the photo and in turn I asked managing editor Phyllis Katz for help. She sent Bill copies and spoke with him, and in a subsequent memo to me said — "He is a marvelous man, and I was happy to do him a favor." Typical reaction to Bill, wasn't it?

Also in that issue, a photo of Ted Garfield and wife Terry was captioned as Class '34. We don't begrudge his being made 10 years younger, but we don't want to lose our past president from our class of 1924!

Hamill Kenny wrote quite a while ago from Annapolis that he was readying a book explaining Maryland Indian place names. How about letting us know if it was finished!

Bill Offenhauser, now that the lid is off many government secrets, can justly brag about some of his work on proximity fuses and other electronic devices.

Pete Di Brienza lost his battle with osteoarthritis and had to give up his practice of medicine completely. He also had a coronary, but it did not keep him from attending his 50th reunion at P&S last year. He sent regards from Joe Fries.

Lee Perry is still active as an architect and lives in New Rochelle, N.Y.

Fred Hnat wrote a nostalgic letter on his college days and the classmates he knew. He is looking forward to this year's annual dinner. He particularly spoke of Fred Smith, who visited with him on several occasions in recent years. It is a sad note — Fred Smith died shortly after Fred Hnat wrote that letter.

And on that sorrowful note, the loss of these classmates must be recorded: Max Saville, Ralph Trisman, and Joseph Rebholz.

complex on the East Campus. (The Class has set as the goal of its 55th Anniversary gift the collection of at least $50,000 toward the completion of one of the two seminar rooms in the complex.) Of some 670 new beds in the new dorm, 500 will be reserved for College students. And, the Dean assured us, the campaign will not end until all the dorms have been modernized.

Before the evening ended those present were assured that they would receive full details of the activities involved in our 55th Anniversary celebration and the goals which have been set for individual and class gifts to Columbia.

Class Correspondent:
Edward S. Lynch
30 Bedford Road
Pleasantville, N.Y. 10570

Our last column ended with "Classmates, please write!" Classmate Rev. Fred Meyer's warm and interesting reply herewith:

"Dear Ed Lynch: Yesterday's mail brought the Alumni News Edition of CCT which included your report for our class of 1926 and your admonition: 'Classmates — please write!' So I am acting upon a good impulse and got out the old typewriter to tell you a bit about myself as one of your classmates.

"My wife and I have lived here in Atlanta for eighteen years now. This past year we celebrated our fiftieth wedding anniversary, first with a trip to Hawaii and then, in Cambridge, Mass., with our son and his family including our grandson, Matthew, aged eight.

"After graduation I spent three years at Union Theological Seminary, across the street on Morningside Heights. I was ordained as a Congregational Minister in 1929 and followed that with forty-two years of regular pastorates. There were just four of them in that time, and they boxed the compass. North: Newport, Vt., 6 miles from the Canadian border. East: Rockville Centre, L.I., six miles from the Atlantic ocean. West: Minneapolis, Minn. (west of the Mississippi River anyway). South: Atlanta, Ga.

"In 1972 I 'retired' from regular ministry; but since that time have had six 'Interim Pastorates.' Two were in Florida, two in Minnesota, one in New Jersey, and the most recent one in Lakewood, Ohio. I had known what your column reports about Norman Gabrielle living in Lakewood. I surely would have looked him up while there.

"I was at our class's fiftieth reunion in 1976, and I believe I had travelled farther than anyone else to get there. This past year I was in New York again for my Seminary fiftieth reunion. At present my wife and I are continuing to enjoy our home here in the Metropolis of the South, where we have had five snowfalls of one inch each in the last ten years.

"I hope this finds you and your family in good health and enjoying your Golden years as we are. If you should get down this way be sure to give us a call.

Yours most sincerely,
Fred Meyer

P.S. While in Lakewood, Ohio, near Cleveland, I attended an enjoyable Columbia luncheon at a downtown hotel. About 30 there."

We do want to hear from you about your golden years, and the ones between, any memories, and what you will about your days at Columbia. Take pen in hand.

Class Correspondent:
William Helfer
445 Park Avenue, 5th Fl.
New York, N.Y. 10022

Dick (Hoyt) Reed '35B, '46TC, writes that, after a decade of teaching at what is now Fairleigh Dickinson, and Rutgers, he went to Michigan State in 1945 to teach Social Science in its general education program. Until 1968, he was editor of the Proceedings of the National Institutes on Police-Community Relations, and since then of the on-going Michigan State-wide PCR quarterly conferences. Upon his official retirement in '68, he spent three years co-authoring The Police and the Community (Glencoe-Macmillan) with Louis A. Radelet (3rd edition just published). Since 1971, he's back as "half-time" librarian in the Michigan State School of Criminal Justice. Keeps him from going stir-crazy, says he, (he ought to know) and helps his five granddaughters through college. He has "fine memories of the warm and superb teachings of John Erskine, Mark Van Doren and Roy Nichols" — and appreciated this column for keeping us all in touch these many years.

Just heard from Bob Kinzel who lives in Wilton, Connecticut, and is a counsellor on executive retirement planning. He recently authored Retirement — Creating Promise Out of Threat (126 pp., $12.95, American Management Association, Amacom Div., 135 West 50th St., N.Y.C. 10020), which details the step-by-step financial planning process for retirement. Bob is one of three distinguished brothers, all Columbia graduates. His older brother, Dr. Augustus (Gus) B. Kinzel '19, was vice-president for research of Union Carbide Co., and when he retired, became president of the Jonas Salk Foundation in California, where he now lives. He's still active and practically commutes to New York. Bob's younger brother Otto '32, is a well-known New York lawyer, who recently achieved considerable fame as counsel to the N.Y. Legislative Commission on Pensions, and is vice-chairman of the Manhattan Savings Bank. Both Bob and Gus also distinguished themselves by earning a good part of their undergraduate tuition at Columbia by working for Bill Helfer's dad, who in those days ran one of the world's earliest phonograph record shops in New York's Yorkville section.

Classmates: if you want some free publicity, send your items to Bill Helfer at the address preceding this column.

Class Correspondent:
Jerome Brody
39-48 47th Street
Long Island City, N.Y. 11104

On December 10, 1979 we had our annual Christmas party at the Union League Club, sponsored again by John Peddy, who, we were all most happy to see, entered on his own power. This was quite an achievement, and we are all looking forward to next year when we expect Johnny to come in dancing. He was accompanied by his devoted family. The buffet was up to our requirements, which means that it was quite scrumptious. Howard Meighan was again our toastmaster and gave us quite a thrilling exhibition of his great talent. Among those present were: Price, Brody, Veit, Meighan, Parsons, Taxin, Harris, Lane, Thorn, Kolovsky, Fry, DuMoulin, Siris, Umans, Wittner, Barb, Vischi, Glassman, Cohen, Feldblum, Loughlin, Dorfman and Mound. Many of the wives accompanied their husbands.

We were all pleased to know that President Carter awarded Raymond D. Mindlin a National Science Medal for his work in mechanical engineering, theoretical mathematics, and his research into piezoelectric oscillators.

Got a short note from Gregory Hawkins, who wants to know more of what is going on. We will try to keep him informed, both through these columns as well as directly from the Alumni Office. We look forward to greeting him at Homecoming.

On December 14, President Carter appointed Jim Reynolds to help mediate the Long Island Railroad strike.

Lou Taxin and his lovely wife Gertrude celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a gala affair at Tavern-on-the-Green in Central Park. They were a charming couple then and the passing years have contributed more of the same. We all wish them continued health and happiness.

On June 7, 1980 we will meet at Phil Feldblum's in Armonk for our Annual Spring Reunion. It will be a picnic.

Beverages will be supplied, but bring your own lunch. We were also asked to bring a blanket. I guess we can anticipate some fun and games intermingled with business. We hope for the best (or worst).

Class Correspondent:
E. Arthur Hill
50 West 67th Street
New York, N.Y. 10023

Our unrivaled world travelers, Jack and Ruth Fiske, have completed another circumnavigation of the globe. This time they concentrated on islands, and made stops at such places as Easter Island, Tahiti, Bora-Bora and Mauritius. Where next?

Following a heart attack last June, Arthur H. Hartley of Lake Success, N.Y., has retired from the active practice of medicine.

Class Correspondent needed — if you would like to serve, write or call Columbia College Today
100 Hamilton Hall
New York, N.Y. 10027

Frederick H. Block is counsel to the New York law firm of Zimmer Fishbach & Herten, handling civil and criminal trials and appeals. He and his wife have four children and one grandchild.

Francis X. Egel writes: "On October 1, 1979 I retired as senior income tax examiner (Technician II) for the New York State Income Tax Bureau. Will continue to live in Albany."

Alfred H. Friedman is completing his twentieth year as teaching principal of the Friedman School of Remedial Instruction in Haddon Heights, N.J. His older son, Michael Belais Friedman '64, is the executive office coordinator of the Jewish Board of Family and Children's Services in N.Y.C.

Media Decisions magazine, of which Lionel Kaufman is assistant publisher, has changed its name to Marketing and Media Decisions magazine.

An international meeting on the psychotherapy of schizophrenia was held at Yale University in April honoring Dr. Theodore Lidz, Sterling Professor of Psychiatry Emeritus at Yale's School of Medicine. A portrait of Dr. Lidz was presented to Yale at a banquet in honor of the noted psychoanalyst and his wife, Dr. Ruth Lidz. A former chairman and psychiatrist-in-chief of Yale's department of psychiatry, Dr. Lidz has been a career investigator for the National Institute of Mental Health, and the recipient of awards for his studies in the fields of schizophrenia and psychosomatic medicine.

Werner Lutz writes that since his cardiac surgery in November, 1979, he is "feeling better than I have in 50 years."

Dr. Felix H. Vann, currently a vice-president of the P&S Alumni Association, has been in the practice of obstetrics and gynecology for forty years. His wife, Dorothea (B '33; M.D., Cornell '37) on Richard (C'65; E'66; Ph.D., Duke, '77) two grandsons, and granddaughter, are all "going strong!"

Class Correspondent
Arthur V. Smith
Curtis Morris & Safford
530 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10036

Class Correspondent:
Arthur Lautkin
1148 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10028

This correspondent has been quite remiss in submitting class notes. It took him two years to realize that one does not charge for lineage — no matter to what good purpose the proceeds are put. So with much apology, let me capitulate some of the letters received.

Dr. Sidney Siegel continues to consult on nuclear technology for various organizations much to the benefit of the U.S. government. Because of the vagaries of the Social Security laws the consulting income is taxed at 110%. Also he is a serious wood sculptor with two pieces sold and commissions for several more. If you need a second opinion or can afford a work of art you can find him in Pacific Palisades, Calif.

Dr. Bernard R. Queneau is technical director of Iron and Steelmaker magazine. He attended the International Iron and Steel Institute conference in Sydney, Australia with the comment — "great spring Down Under!" He is available to classmates who still want to pump iron in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Arthur A. Gladstone was elected Chairman of the Board, Institute for the Study of Regulated Industries, Washington, D.C., in December 1978. To all his regular classmates he is at home in Alexandria, Va.

Lloyd Seidman has retired from his career as an executive and writer in the advertising agency field. His recent book, New York City — Retirement Village, was published by Harper & Row. A second book is ready for publication. He is a member of the advertising board of the Gerontological Studies Office of the Graduate School of CUNY and also of a Senior Summary, a publication of the NYC Junior League. If becoming a senior citizen is a problem, call him at his NYC home.

Julius Wolfram, M.D. was host for a Columbia College Alumni gathering honoring Dean Collyer on December 8, 1979 on his trip to Dallas — the first of such since his installment as Dean. Julius is raising dollars for Columbia in Dallas — give and save on taxes in Texas.

Sylvan S. Furman retired as Assistant Commissioner, N.Y.S. Department of Mental Hygiene, after 42 years in public and voluntary health and social services. Now engaged in painting, print-making, etc., with exhibits in one-man and group shows. Has already won prizes for etching. He is occasional consultant to U.S. Public Health Service and other organizations. If you want to be put in the proper frame of mind, he is listed in the NYC telephone directory.

Regional Planning Commission. Lud's office is in the World Trade Center.

The class was saddened by the sudden death a few months ago of one of its most distinguished members, Judge Harold Leventhal of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Hal not only was our valedictorian, but achieved this while exercising professional option, combining his last year of College with the first year of Law School.

Reporting on an Ivy League football smoker held last fall in Northampton, Mass., Francis P. Organ writes that about a third of the 60 present were Columbia alumni. Red says they were outnumbered only by an assortment of Dartmouth old grads.

It's a long, long time from December to May, but in the hope of getting you to start planning for next December, we want to record that a very pleasant evening was enjoyed by those of the class at the Rainbow Room. Present to enjoy the food, dancing and the Art Deco of our college era were the Norm Alexanders, Hy Bickermans, Ed Finns, Bill Golubs, Herb Jacobys, Howie Kleins, Harry Richards, Phil Roens, and your correspondent and friend.

The most recent class luncheon, as this is written, was held February 27 at the Princeton Club. In attendance to do some class business and to enjoy some general conversation were: Finn, Gasstrom, Lawrence, Richards, Roen, and this correspondent.

A main item of business at the lunch concerned the class treasury (worse than bare). If this reminder prompts you to act, send $10 (or more) to Ewald Gasstrom, 2 Adrienne Place, White Plains, N.Y. 10605.

Since my last column (which was also my first) a few more of you have sent in brief accounts of your activities (see above). May I hope there are more friends in the class from whom I haven't heard yet?

Class Correspondent:
Allen H. Tobey
122 East 42nd Street, Rm. 2800
New York, N.Y. 10017

Our upcoming 45th reunion at the Rye Town Hilton in May has brought quite a bit of information from classmates and a fair number of reservations. We expect to have as good a time as we did at our 40th at Arden House, so plan to be with us.

I was at Dean's Day on March 22nd and it was a treat to be back on campus. The quality of the presentations was stimulating and provocative, and it is a shame more of us don't get there. The only classmate I saw was Jonas Zweig, who is teaching at a college in New Jersey and asked to be remembered.

Herbert G. Ahrend is still very active in his own firm as consultant in marketing and sales promotion in New York.

Bill Bissett has retired and lives in Short Hills, N.J.

Jeremiah Fusco is "President of the Virginia council of chapters of the Retired Officers Association, [PROA]." Ed Grieb is living in Wever, Iowa.

Albert Kay of Falls Church, Virginia, has retired from the U.S. Department of Defense.

Frank Lier has retired from Columbia University as Professor Emeritus of Biological Sciences, and lives on the shore in eastern Connecticut.

Hunter Meighan is still practicing law in Maramoneck, N.Y.

Morton A. Miller, after retiring from the building business, taught English at the University of Hartford, Conn. He has just had a textbook, Reading & Writing Short Essays, published by Random House.

Thomas G. Moore retired in 1976 from the engineering department of Monsanto and spends some of his time traveling with his wife to see their widely scattered children and grandchildren.

Joseph J. Ryan is retired and spending winters in Florida and comes back to South Yarmouth in the summer.

Abraham Sirkin has retired from the U.S. Information Agency and the Policy Planning Staff of the State Department. He is working on a book for the World Bank on remote sensing of Earth resources from satellites.

'36

Class Correspondent:
Alfred J. Barabas
1000 Spring Hill Road
McLean, Va. 22102

Indianapolis attorney William B. Weisell was recently honored by the Indiana State Symphony Society upon his retirement as president of its Board of Directors. "Few, if any, major orchestras are in such excellent condition," noted The Indianapolis Star in an editorial commending his achievements. Bill was awarded a key to the city of Indianapolis, election to the Sagamore of the Wabash (the state's highest honor), and a silver plaque from the orchestra which, he writes, "I treasure most of all." The College has benefited from Bill's interest over the years as well; he has served on the Columbia College Council, has chaired the Alumni Association's Indiana Secondary Schools Committee, and for many years has been a Fellow in the John Jay Associates. I am sure I speak for the entire class in congratulating William Weisell on his retirement, and commending him for his part in keeping both the College and the Indiana State Symphony in such splendid shape.

Class Correspondent:
Walter E. Schaap
86-63 Clio Street
Hollis, N.Y. 11423

The Class of '37 mourns the loss of our distinguished classmate Sanford S. Parker, who died of cancer in New York on February 28. Sandy Parker was not only a friend, but was of course best known for his work as chief economist at Fortune magazine, where he spent the last thirty years as one of America's most respected economic reporters and forecasters. Sandy actually worked out of his apartment on East 53rd Street, but was so well regarded by his colleagues at Time Inc. and elsewhere, that even Henry R. Luze was glad to make the trip over to consult with him. A Sanford S. Parker memorial scholarship fund has been established at Columbia. The class extends its sincere condolences to Sandy's wife, Laura, and to the Parker family.

Class Correspondent:
John F. Crymble
22 Chestnut Street
Salem, N.J. 08079

Don Schenk and I joined with others to help with the phonathon from The New York Times building in early November. After 40-plus years it was a pleasure to talk with Bob July, Mrs. Dick Berlin, Berwyn Force, Luis Bejarano, and Werner Seaward. Werner, who lives in Monterey, California, has recently retired from the teaching profession.

In late November, Don Schenk hosted an informal luncheon at the Columbia-Princeton Club. The quartet of Don, Bob Friou, Tony Susinno, and John Crymble enjoyed the "bull" session. Tony reminisced about experiences in the Naval Medical Corps during the war. He was stationed in the Aleutian Islands and experienced "the workings and ways of politics." Bob Friou left early to defend a client in court. Although he said his case was 19th on the docket, he didn't risk being late.

In January, the White Plains Reporter Dispatch quoted Harold Meyers's response to New York Governor Carey's proposed metropolitan area automobile "user's fee." Harold, president of the Automobile Club of New York, was against the Governor's proposal because it singled out motorists to pay additional taxes after paying all the taxes paid by other citizens.

Called Tony Susinno Feb. 15 for some class news. By coincidence, he had just seen "Hank" Schaffeld on Channel 4, NBC-TV. Dr. Schaffeld, chief of the Testing Service at New York's Roosevelt Hospital, was discussing pneumonia complication in the current flu epidemic.

I know you '38ers know how to manage stress in your successful careers. But get Leon Warshaw's new book, Managing Stress, published by Addison-Wesley. Dr. Warshaw is vice-president and chief medical officer of Equitable Life Assurance Society. He has been on loan to the Mayor of NYC as a health consultant.

Dr. Gene M. Allen, professor of chemistry at Lehigh University, has been elected to fellowship in the Optical Society of America. Dr. Allen has served with distinction in the advancement of optics. He directs Lehigh University's Consortium for Color Technology and the color science lab in the Center for Surface and Coatings Research. He is the author of numerous papers on analytical chemistry, spectrophotometry, optics, and colorimetry.

As Phil Wilson '53 puts it, "Whether tremors or trivia, let me know what's happening so the news can be shared with your classmates."

Class Correspondent:
Joseph Loeb
100 Hoyt Street
Stamford, Conn. 06905

Correspondent's comment: sexagenarian lethargy took hold for the past several months, but, vitalized by receipt of many biographical reports and the well-attended 40th Reunion last June, the continuity of reporting on 1939 is resumed with diligence and determination.

One of the nicest events was Stephen L. Snowden's playing host to Norman H. Angell '10, the Class Correspondent for the oldest alumni classes, 1900-1910, in Rehoboth Beach, Del.

The retirement status list now includes George Bogin in Great Neck, N.Y., Everett K. Deane in Port Washington, N.Y., Rev. John E. Coghlan in Syracuse, N.Y., Harold Zaret in Silver Springs, Md., Rev. Donald C. McEwan in Whiting, N.J., and Dr. John Bockelmann in Tenafly, N.J.

Lee Saunders reports on his professional life as controller of the Soap and Detergent Association: his trade association is "deeply involved in controlling eutrophication (sic) — the pollution of lakes, rivers and streams throughout the world." No pun intended, Lee, but you must be cleaning up!

H. Fred Cober is now a partner of the Atlanta, Ga., law firm of Arnall Golden & Gregory.

Stanley Lee, M.D. is the Dean of Faculty, College of Medicine, SUNY, Downstate Medical Center, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dr. Robert J. Senkier, class chairman of the College Fund drive, has become president of the Industrial Gerontology Research Institute, a non-profit corporation providing service to the aging.

Russell Hill continues as senior correspondent of Radio Free Europe and is serving as staff aide to U.S. Senator Henry Jackson.

Edward Le Comte, professor of English at SUNY at Albany, has published his 14th book and his third novel, The Professor and the Co-ed.

Class Correspondent:
Harvey V. Fondiller
915 West End Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10025

It will soon be forty for '40! We celebrate our 40th anniversary reunion May 31-June 1, 1980, at the Rye Town Hilton, Westchester, New York. The boys will be coming from all over: Kennedy (California); Mladinov (Oregon); Bankoff, Edelman, Krapp and Hall from Chicago; Tandy (Florida); Holt (Detroit). Plus many more and the Reunion Committee: Gardner (chairman), Baum, Lawson & Lester Bernstein, Bruce, Dietz, Dowd, Downar, Feinberg, Feldman, Fondiller, Gould, Impellizzeri, Kayden, Kursch, Lambert, Lubar, Riccardi, Shattan, and Stevenson. If you want to see how things turned out after four decades, join us!

Dr. S. George Bankoff is W.D. Murphy Professor of Chemical and Nuclear Engineering at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

Class Correspondent:
Macrae Sykes
Bache Halsey Stuart Shields, Inc.
100 Gold Street, 6th Floor
New York, N.Y. 10038

Class Correspondent:
Fon W. Boardman, Jr.
16 West 16th St., Apt. PHGN
New York, N.Y. 10011

Ralph Freundlich, who settled in Bisbee, Ariz. in 1977, writes that he loves it there and is still a functioning musician (performing under the name of Ray Friendly), and is also a graphics artist. His landscapes have been exhibited at various art shows in the area.

Harold K. Hughes, who retired in 1976 as vice president for academic affairs at the State University of New York at Potsdam, is keeping active as president of the St. Lawrence County Chamber of Commerce, a member of the board of the Adirondack Association, and in various other civic capacities. Harold, who earned a Columbia Ph.D. in physics as well as his A.B., holds 18 patents and is the author of numerous publications. He also finds time to enjoy life with his children and grandchildren.

H. Frederick Kelber, who took his M.D. degree at Long Island College of Medicine, now lives in Winter Haven, Fla., where he practiced for a number of years until he retired in 1976. Despite a coronary and open-heart surgery in 1979, Fred is able to spend time looking after land investments in Florida and North Carolina. He has one son, an ophthalmologist, and six grandchildren one of whom will enter college this year.

Ludwell A. Larzelere, who lives in Livingston, N.J., and was with both the Luckenbach Steamship Co. and the New York-New Jersey Transportation agency in past years, is now a director, Division of Subregional Transportation Management, with the Tri-State

Class Notes

W. Lance Corsbie, an attorney, lives at 3317 N. 29 Street, Waco, Texas.

Prof. Hermon W. Farwell is chairman, Department of Speech Communication and Theatre, University of Southern Colorado, Pueblo, Colo.

Donald Ferens is an attorney with Alexander & Green, 299 Park Avenue, New York. He lives at 27 Byron Court, Allendale, N.J. 07401. His daughter Joyce recently graduated from Bergen Community College.

Thomas C. Flynn reports that he has been married 34 years to Rose Bialick Flynn and lives at 5 Peter Cooper Road, New York, N.Y. 10010. Their daughters (both Barnard graduates) are Dinah I. Flynn, an attorney, and Ellen F. Flynn, M.D.

Harvey V. Fondiller is editor of The Popular Photography Answer Book (Ziff-Davis). His previous book, The Best of Popular Photography (Ziff-Davis, 1979), was a Literary Guild alternate selection.

Dr. Gilbert Glaser is Professor and Chairman of the Department of Neurology at Yale University School of Medicine, New Haven, Conn. He lives at 205 Millbrook Road, Hamden, Conn. 06518.

Asher Hiesiger, an attorney specializing in real estate investments, has an office/home at 31 West 111 Street, New York, N.Y. 10011. His son, Emile, is a neurologist on the staff of the V.A. hospital associated with N.Y.U. Medical Center. Daughter Barbara, a graduate of Bard College, is a budding actress and works with underprivileged children at a day-care center in Greenwich Village.

Col. Regis H. Kennedy, AUS Ret., lives at 18110 Rancho St., Tarzana, Calif. 91356. Retired since 1975, he remains active in military associations and as president of Tarzana Property Owners' Association and Los Angeles Sigma Chi Alumni, for which he edits a monthly newsletter.

Phillip Krapp is a dictionary editor with J.G. Ferguson Co., 111 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Wallace Masur is manager of the Lux, Bond, Green & Stevens jewelry store in West Hartford, Conn.

Alexander W. Morrison, psychologist, is a career and organizational consultant with offices at 26 Court Street, Suite 1209, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11242. He lives at 23 Raymond Court, Garden City, N.Y. 11530.

Lou Pacent writes: "We are coming to the reunion from Palm Springs, Calif. and sure hope to see a lot of our old friends." (You surely will, Lou!)

Dr. Samuel Plotnick reports: "I have earned three degrees from Columbia — A.B., 1940; D.D.S., Dec. 1943; M.P.H., 1947. My wife Hermine, has hers from Occupational Therapy courses — B.S. 1953; my mother-in-law has an M.A. (1953 — School of Education). Son Michael attends the joint program of Columbia — Jewish Theological Seminary." Sam lives at 32 Parkside Drive, Great Neck, N.Y. 11021.

Dr. Daniel Roth recently retired as Associate Professor of Pathology at New York University Medical Center. He is concentrating on experimental pathology in the field of chemical carcinogenesis in association with the Goodwin Institute for Cancer Research, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Walter S. Sage is with Sage, Ayoub & Langley, 181 Main St., Ft. Fairfield, Maine 04742.

George T. Scharffenberger has a new title: Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, City Investing Company. His address is 4 Appaloosa Lane, Rolling Hills, Calif. 90274.

Harry Schwartz is Writer in Residence, Department of Surgery, College of Physicians & Surgeons, Columbia University.

Russell Tandy and his wife, Mildred, have moved to Hobe Sound, Florida. Russ took early retirement as Senior Vice President of Marsh & McLennan, Inc., and has started a new career as vice-president of Bankers Trust Company (New York) in their Palm Beach office.

Dr. Alvin Turken, orthopedic surgeon, has an office at 9808 Venice Blvd., Culver City, Calif. 90230.

Joseph Zorn lives at 784 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10021.

Class Correspondent:
Mrs. Fred Abdo
779 Schaefer Avenue
Oradell, N.J. 07649

Happy to report that Class Reunion weekend at Arden House in December was a huge success! Among the attractions: slide presentation of past reunions (all agreeing we look better now than then), dancing and singing to the melodies of our pianist-in-residence, Alan Goldberg, an informative slide presentation and lecture by Ted deBary on his trip to China, a photo guessing contest of our 41'ers, walks in the brisk air, fireside chatting and relaxing, two happy cocktail hours, delicious food, and the always-present air of warm conviviality so characteristic of these '41 reunions. We were happy to greet again Harry Mellins, professor of radiology at Harvard, and wife Judy; Semmes Clarke, director of marketing administration and customer relations for Hoffman-LaRoche's chemical division, and his wife Connie. Also delighted to meet newcomers to the reunions: Howard Wunderlich, a radiologist from Port Jefferson, and his wife, Kewpie; Hugh Barber, noted cancer specialist and head of the O&G department at N.Y. Medical College, and wife Mary; Stanley Bedford, Judge of the Superior Court (N.J.) and wife, Ruth; Jack Beaudouin, VP and editor, Reader's Digest, and wife, Maria; Arthur Weinstock, recently transferred from Puerto Rico, working for Exquisite Form Industries, Inc., and wife Betty. We hope the new participants in our Reunion will continue to join us in our social gatherings. They and their wives were great additions to an already outstanding class.

We have heard that Hugh F. Peters has acquired controlling interest in Lewis F. Conant and Associates, general contractors in the L.A. area, and is now president and chief operating officer. Congratulations, Hugh!

Robert S. Wallerstein writes that he has been professor and chairman of the department of psychiatry at the University of California, San Francisco School of Medicine since 1975, and VP of the International Psychoanalytic Assoc. since 1977. He is also a member of the Josiah Macy, Jr. Foundation's Commission on the Present Condition and the Future of Academic Psychiatry.

Leon Henkin was awarded a Fulbright Travel Grant in spring of '79 to work in sabbatical research program at Technion, Haifa, Israel. He was appointed to the U.S. commission on Mathematical Instruction, 1978-81. Now back at the U. of C., Berkeley, helping to organize fourth International Congress of Mathematical Education to be held in California in August.

W. Philip Van Kirk has been a member of the law firm of Lovejoy, Wasson, Lundgren and Ashton since August, 1979.

Also have word that Ed Gray, Rector, St. Mark's Church-Episcopal, Denver, Colorado, hosted a group of 60 alumni, undergraduates, and prospective students at a festive holiday get-together at his home.

Please keep me informed of your activities — social, business, family — so we can keep classmates up to date on your news.

Wish all a pleasant spring. Cannot end without a special word of thanks to Class President Herb Spiselman for all he did to make our Reunion such a big success. We are lucky indeed to have a president so able, dedicated and conscientious. Thank you, Herb!

Hoelzer Scholarship Reaches Goal

The fund drive to endow a scholarship at Columbia College in memory of the late Charles F. Hoelzer '42 reached its goal of $25,000 in late January. More than sixty classmates and friends contributed to the Charles F. Hoelzer Memorial Scholarship Fund, which was initiated by Dr. Melvin L. Hershkovitz '42 and Mrs. Dorothy Dalton Hoelzer.

Class Correspondent:
Victor J. Zaro
563 Walker Road
Wayne, Pa. 19087

Congratulations to Charles C. West on his appointment as Professor of Christian Ethics and Academic Dean at Princeton Theological Seminary.

Chester A. Bain and his wife, June Wilson Bain (Barnard '41) are writing together on various projects in Laguna Hills, Calif. They have published several travel articles, completed six biographies on Mexican heroes for young readers and currently, Chet and June are working on a novel.

Also from California comes word that William A. Levinson is now free-lancing in Rancho La Costa after some forty years as magazine sports and travel editor (This Week, American Weekly), managing editor (Medical Economics), and editor-in-chief (Physician's World). On a recent vacation in Greece, Bill reports that he reunited with ex-Spectator buddies Walter Wager '44 and Connie Soloyanis '45.

And from Walton, N.Y., a little town tucked up in the Catskill Mountains, we are delighted to hear that William F. Dorsey is enjoying the good life to the fullest. Also in Walton is Dick Shepard '39 who, coincidentally, attended William Cullent Bryant High in Astoria, N.Y., with Bill.

Congratulations to Arthur R. Albohn, who was recently elected to the New Jersey State Assembly, representing the 23rd Legislative District (Morris County). A Republican, he has served his home town, Hanover Township, as former mayor and committeeman for 25 years. By profession, Art is manager of technical services, Kombine-Sanderson Engineering Corp., Peapack, N.J. Son, Dan Albohn, is a junior at the College, majoring in economics.

We all enjoy reading of the whereabouts and doings of our fellow classmates. So won't you please drop me a line and let me know where you are and any other bit of information you would like to have published. Many thanks!

Class Correspondent:
John F. Pearson
6 Eileen Terrace
Ormond Beach, Fla. 32074

Class Correspondent:
Walter Wager
200 West 79th Street
New York, N.Y. 10024

Dr. John Spitznagel, who was a distinguished professor of bacteriology and immunology at the U. of North Carolina for 22 years, has moved further south to Atlanta. His achievements have led to his appointment as professor and chairman of the Department of Microbiology at Emory University.

Bruno Zirato, Jr. has moved to the Sun Belt after 30 lively and creative years in New York radio and television broadcasting. Most recently, he was executive producer of "To Tell the Truth." He has become a principal, in N.M. Marshall Associates in Paradise Valley, Arizona, near Phoenix. He's living in 5403 North 79th Place in Scottsdale, and applying his wisdom and experience with CBS and Goodson-Todman to bring "software expertise" to the firm that provides market research and marketing planning to the broadcasting, cable and closed circuit TV companies.

Arbor House will have Walter Wager's Blue Moon in the bookstore at the end of April. A nursery tale it's not, as Publisher's Weekly described the saga — second in the trilogy about an unlikely female detective — as "lush, atmospheric, violent and exciting." No Barnard alumnae appear anywhere in this story, a guileless oversight that will be remedied in future works.

Class Correspondent:
Alan S. Medoff
185 Cedar Lane
Teaneck, N.J. 07666

Congratulations Lions of '45! It seems you really are out there. Please let us continue to hear from you.

Julian Foster reports from Arizona that he feels lonely being the only '45 Lion in the whole of the Grand Canyon State. How about paying him a visit and cheering him up?

Dr. Lawrence Ross recently had a showing of his paintings in Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, N.Y., last August. For a living, he is a professor of clinical radiology at SUNY, Stony Brook. How did the showing go, Larry?

Dr. V. Peter Mastorocco, our '45 representative in Brooklyn, must be an awfully busy Lion. He is secretary to the Board of Directors of the Brooklyn Philharmonic, on the staff of the Methodist Hospital and First Vice President of the Board of Managers of the Prospect Park YMCA. Pete, when do you have time to practice optometry?

Another Brooklyn Lion, Dr. Barnett Zumoff, reports he is director of the Clinical Research Medical Center and Professor of Medicine at Albert Einstein College of Medicine in the Bronx. Would like to hear of your research projects, Barney. How about it?

Dr. Ralph Colp, Jr. is our psychiatrist in charge of the College's Health Service. He is there full time and would like to hear from friends at (212) 280-2878. With today's problems, he must be terribly busy.

Guess what, Class of '45!!! Frederick Wood Shelton was granted a Master of Divinity degree from Bangor Theological Seminary in Maine. Great! We can use all the help we can get these days. Say hello to Fred when you are in Maine this summer.

Leon A. Gehorsam is Vice President of Wighton Abbott Corp. He is in Westfield, N.J., and would love to hear from other vice presidents (or any others) in our class.

Dr. Burton Cohen runs a busy practice in internal medicine and cardiopulmonary disease in Elizabeth, N.J. He also teaches at the New Jersey College of Medicine as an assistant professor. I hear he makes house calls. (What are they?)

Dr. Albert Beasley of Westport, Conn., reports that his son, Scott, was graduated from our College in '72 and attended Yale Medical School, graduating in 1977. Congratulations Al!!! Are there any more Beasleys in the medical pipe line?

Class Correspondent:
Fred Escherich
60 Siwanoy Boulevard
Eastchester, N.Y. 10709

Paul A. Marks was a member of the President's Commission studying the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant.

The State of Michigan presented the Legion of Merit to the Rev. Dr. Carl Russell Sager when the National Guard chaplain retired in 1978. Rev. Sager, a chaplain with the National Guard for 20 years, was honored with a retirement dinner/dance at the Flint, Michigan Armory. The Governor's citation praises "Captain Sager's foresight, enthusiasm, tireless efforts, and 'down to earth' approach."

Alex Sahagian-Edwards, M.D., who is full-time attending in medicine at the Roosevelt Hospital in N.Y.C., will initiate a new primary care program in conjunction with the department of pediatrics. It is an innovative program, inasmuch as they will be working out of a trailer in the parking lot of the hospital.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in September, Steve Seadler declared, "the need for introduction of Ideological Arms Control in arms control in general and the SALT process in particular is clear and urgent." Mr. Seadler is president of the Ideological Defense Center in New York City, and was called before the Committee to discuss the problem of ideological differences between the USA and the USSR in making the SALT II treaty work. True to his Columbia education, Mr. Seadler based part of his testimony on a passage from Hobbes' Leviathan.

Leonard Swern has been named staff

Class Correspondent:
George W. Cooper
489 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10017

Wait long enough and something is bound to happen to a classmate. Indeed, several things happened to several classmates, enough for the first Class Notes since last summer. But don't be overwhelmed by this success. Keep those items coming in. Meanwhile, here's what we have:

Dr. Henry G. Burger is Professor of Anthropology and Professor of Education at the University of Missouri-Kansas City. He is a pioneer in "Transitive Anthropology", which he explains as "the codification of the process of applied social science, leading from desired results back to effectual means." In 1958, Henry discovered how to create a "taxonomy of process, which, with substance, constitute the two basic elements of all science." Its elaboration has been his major project over the ensuing years. His findings contest the primacy of psychology over culture as it had been alleged in the universal timings claimed by Piaget; the bad-nerve assumptions of psychiatry; and the subhuman environment advocated by Skinner. "Okay, let's hear it from all you psychologists and psychiatrists out there, defending your ramparts!"

A bulletin from the David W. Taylor Naval Ship Research and Development Center (known to one and all as the DT-NSRDC) announces that Gene H. Gleissner, associate technical director for computation, mathematics and logistics at the Center, was presented with the Navy's Superior Civilian Service Award on December 10, 1979 by Dr. James H. Probus, director of Navy laboratories. Congratulations, Gene, and best of luck in your future endeavors.

Edwin A. Kieran, a classmate of this correspondent at Law School as well, got some good news at the start of the year. Effective January 1st, Ed was elected Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary of the Inter-public Group of Companies, Inc., succeeding his boss who became President at the same time. Inter-public is the world's largest advertising agency system, perhaps best known for its McCann-Erickson subsidiary. Congratulations and best wishes to you, too, Ed!

Between issues of these Class Notes, we learned that George L. Kline, chairman of the philosophy department at Bryn Mawr College, was on sabbatical, dividing his time between research as a Guggenheim Fellow on Russian ethical and social theory (Vladimir Solovoyov in particular) and a stint as Fulbright Research Professor in Paris. Tempus fugit and now we learn that George is back at Bryn Mawr and has resumed the chairmanship. Welcome home!

Alan W. Steinberg reports that he moved his family and business, lock, stock and security portfolio, from the New York area to the Miami area (business in south Miami, home in Coral Gables). Son, Tommy, is in the local high school and daughter, Laura, is at Dade College while oldest daughter, Carol, stayed behind in the frigid North to pursue her own career. Alan relates that he does a "semi-commute" to New York about every three weeks — let's hope Eastern Airlines (or their competitors) offer better service than Conrail or the IRT.

Stop press! Just received a letter from John Crossett, breaking his "years of silence" to report that the American Philological Association has presented him with an award for excellence in teaching. The award is a new one, given on a regional basis, and John got his for the midwestern states, in one of which he is Professor of Classics at Cornell College (Mount Vernon, Iowa). John's wife, Judith, has her Doctorate in English and is now working on a Doctorate in Medicine, a true quantum leap. Their daughter attends a Montessori School in Iowa City. Next year, John will be collaborating with Hippocrates G. Apostle '33 on a new translation with commentary of Aristotle's "Poetics".

'47

Class Correspondent:
David L. Schraffenberger
500 Second Avenue, L.B. #108
New York, N.Y. 10016

A recent Fund phonathon produced not only a healthy flood of contributions, but these bits of class information, as well.

From New Jersey, Jim Avery (Scotch Plains) is now in his second year with Exxon, while Dr. John Leaman continues his practice in ophthalmology in Glen Ridge.

Tony Arace's daughter, a young high school graduate, is now a full-time student at the Fullerton (California) Community College at the ripe old age of seventeen.

Richard Kilian (Keene, N.H.) is an assistant vice-president, National Grange (Insurance).

Dr. Jim Griffith (Fairfield, Conn.) is an internist with the Norwalk Medical Group, and is involved in a special program concerning alcoholism.

With their daughter now graduated from Kenyon College, and married, Charles Belling and wife Dorothy are enjoying their quiet "empty nest" in Reston, Va.

From home base in Cincinnati, Bob Haupt has dispatched one daughter to Kansas City as a physical therapist; another, to a Swarthmore degree in library science; and a son, to Texas A&M.

The arrival of Amanda Brainin y Padilla, 11/21/79, makes David Brainin a grandfather for the third time. David has recently formed a new law firm, Brainin & Goldstein (150 E. 58th St. in Manhattan), offering services in labor law, corporation and commercial law, municipal law, and general practice.

Ted Melnechuk (La Jolla, California) was the technical adviser on the National Geographic's TV feature, "Mysteries of the Mind," shown on public TV in February of this year.

After seeing his daughter through Smith, and his son to his senior year at Harvard, Vincent Pascucci (Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.) recently completed his own Ph.D. in Classics, at Brown. In retrospect, Vincent offers "praises to the great H's of Columbia: Professors Householder, Hadas, and Highest."

Department of Things We Were Well Aware of But Thanks for Reminding Us Anyway: Actor Dolph Sweet, in a recent communication, notes that his stage name is Dolph Sweet.

Dr. Grant Dellabough, Duck Pond Rd., Demarest, N.J., writes: "I've changed occupations and am now running my own oil and gas exploration and drilling venture through an office in Dallas." With six full-grown offspring now dotting the landscape, Dr. Dellabough believes he also qualifies for this dubious distinction award: he now receives fund-raising appeals not only from Columbia, but from Hobart, Bennington, NYU, the University of California at Berkeley, the University of New Hampshire, the University of Miami in Florida, the University of Texas, and the Universities of Paris, Grenoble, and Stockholm. Good luck with the oil and gas exploration, Grant.

Additional notes: followers of Kenneth M. Bernstein may stick the latest pin in the map of Brazil, where Ken is doing "the Berlitz book" on that massive nation.

Nancy (spouse of David Schraffenberger), on her return from a recent visit to England (not courtesy of The New York Times) returned with tales of inflationary horror, and warm gratitude for the hospitality lavished on her by the Marshall Mascotts, in their fashionable Cadogan Square residence.

She brought me a tie.

Class Correspondent:
Richard C. Kandel
523-B East 85th St., Apt. 1-C
New York, N.Y. 10028

'49 news is good and bad, as always, and in alphabetical order, as always.

Dr. Charles H. Bauer reports he has had to give up his practice of pediatrics because of his continuing multiple sclerosis. We are certain he must still get many calls from his classmates whose kids he treated over the years in New York.

'48

N.Y. Supreme Court Judge Frederic S. Berman enters his 22nd year as Adjunct Professor of Law at New York School and a faculty member of the National Judicial College between Criminal Terms of the Manhattan court.

Early-teen kids of '49-ers were correct when they reported "Boss Hogg" was seen on a visit to New York. Sorrell Booke, currently starring as this scheming kingpin on CBS-TV's "Dukes of Hazzard" will make several in-person appearances while criss-crossing the country between shooting schedules in Hollywood.

February 1980 saw the world premiere in New York of an opera composed by Thomas J. Flanagan, Jr. "I Rise In Flame, Cried the Phoenix" is from a one-act play by Tennessee Williams.

John O. Kessler of Tucson, Arizona, reports he spent six months of 1979 as Visiting Professor of Physics at the Technical University of Delft (The Netherlands).

Byron A. Nilsson continues "alive and well" in his post as Chief Engineer of NTN Bearing Corporation in Des Plaines, Illinois despite a mistaken entry in the obit column last year. He reports there was a redeeming factor since several old friends called his office to confirm the story and thus were able to renew acquaintances from campus days and earlier.

Professor of French W.E. Thormann, who also serves as chairman of the department of modern languages at Goucher College, was honored this year by the French government. To his many awards and his all-Columbia degrees he has now added "Chevalier in the French Order of Academic Palms." This last item thanks to the continuing Columbia-news-interest of Baltimore's Norman Angell, Class of '10.

'49 joins the many alumni who raved with enthusiasm over the excellent program and deserving turnout for this year's Dean's Day. Here's hoping the East Campus will provide facilities to resume the Class Luncheons that are presently limited to Anniversary years.

Class Correspondent:
Mario A. Palmieri
33 Lakeview Avenue W.
Peekskill, N.Y. 10566

We've heard from a number of MDs, so let's keep the medical group together:

Dr. Budd Appleton is retired from the Army and is ophthalmology professor at the University of Minnesota. Budd lives in St. Paul.

Dr. Roger Duvoisin is chief of the neurological service at Middlesex General Hospital, New Brunswick, N.J., and heads the department of neurology at the Rutgers Medical School. Roger and wife, Winifred, and four children live in Cranbury, N.J.

Dr. Milton Levine is practicing in Valley Stream, N.Y., and is assistant professor of medicine at SUNY, Stony Brook. Eldest son Benjamin is at Harvard Medical School (whence dad graduated) middle son Daniel is a senior at Brown, and Arthur is in high school.

Dr. Martin Malachowsky is attending physician, obstetrics-gynecology, Monmouth Medical Center in Long Branch, N.J. Martin lives in Oakhurst, N.J.

Dr. Frank Miller is a urologist in Plainview, N.Y. Frank is director, department of surgery, Central General Hospital in Plainview.

Ernest Thiesing writes from Spring Valley, N.Y., to tell us he is in hospital sales with Abbott Labs. Daughter Mary Anne earned an MA from Fordham and is pursuing her Ph.D. in biology; son Christopher is a senior at SUNY in New Paltz; son Paul is studying at N.Y. School of Visual Art.

Norman Dorsen is a professor of law at NYU School of Law and served recently as president of the Society of American Law Teachers. Norman is chairman of the board of directors of the American Civil Liberties Union and was chairman of HEW's review panel on new drug regulation.

Leonard Kliegman, president of Kliegman Bros. Inc., received the 1979 "Man of the Year" award from the Laundry Cleaners Allied Trades Assoc., and also the 1979 "Tzedakah" Award from the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. Congratulations to Lenny on his honors. Lenny and Edith live in Roslyn, N.Y., and have three sons.

We hear from Bert Solomon that he is Exec. VP of Hometown Mfg. Inc., a division of Cluett Peabody, located in Georgia.

Constantine (Connie) Ballos has founded his own firm — Ballos and Company, Inc. — in Morristown, N.J. Connie is an executive search consultant.

Your correspondent reports that he has been appointed Asst. VP in the Corporate Communications Dept. at Irving Trust Company in New York City.

Okay... this was our best column to date. Keep it coming!

Class Correspondent:
Richard N. Priest
Llewelyn-Davies Associates
130 East 59th St., 9th Fl.
New York, N.Y. 10022

Class Correspondent:
Robert N. Landes
McGraw-Hill
1221 Avenue of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10020

Joe Rothschild has recently been appointed Class of 1919 Professor of Political Science at Columbia University, as noted in an earlier CCT.

Dick Meyers has opened a new office at 12860 Biscayne Boulevard, North Miami, Fla., for the practice of internal medicine.

Dick Gardner continues as an Associate Clinical Professor of Child Psychology at P.S.

John Mullaney was recently made President of the Neuropsychiatric Society of Virginia.

John Benfield is Chairman of Surgery, City of Hope National Center, Duarte, California, and is also Clinical Professor of Surgery at the UCLA School of Medicine.

Dr. John Rhinehart has formed a holistic health group in Newton, Massachusetts called the "Deep Brook Holistic Medical Association." According to John, the holistic movement attempts to inform people about a total body program which is a form of preventive medicine. Holistic health care includes such concepts as the use of biofeedback machines and clinical medical laboratories, plus treatment like acupuncture and yoga.

Class Correspondent:
Phil Wilson
150 Paradise Road
East Amherst, N.Y. 14051

Mike Sovern, when he became President-Designate of Columbia University a few months ago, left us with a tough act to follow. We are extremely pleased for Mike and at the same time immensely proud that a classmate will assume the top administrative position of our Alma Mater in July.

In December Dick Bernstein was named T. Wiser Brown Professor of Philosophy at Haverford College, Pennsylvania. Dick earned his first bachelor's degree from the University of Chicago in 1951, his second from the College, and M.A. from Yale in 1955, and a Ph.D. also from Yale in 1958. After a teaching stint at Yale (1959-65) Bernstein joined the faculty at Haverford as a full professor. Dick has books and honors too numerous to list in this column; suffice to say we hope he continues to share his learning and insights with students for many more years.

Allan Jackman, M.D. of Tiburon, Calif., last fall had Josh Darsa as an overnight guest at his home in "hedonistic Marin" county. Josh was recovering at the time from acute pericarditis, whatever that is, so we presume he was unable to do as the hedons. Better luck on his next visit.

'51

'52

'53

'49

Summer Jobs Wanted

Are you looking for a highly-skilled photographer, computer technician, theatre manager, basketball coach, Indonesian translator or jack-of-all-trades?

HELP YOUR BUSINESS

...by hiring Columbia talent for the summer

HIRE A COLUMBIA STUDENT

...and help him meet the costs of his college education and get needed job experience.

The students listed here are all talented, eager to work, and dependent on getting summer jobs to help finance their education. By hiring a Columbia student for the summer, you can also make an important contribution to the well-being of Columbia College and the quality of its student body.

To hire a student:

Contact: Sandy Alton, College Alumni Affairs, 100 Hamilton Hall, New York, N.Y. 10027 (212) 280-5535

We will put you in touch with the student(s) you wish to interview for summer employment.

CALIFORNIA

PRE-MED, CHEM major, prefer work in related areas. Available most of the summer. LA area. Thomas K. Chang.

ILLINOIS

CHICAGO, NORTH SIDE. Have varied industrial experience in welding and machining. Looking for any work. Electrical Engineering freshman. Jon Kawamura

MASSACHUSETTS

ECO MAJOR, avail. May 20-Aug 15. Business or Law related work, Economic research, too Boston area. Harvey Cotton

MISSOURI

STRONG BACK. STRONGER MIND. Interested in government. Will/can do anything. St. Louis area. Call me. Howard Hoffman.

NEW YORK METRO AREA

PRE-JOURNALISM student, masterful political operative and rhetorician, seeks campaign work, NYC area, 5/15 to 8/15. Experience since 1974. Louis Antonelli.

ECO/HISTORY major, avail May 25-Aug 30. Would like business related work, NYC area. Know some accounting. Kevin L. Best.

HOPEFUL JOURNALIST, would like a job related to writing. Avail June-August, prefer NYC area. Eager and experienced. Roger B. Blumberg.

ECONOMICS-INDUSTRIAL engineering major. Speak Chinese and Japanese — prefer related work, interested in int'l trade. NYC area, June-Aug. Gregory Chen.

MAY 1980 COLLEGE GRADUATE available for entire summer in Manhattan. PoliSci major attending law school in September. Peter Clarkin.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE junior, interested in house sitting in Manhattan during summer vacation. Mature, responsible. Ted W. Cohen.

POLITICAL SCIENCE major, avail May 26-Aug 15. Prefer work in law office, but open to all offers, NYC area. James S. Connolly.

GEOGRAPHY M.A. Jan 1981, need 3 day/wk job in specialty of facility location planning or related work, NYC area, avail June 1980. Bernard Duer.

MATHEMATICAL STATISTICS major, some PCU training, available May 15-August 30. Prefer work related to insurance or real estate, but will accept almost anything in NYC area. Gregory Fields.

LOOKING FOR a jack of all trades? Poli/Sci major will do anything NYC area. Avail May-Aug. Sean T. Finn.

COLLEGE SENIOR, attending Law School in fall, seeks law or public service-related job. Avail, May-Aug 31, NYC or Westchester area. Richard Gans.

GOOD WRITER and clear thinker, speaks Spanish; some legal experience, seeks interesting work. NYC area: 6/1-8/31 Jeff Gracer.

BIO MAJOR, avail May 15-Aug 30. Experienced bio-lab technician. Other interests: astronomy and anthropology. Will do anything, prefer NY area. George Grills.

MATH MAJOR, avail. May-August. Prefer programming or related work, but would agree on anything. Native knowledge of Russian. NYC or Long Island. Yarkov Karpishpan.

EXPERIENCED COMPUTER or economics major. Avail June-Aug, references available. Will do anything. NYC area. Stuart Levi.

BIO-CHEM major. Avail May 10-Aug 30. Prefer related work but will do anything. Interested in Photography. NYC Lerich Nicholas.

CHEM student with chem and bio-chem lab experience looking for related work between 5/12 and 7/31. NYC area only. Robert Orlowski.

ECO MAJOR - avail May 20 - Aug 30. Am looking for business related work in N.Y. area. Ian M. Parmiter.

PRE-LAW SENIOR, Phi Beta Kappa, seeks law related work, NYC. Have some experience. Avail mid-May-Aug. Bruce Pottash.

CENTRAL QUEENS RESIDENCE. Would like any job near home. Avail. May 19-Aug 15. Ricky Saltzman.

PSYCH MAJOR avail June-Aug (negot.). Prefer related work but will do anything (esp. science). NYC/LI area. Cary Schwartzbach.

BRILLIANT STUDENT needs job between May and Aug. Looking for an interesting job (TV, lumberjack, etc.) Can do anything. Gardner B. Semet.

TENACIOUS, INTELLIGENT willing worker with literary, musical, athletic interests searching for stimulating, tiring job, 5/19-8/29. Prefer NYC area. Jordan Shapiro.

ENGLISH MAJOR seeks job with magazine, newspaper, or publishing firm in NYC area 6/1-8/15. Types 55 wpm. Michael Sittenfeld.

ECONOMICS MAJOR, avail May 12-Aug 30. Prefer work with bank or other financial institution. Statistics, math, computers, NYC area. Stephen Stone.

COMPUTER SCIENCE and math-good background and exp. Prefer related work. Avail may 12-Aug 22. NYC area. Jeff Weinberger.

Class Notes

Ed Robbins, counsel to the law firm of Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher and Flom, was recently elected a trustee of the Associated YM-YWHA's of greater New York. Ed is also president and CEO of Highland Capital Corporation, N.Y.C. (Is counsel to a law firm like an umpire at a referees' convention?)

Jack Sherwin of New York City advises us that he is not the only active Columbian in his family. His wife, Judy (Barnard '58), in addition to bestowing three daughters, has written six volumes of poetry and a book of short stories. Meanwhile, Jack, an executive vice president of GAF Corporation, finds himself as recently elected president of the American Chess Foundation and vice president of The International Rescue Committee.

While most of us at this age in life try to admire our dry hands and sleep-filled nights, Bob Walzer of Redding, Connecticut, reports that he had a son, Eric, born August 8, 1979. From those of us who believe (hope) we have it all behind us, our best wishes to go to the Walzers for many joyous, Eric-filled years.

Last but not least, your esteemed secretary was made President last fall of the Columbia Club of Western New York, and has been invited to Arden House, May 24-25, for workshop sessions, by the College Alumni Association. Zowie, keep turned!

Class Correspondent:
Bill Berry
1300 Midland Avenue
Yonkers, N.Y. 10704

'54

If the Class of Destiny were typical of the country at large, Prez Jimmeh would have no problem with burgeoning bureaucracy. Out of three Bicentennial B...s on the federal payroll, two are buzzing out in favor of (presumably) private enterprise. Now, if we can get the word across to our brethren at Harvard...

Lee Abramson is the sole respondent to our plea for news who seems to feel that D.C. hasn't replaced T.V. as the vast wasteland; he replies only that he's statistical adviser for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. As in, Three Miles into Pennsylvania don't go.

Dave Bardin replies equally tersely that he's cuttin' out of the Department of Energy "where I've served as the first administrator of the Economic Regulatory Administration." He might be the guy to tell all about the price of home-heating oil.

Pete Ehrenhaft, befitting his stature as deputy assistant secretary of the Treasury Department, started adding up the dollars and figured he'd do better as a partner in the Washington office of the highly respected law firm of Hughes, Hubbard & Reed. (Whatever happened to Blair?) On leaving Treasury, he received the Exceptional Service Medal, which is a lot heavier than a gold watch. He got a pretty good send-off in The New York Times, but his proudest moment in reading the article, he reports, was being called a "young trade lawyer." "How could I argue?" he asks... Milt Edelin, who prefers the urban to the federal role, reports that he's "presently deputy director of planning for the city and county of San Francisco." Given the rash of recent quakes along the Fault, Milt, I think that's one hell of a vote of confidence in the future.

Reflecting what has to be the current national balance — three working in the private sector vs. four on the public payroll — three of our illustrious troupe report significant progress in their (I hope) chosen careers. Bill Tucker Jr. has been promoted to the assistant to the director of environmental control at Republic Steel in Cleveland (we all have to pay a price for success) and lives where all good Columbia grads hang out, Shaker Heights.

Tom Tecza has advanced to director of product development at Bristol-Myers Products Division... Richard J. Rudolph is now manager for Latin American Sales at Huntington Alloys, Inc. in Houston... And would you believe it? No doctor-doctors and only one lawyer in this haul!

Personal note: Any of you guys have any financial/investment expertise in the travel/tourism/leisure industry? I'm working on a book in this general area, and if you have anything of true value to my six or seven panting readers, I can make you famous, baby. (Would you believe that line still works?)

Class Correspondent:
Gerald Sherwin
181 East 73rd Street
New York, N.Y. 10021

'55

With the 25th Anniversary Reunion

almost upon us, there has been a groundswell of responses from our classmates — both in terms of saying they hope to attend the May 31/June 1 get-together at the Rye Town Hilton plus what they've been doing over the past few years.

The geographical dispersion is quite interesting considering that a good portion of the class came from the East Coast and the Greater New York area.

From the West Coast, we've heard from Harry Scheiber and Jeff Broido, both of whom are residing in La Jolla, California. Harry has been named a "Project 87" Fellow for research on the history of the U.S. Constitution. Chairman of this endeavor is Columbia Professor Richard B. Morris. Jeff, who is manager of R&D for Breeder Reactors of the General Atomic Company, was upset in the 1979 Boston Marathon by a fellow named Bill Rodgers.

From the South, Dr. Colin Clarendon has promised us he will travel from Memphis, Tennessee to be at the reunion. We are also in hope of seeing Richard Knapp, Professor and Chairman, Department of Anesthesiology, West Virginia Medical Center, at the festivities.

A little further north, in Bethesda, Maryland, the Chief of the diabetic branch of the National Institute for Health, Dr. Jesse Roth informs us that he has won numerous prizes and has been lecturing as far off as Madrid. Another lecturer is Dr. Stuart Kaback, a research associate for Exxon in Linden, N.J. who has addressed various groups on patents.

A surprise visitor to the Columbia-Penn basketball game in Philadelphia this past February was Dr. Jerry Plasse with his wife and sons. Jerry, who practices in Maryland, almost received two technical fouls for his vociferous support of the team.

The Midwest claims Dr. Tom Evans, who is "looking forward to seeing... classmates... after 25 years." Only the pictures have gotten older. Tom. Also, Ed Francel, in Elkhart, Indiana, who is manager of marketing research, Ames Division, Miles Laboratories. Ed's oldest daughter is a soph at Notre Dame. His wife is associate professor of nursing at Goshen College.

In the East, the much-travelled Jack Armstrong, after spending a tour for Merrill Lynch in Pittsburgh and Los Angeles, is now manager of the Merrill Lynch office in Morristown, New Jersey. Jack, his wife and seven children make their home in Bernardsville, New Jersey.

Stan Blumberg who is a partner and practicing law in New York City for Olnick, Boxer, Blumberg, Lane & Troy lives in Great Neck, Long Island with his family... as does Dr. Warren Goodman, psychiatrist. Warren's wife is a child psychiatrist. Their oldest daughter is a freshman at Barnard.

Actively working the Columbia College Fund Phonathon was Dr. Allen Hyman. Allen, his wife and their offspring live in New Jersey. He is Director of Surgical Intensive Care Unit, Presbyterian Hospital.

In New England, Hal Kushner, (reliving his days at WKCR as a sports announcer) has informed us that he has a weekend radio program in Natick, Massachusetts with over 80,000 listeners. Hal is a Rabbi at the Temple Israel of Natick, and has written three books. He will be at the reunion.

Dr. Richard Carr, our All-American football player, who was one in a series of great Columbia quarterbacks, tells us he would find it difficult to do what he did in 1953... play every minute of every game (offense and defense). Dick will try to make it to the reunion.

Dr. Norman Goldstein is this reporter's author of the Quarter. Norman has written The Skin You Live In, now working on The Skin You Love In. His exhibit, "The World of Tattoos" is now touring medical meetings and the world. Norman, we hope to see you May 31st.

Let me hear from you... what you're doing... what other classmates are up to... student-athletes you've seen who would be interested in Columbia. Let's not wait another 25 years.

Class Correspondent:
Victor Levin
Hollenberg Levin Marlow & Solomon
170 Old Country Road
Mineola, N.Y. 11501

'56

J. Philip McAleer, associate professor of architectural history at Nova Scotia Technical College, has recently published A Catalogue of Sculpture from Appolonia, a part-city of ancient Cyrene in the course of various ex-

BIO-MAJOR, avail May 19-Aug. 29. Prefer research (5 years experience) laboratory work, but will do any managerial office work or anything else. NYC area - Raymond Yee.

NEW YORK STATE (L.I. and upstate)

PRE-MED, avail two summers. Interested in hospital or lab work, with prospect of research. Syracuse. Joshua L. Cohen.

ECON. MAJOR, avail. May 12-Aug 30. Prefer related work — flexible, Orange County, NY area. I can type. Scott R. Coleman.

AMBITIOUS College soph, pre-law/business; want experience. Avail May 10-Aug 30. Smithtown, L.I. Limited typing. Martin Gulry.

OHIO

ECONOMICS MAJOR, Avail May 19-late Aug. Prefer related work but will do anything. Industrial & landscaping exp., Columbus, Ohio area. Tom Bow.

LEGAL WORK desired, but will do anything. Cleveland area. Avail May 14-Aug 30. Scott L. Gutterman.

BUSINESS MAJOR, avail May 19-late Aug., prefer related work, but have some industrial experience. Dayton-Cincinnati area. Jim McGrath.

PENNSYLVANIA

PITTSBURGH, Pa., need summer job. Can type. June 2-August 14. Will do almost anything. David A. Blaustein.

BIO MAJOR, avail May 15-Aug 20. Emergency Med. Tech, nurse's aide, welcome any job. Philadelphia area. Peter S. Oh.

TEXAS

PRE-LAW/POLI SCI major, avail May 19-Aug 22. Prefer related work or business oriented. Dallas area. Light typing. Don W. Joe.

EXPD BUSINESS office, Biochem lab worker, attending Southwestern Medical School, moving to Dallas after graduation. Needs sophisticated job. Ralph Schapira.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

ECONOMICS MAJOR, available 5/12-8/15. Will do anything. Big and strong; 6'3", 220 lbs. Baltimore-Annapolis-Washington area. Joe Dukkett.

MOONLIGHTER wants part-time/evening position. Downtown Washington D.C. Will do anything. Experienced clerical/security. Available May-August. Karl G. Olson.

CHEM MAJOR: lab exp., dependable — seeks chem, bio, or math related work. May-Aug. Washington D.C. area. John Yin.

AREA OPEN

I'D LIKE to spend the summer as a roadie. Have had experience with small acts and want to go big time. Can travel, not a screw-up. Tom Boston.

PSYCHOLOGY MAJOR, 4.0 average, avail May 22-Aug 22. Interested in research, lab work (especially physiology psychology). Anywhere. Andrew B. Bush.

PHYSICS MAJOR, avail May 14-Sept 4. Prefer computer programming or hardware related jobs. Know seven computer languages. Will also consider physics research related job. Mikhael Bykhovsky.

AVAILABLE May 19-Aug 27. Prefer outdoor work. Will do anything, anywhere. Min. $1000 above room/board. Geoff Cohen.

COLO. HISTORY major, avail May 15-Oct 1. Legal, sales, graphic design, office skills. Industrious, creative, started own business; summer 1980. Anywhere in US, abroad, Colin M. Crawford.

ECONOMICS MAJOR, avail May 20-Aug 20. Practical business exp. desired. Any area. David J. Fein.

FILM/POLITICAL science major, avail mid-May-Aug 30. Prefer related work, but will do anything. Location unimportant. Office skills, references. Charles Fink.

SUPPORT FUTURE Horatio Alger. Enthusiastic, enterprising young man needs breaks. You won't be sorry. Like traveling. Alan Lessoff.

MECH. ENGINEERING, physics, avail June 1-Aug 30. Prefer renewable energy field and "hands-on" exp., or HVAC. Anywhere. Victor Magnotti.

ECONOMICS, computer science major with MBA goal. Interested in any business activity, anywhere. Available May 15-Aug 15. Robert Muska.

ECONOMICS MAJOR, pre-law, graduating 5/80, seeks law-related work, but will consider anything. Bkpg, typing skills. Conversant Portuguese. Anywhere. Avail May 19-Aug 23. Curtis G. Robbins.

PHILOS. MAJOR, available May 20-Aug 21. Will thrive at any challenging position (indoor/outdoor). Prefer West of the Mississippi. Resume avail. Elliott M. Rosenstein.

PHOTOGRAPHY and filmmaking background. Want work in related field — anywhere. Avail May 15-Sept 1. Tom Ross.

NEW YORKER will do anything and go anywhere in U.S. to work for you from May 12-Sept 1. Try me. Teddy Weinberger.

DUAL/SPECIAL LOCATIONS

ENGLISH MAJOR, hard-working, looking for law related job for the summer, NYC or San Francisco area. Robert Bard.

POLI SCI major, avail late May-Aug 30. Interested in law, gov't, related fields. Albany or NYC area. Can type. Gary I. Bergel.

POLI SCI major, avail June 1-Aug 30. Library, office work, photography. Can type and speak French. SF or NY area. Jeffrey Braker.

WANT a human computer? Can type and do anything else, NYC or DC. Avail May 10-Aug 31. John Davis.

MATH/PHIL major, avail May 10-Aug 31. Exp. bicycle mechanic, will do anything interesting or challenging. Boston-NY. James M. Doona.

URBAN STUDIES/ Economics major. Prefer work related to my major. Will be available in either Pittsburgh or NYC area from May 21 to mid-Aug. Paul Flood.

ART HISTORY/English major, May 15-Sept 1. Prefer publishing, law gallery work — or any other. NYC or Milwaukee area. Kirby Gookin.

PREFER COMPUTER programming job. Avail throughout summer. Know Basic, Fortran, Assembly language, PL/1. Can speak Japanese. NY, Japan. Yuji Hakeda.

POLITICAL SCIENCE major interested in international relations. Can handle cars, bars, computers, Francophiles... Avail May 15-Aug 30. New York or D.C. Allen I. Klus.

DEPENDABLE WORKER, Bio major w/ various job experiences. Prefer related work but will do anything between May 19-Aug 22. NY/Long Island. David Ko.

POLITICAL SCIENCE major, avail May 26-Aug 30. Prefer legal work but will do anything, San Diego or D.C. area. Can type and file. Victor McNeil.

CHEM MAJOR, avail May 12-Sept 1. Prefer related lab work but will do anything, NYC or northern N.J. Type 50 wpm. Steve T. Min.

PRE-LAW, proficiency in English, Spanish and Mandarin. Avail May 19-Aug 30. Anywhere in the world, but preferably in NYC. Douglas L. Wong.

SENIOR, TRILINGUAL, desires work in law upon graduation. D.C., NY and midwest. I plan to go to law school. Richard Prieto.

cavations.

From our doctors, we learn that Robert B. Erichson is in the practice of hematology in Stamford and is the director of hematology at Stamford Hospital.

Philip R. Liebson is chairman of the admissions committee and director of the pathophysiology course at Rush Medical College in Chicago. He is also chief of cardiovascular and an associate professor of medicine.

Martin I. Surks is working at Montefiore Hospital and Medical Center and is a professor of medicine at Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

Among my legal colleagues reporting this month is Newton Frohlich from Jerusalem where he is practicing law and writing. Discovery, his new novel, will shortly be published here by Stein & Day.

Russell B. Raymond has become a member of the law firm of Molfetta & Raymond in Panorama City, Cal.

Irwin Gertzog has opened another dental office at 30 Central Park South in Manhattan.

Alan Broadwin has been appointed assistant to the general manager of the Laseronics Division of Cavitron Corporation, in Stamford, Conn.

Steve Easton's wife Anne gave birth to a son, Loren Scott, on June 19, 1979.

The 25th reunion is just around the corner and we're going to need lots of help in organizing it. Please drop me a line to indicate your particular interest in getting it off the ground. We need a chairman and a committee. Please write to me today.

Class Correspondent:
Jerome Farber
414 Tearose Lane
Cherry Hill, N.J. 08003

'57

Class Correspondent:
Barry Dickman
Esanu Katsky & Korins
500 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10036

'58

Among the finalists for the prestigious position of U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of New York was Bernie Nussbaum. The National Law Journal also included Bernie in the impressive list of lawyers contained in "Who's Who in the White Collar Defense Bar." Bernie is a member of the advisory council of the Lionel Trilling Seminars of the Columbia School of International Affairs.

Carl Frischling has become a partner in Spengler Carlson Gubar and Brodsky, and admiralty lawyer Mike Martocci has formed the firm of Martocci and Campbell, also in New York City.

Paul Gomerz is now president of Planned Equity Corp., which specializes in the sale and administration of financial programs (such as life insurance, stock purchase, mutual funds, etc.), sold to employees on a payroll deduction basis.

Steve Jurovics is doing timely research in energy conservation at the IBM L.A. Scientific Center. Steve is also a member of the L.A. County Energy Commission and a director of the San Fernando Valley Fair Housing Council.

Jim Bast has become Senior VP-Finance and Administration for Pitney-Bowes, and a member of the advisory board of the Hartford National Bank's National Division.

Dr. Jim Sternberg, who lives in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., is a nationally-ranked bridge expert.

Capt. Stu Huntington has returned from a naval tour of duty in Japan to the Pentagon, where he is deputy to the National Security Agency's representative to the Defense Dept.

Bernie Einbond's first book of poetry is entitled The Coming Indoors and Other Poems, and is in haiku style. Bernie, who has just completed a three-year term as chairman of the English department at Lehman College of CUNY, has served as president of the Haiku Society of America.

Gordon Gidley is co-owner and publisher of a new publishing company, AAR/Tantulus, as well as editor-in-chief of the National Education Laboratory Publishers.

Bob Waldbaum has been promoted to Clinical Associate Prof. of Urology at Cornell University Medical College. Bob is also president of medical staff at North Shore University Hospital, Manhasset, N.Y.

Class Correspondent:
Edward C. Mendrzycki
Simpson Thacher & Bartlett
1 Battery Park Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10004

'59

When last heard from, Gene and Linda Appel were planning to become farmers — in their spare time — in Eugene, Oregon. When Gene is not farming, he spends his time as Chief Engineer for Brown and Caldwell in Eugene. The Appels' son Mark is following in his father's footsteps by studying engineering (at Cornell), and their daughter Heather intends to become a doctor.

Louis Stephens writes from Mexico City that he is changing professions — gradually — from the business of chemical manufacturing to art. Louis intends to publish a book on art.

Dr. Joel B. Solomon is director of medical education, Boston University Affiliated Community Hospital Residency Program (Brockton Hospital). Joel is also an associate professor of medicine at Boston University School of Medicine.

R. Chandler Nelson recently opened a practice in internal medicine in Mount Vernon, N.Y. Dr. Nelson also serves as medical officer for the Mount Vernon Fire Department.

John Ehrlich is the co-author of Strategies of Community Organization, 3rd Edition, recently published by F.E. Peacock (Ithaca, Illinois).

Harris Brodsky, who is administrator of the David Minnin Rehabilitation Institute, has been appointed to the State Home Health Care Council of New York by Gov. Hugh Carey.

Jerry Wacks writes that George Grunwald and he are over-achievers in the Class of '59. Jerry's note comes from Lexington, Mass., but he intended to do his musing while walking in Yosemite.

'60

Class Correspondent:
Rabbi Stephen C. Lerner
709 Morton Avenue
Franklin Square, N.Y. 11010

Class Correspondent:
Brien Millesi
70 Sherwood Road
Ridgewood, N.J. 07450

'61

Former Yale University General Counsel and Director of Government Relations Jose A. Cabranes was sworn in as U.S. District Judge for Connecticut on December 21, 1979, at the auditorium of the Yale Law School in New Haven, at a ceremony involving other federal and state judges and public officials. From 1973 to 1975 Mr. Cabranes was Special Counsel to the Governor of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico; and prior to that an Associate Professor of Law at Rutgers. He has been prominent in civic affairs in NYC, serving most recently as chairman of the board of directors of the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund; he has also been appointed to a number of part-time positions by the Carter administration. In 1977, he was one of twenty members of the President's Commission on Mental Health. Mr. Cabranes, whose nomination by President Carter was approved without opposition by the Senate, is the first native of Puerto Rico appointed to the Federal bench in the continental U.S. Judge Cabranes was delighted that two of his best friends from Columbia College 1961 were with him on December 21 — Dr. E. Samuel Rofman of Newton Center, Mass., now chief of psychiatry at The Veterans Hospital in Bedford, Mass., and Stuart A. Smith, Assistant to the Solicitor General of the United States. Our distinguished classmate resides in North Haven, Conn., with his wife, the former Susan Beth Feibusch, and daughters Jennifer Ann and Amy Alexandra.

Joseph G. Rosenstein, answering our pleas for current alumni information, writes that he is professor of mathematics at Rutgers University. Joe and wife Sandy are parents of two daughters, Mira, and (I couldn't decipher your handwriting, Joe).

Dr. Edward B. Sanders has been appointed manager of the chemical research division at the Phillip Morris Research Center in Richmond, Va., Dr. Sanders has made significant contributions in the area of organic synthesis, and has been published widely.

Dr. Jeffrey H. Rudell, a specialist in family practice, now resides in Daphne, Alabama. Jeff reports that the use of liquid nitrogen in treatment of various conditions is becoming more prevalent.

Class Notes

David Karp is a nationally known medical malpractice claims manager and claims prevention specialist. Having worked in the medical insurance area for a number of years, David has developed an aggressive claims prevention program which is implemented by his firm, David Karp Associates of San Rafael, Calif., and is tailored to physicians, nurses, medical assistants, hospitals, insurance carriers, clinics and blood banks.

Your correspondent would like to make clear that items concerning classmates who are not lawyers, doctors, professors nor celebrities will also be published herein.

Class Correspondent:
Michael Stone
8 Seymour Place West
Armonk, N.Y. 10504

'62

Dr. Michael A. Bleicher is chief of pediatric surgery and associate professor of surgery at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York City. He and his wife Laurie had a new son, Laurence, in April of last year.

Mark Feldman has been appointed associate general counsel of Teachers Insurance and Annuity Assn. and College Retirement Equities Fund. These are non-profit service organizations providing retirement and insurance plans for educational institutions. Mark and his family live in Eastchester.

Daniel Fife writes from Boston that he is married, with two children, and has just finished a fellowship in clinical epidemiology and allergy.

An update on John Freidin, who has published a book: Twenty Bicycle Tours in Vermont. It covers 800 miles with tours ranging from one to three days.

I got a note and a request from John Golembe. He is currently working in Heidelberg, Germany for the University of Maryland's European Division. This branch provides undergraduate programs to over 35,000 people annually in American military communities throughout Europe. He asked to have his address published so he can hear from classmates. It is: University of Maryland, APO New York 09102.

Alan Harris is an assistant professor in the speech communications department at California State Univ., Northridge, specializing in linguistic programs and language use.

Robert Kaminsky lets us know that he and his family moved to Houston from Florida last year where he is in private practice in obstetrics and gynecology at the Houston Northwest Medical Center.

In Vancouver, British Columbia, lives Crawford Kilian, teaching at Capilano College and writing furiously. He has had three published books in the last year and a half: Go Do Some Great Thing: The Black Pioneers of British Columbia; The Empire of Time, a science fiction novel; Icequake, a disaster novel. He has two other novels in progress.

Peter Kindlmann is currently dividing his time between an independent consulting practice in electronic products and instrumentation and teaching at Yale where he is an adjunct associate professor of engineering and applied science.

Charles Nadler writes that he has helped to found the history and philosophy of science section of the Iowa Academy of Sciences.

Phil Orlick coaches singers in jazz and blues styling in his own voice-training studio in Manhattan. He is also a coordinator of Identity House, a gay and bisexual counseling service in Greenwich Village.

Out in Los Angeles, Melvin Scheer is an infectious disease consultant and a marathon runner.

Carl Schubert lives in Pittsburgh now, where he is a senior project engineer for D'Appolonia Consulting Engineers, managing geothermal and other engineering projects.

Allen Young writes that he has his first regular job in twelve years as a reporter for the Athol (Mass.) News. He is a member of the Board of Health and Conservation Commission in the Town of Royalston, Mass., where he lives without electricity or television in a handmade octagonal house.

Thanks to all of you who wrote to me, and thanks to the rest of you who will write so I can fill up the next column.

Class Correspondent:
Robert Heller
Kramer, Levin, Nessen, Kamin & Soll
919 Third Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10022

'63

Some of you actually read this column. I know because you have told me so. How reassuring — not to be a tree falling inaudibly in an empty forest. Buoyed by this thought, I bring you our Spring 1980 career notes.

Walter Stein called a while ago to report that he is now administrative assistant to the president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. Based here in New York at the Union's headquarters, Walter lives in Englishtown, New Jersey with his wife, Ellen and two children (Rachel, 7 and Michael, 1), although he has to travel a lot on business, he reports that life in New York is far more settled than it was a few years ago when he spent three years living in Zaire.

When last heard from, Stephen M. Cahn had completed 7 years as chairman of the department of philosophy at the University of Vermont and was beginning a one year term as program officer at the Exxon Education Foundation. Steve now reports that he too has settled in New York as associate director for humanities at the Rockefeller Foundation. Also of interest, his most recent book, Education and the Democratic Ideal, published by Nelson-Hall, contains a number of references to the faculty and curriculum of Columbia College during the early 1960's. He tells me that the book has received an excellent response from educators around the country.

Conrad Kottak is Professor of Anthropology at the University of Michigan and lives in Ann Arbor. He and wife, Betty, who recently began a full-time job as social worker, have two children, Juliet, 11 and Nicholas, 8. Conrad's books, Anthropology and Cultural Anthropology were published by Random House in 1978 and 1979. A third book, The Past and the Present: History, Ecology and Cultural Variation in Highland Madagascar, is to be published in 1980 by the University of Michigan Press.

More faculty notes: Updating an item which appeared here a few months back, David Josephson writes that in July 1979 he was promoted to associate professor of music and chairman of the music department at Brown University. Stephen A. Feig is professor of radiology at the Thomas Jefferson University School of Medicine in Philadelphia. His research activities involve development of low-dose mammographic systems for early breast cancer detection.

David B. Cohen reports that his book, Sleep and Dreaming: Origins, Nature and Functions, was just published by Pergamon Press.

Elias Rosenblatt has transferred from his flight surgeon job with a patrol squadron to "the more sedate life" of an ophthalmologist at the Naval Regional Medical Center in Jacksonville, Florida.

Gus Sayer is now assistant superintendent for curriculum in the Weston, Massachusetts public schools.

Ira Epstein has joined the law firm of Goldberg, Previant, Velman, Gratz & Miller in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

And last, but by no means least, as a measure of our collective rites of passage, William Goebel reports that he is now in his third season as soccer coach of his son's little league team. Apparently, on the third try he got it right — Bill says that this year the team went undefeated. I had the same experience three years ago with my son's basketball team and did the only logical thing to cap my success — retired.

Class Correspondent:
Gary Schonwald
919 Third Avenue, 11th Floor
New York, N.Y. 10022

'64

Michael Belais Friedman, '70MA, is the executive office coordinator of the Jewish Board of Family and Children's Services in New York City. His father Alfred H. Friedman '30, '33MA, is now completing his twentieth year as teaching principal of the Friedman School of Remedial Instruction in Hadden Heights, N.J.

Arthur L. Schwartz of Potomac, Md., was appointed chief of the Glaucoma service of the Washington Hospital Center.

Bruce M. Hyman, M.D. of New York City is practicing ophthalmology and eye surgery at 133 East 64th Street.

Albert Reff of Marina Del Rey, California, is in practice as an orthopedic surgeon in that city, specializing in reconstructive surgery and joint replacement.

John Velonis of Lusby, Maryland, is working for Sperry Univac on ASW programs, living on Chesapeake Bay near Solomons Island.

Class Correspondent:
Robert J. Reza
120 South Gillette Avenue
Bayport, N.Y. 11705

'65

The reunion questionnaire yielded a huge pile of class notes. For those of you who submitted information which is not included here... don't worry: It will come up on later reports. For those of you who haven't submitted information to me, hurry up and send it in!

Ethan Geto states that he is now executive assistant to the attorney general of the State of New York. Apparently, he was a campaign manager for Attorney General Bob Abrams '60 in 1978 and helped or organized the "Draft Kennedy" movement in New York State.

A. Thaddeus Perry is now a deputy prosecutor in Indianapolis. He was the editor of an estate planning looseleaf service. Good luck to you...

My old friend, David Berke, reports that he is in cardiology practice in Fremont, California. His wife Iris (Polk, B'66) and he now have two daughters, Elizabeth and Anne.

Continuing in the medical theme, Bob Modlinger is now chief of hypertension at the V.A. Medical Center in East Orange, N.J. Apparently, he is a teaching consultant at the Mountain-side Hospital in Montclair, also. He was recently promoted to associate professor of medicine at the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, and to fellowship in the American College of Physicians.

I, myself, have recently been named the Director of the Medical Intensive Care Unit at the new SUNY Stony Brook University Hospital. I find this an exciting addition to my professional responsibilities. If any of you would like a tour of the facility, come on out, call me up at University Hospital extension 1767.

Robert C. Kolodny was co-author of a Textbook of Sexual Medicine. He is finishing the term as chairperson of the Ethics Committee for the American Association of Sex Educators, Counselors and Therapists. He is currently the associate director of training at the Masters & Johnson Institute in St. Louis.

William I. Brenner is presently assistant clinical professor of thoracic surgery at the University of California, L.A. He was appointed director of cardiac surgery in the Southern California region for the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Care Program.

Walter Reich is now research psychiatrist and program director for the Staff College, National Institute of Mental Health. He is also lecturer in psychiatry, Yale University School of Medicine, and chairman of the medical and biological sciences at Washington School of Psychiatry. He is presently residing in Chevy Chase, Maryland.

Daniel Roses is now Associate Professor of Surgery at New York University Medical Center and Attending Surgeon at the University Hospital at Bellevue. He is married (Helene) and has three children, Arthur Lawrence, Robert Edward, and Rebecca Jill.

Robert J. Szarnicki states that after two years in San Francisco he almost qualifies as a native. His practice in pediatric and adult cardiovascular surgery is growing nicely. He is fortunate to be part of a superb team with an outstanding history at the Presbyterian Hospital in San Francisco.

I know this column was mostly medical. Next report we'll try to share the wealth. I look forward to meeting you at the Rytown Hilton in Westchester County at the spring reunion.

Class Correspondent:
Bruce LaCarrubba
LaCarrubba, Mattia & Meltzer
42 Trinity Street
Newton, N.J. 07860

'66

A note from Dr. Joseph H. Albeck: "Expect to move to Boston area in the spring of 1980 to take position as director of occupational psychiatry at Charles River Associates. Wife and 3 children looking forward to return to snow country."

Alexander Auerback, formerly a financial writer for the Los Angeles Times, has been named editor in chief and associate publisher of Boxoffice magazine, a business weekly covering the motion picture industry. Boxoffice is an affiliate of Vance Publishing Corp., Chicago.

Mark Berger writes: "After Columbia, I attended Yale Law School and served as New Haven Police Attorney. Presently I am an associate professor of law at UMKC Law School. I've just had a book published on the self-incrimination privilege titled Taking the Fifth, (D.C. Heath & Co., Lexington, Mass.). I still keep up some effort at fencing (the sport, not stolen goods) as does my wife, Kathy (sister of Joseph Naiven '65C). In fact, we were Kansas Division men's and women's saber champions before the recent arrival of our second daughter."

Jim Furman is the founder and president of Furman Sound, Inc., engaged in the manufacture of specialized accessories used in large sound systems, recording studios, broadcasting and "in the homes of dedicated hi-fi nuts."

Dr. Herbert A. Hochman is now practicing dermatology in New York City and was just elected treasurer of the Dermatologic Society of Greater New York.

Perry Ketchum is a writer and editor specializing in the economics and politics of the developing world. Currently U.S. Editor of Mideast Markets, a biweekly newsletter owned by the Financial Times of London, he has covered major economic stories of Middle East development from the U.S. and abroad. Concurrently, as managing editor of Creative Associates, a Washington-based consulting firm, he is designing and managing a publications group for the Agency for International Development.

Robert A. Klein reports that he is now living in Beverly Hills, California and has joined the legal staff of American International Pictures, Inc.

At last report, Mark Levine had just established a publishing house, Scarf Press. His first book is Picture Stories from the Bible: The Old Testament in Full-Color Comic-Strip Form for children. Mark organized Scarf Press after spending nine years practicing corporate and securities law at a Wall Street law firm, White & Case, and one year at Columbia's Graduate School of Journalism.

Frank B. Newell is now administrative assistant to the Governor of the State of Arkansas.

Anthony F. Starace is an Alexander von Humboldt Fellow at Albert-Ludwigs-University in Freiburg-im-Breisgau, West Germany. He is on sabbatical from the physics department of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, doing research in theoretical atomic physics and "enjoying the cross-country skiing in the Black Forest immensely."

Dr. Walter Vom Saal is professor of psychology at Millersville State College, Millersville, Pa., and this year was awarded a Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Distinguished Teaching Award.

Steve Weinberg is Director of Community Action Services doing community and economic development consulting in Scranton, Pa.

Pete Wernick and his wife are living near Niwot, Colorado where he works on his music, writes pro-environment propaganda and plays in his band "Hot Rize." Pete first gained national recognition with his former group "Country Cooking," a leading exponent of innovative approaches to bluegrass during their five years together (they recorded four albums). He writes "things have progressed since the Junior class folk concert. Our group has been together 2 years, been to 24 states so far, with an offer for a European tour...."

NOTE: Will those of you I contacted during the recent Columbia College Phonathon be kind enough to jot down and send in the biographical information you conveyed to me for inclusion in our next issue. I very much enjoyed talking with people I've neither seen nor heard from in 13½ years!!! If you would like me to include your phone number in future Class Notes to facilitate communication, please send it along.

Class Correspondent:
Kenneth L. Haydock
11 South Ferris
Irvington, N.Y. 10533

'67

Your correspondent is happy to report that Chet Stone is alive and well and practicing medicine in Randolph, N.J. In response to an inquiry in this column a few issues back as to his whereabouts, Chet wrote in to report himself married to the former Donna Greenfield of Riverdale, N.Y., and the father of Eric (8) and Michael (5). Still no word on Frank Chin, however.

Two other classmates with M.D.'s and families of four are Andrew Barcan (married to Marcia, father of Jessica (5) and Abigail (3)) and practicing pediatric and adolescent medicine in Thousand Oaks, California, and David Bessman (who went from P&S to USC to the National Institutes of Health to John Hopkins and now teaches medicine in Galveston, Texas) who is married to Joan and has two children, one of whom is "partial to the pastries at the Green Tree."

Anne and Elliot Bien have moved, with son Jordan (15 months) from Chicago to San Francisco; Elliot is an attorney with Cullinan, Brown & Helmer, Chris and Rick Bullen report the arrival of Valerie Christine Bullen on October 18, 1978; they live in Woodside, California.

Your correspondent thoroughly enjoyed dinner recently with Phil Greco during a trip by Phil to New York; he is a psychiatrist now involved in family therapy and biofeedback work in Alexandria, Virginia, where he lives with his wife and family. Brant Fries, an Associate Professor at Yale's School of Organization and Management, reports that Kyra Heather Fries, the Fries' first child, was born July 2, 1979.

One of five members of the new Washington, D.C. law firm of Becker & Chameides is classmate Tom Fortuin. Kent Hall now lives in St. Louis and is translating Beowulf into Kurdish.

Mary Ellen and Roger Hartman brought back a remarkable "import" from a recent assignment in Melbourne, Australia: a daughter, Katherine Ann. Roger is now with Crocker National Bank, handling Asian firms with facilities in Southern California. The Hartmans live in Los Angeles. Jeff Nightingale now practices ophthalmology and oculoplastic surgery in New York City. Karen and Marty Oster live in Armonk, N.Y., with their two daughters; the second, Michelle Rae, was born October 15, 1979. Marty, an oncologist, teaches at P&S.

Stan Rosenbaum also teaches at P&S — anesthesiology — and performs cardiac surgery. His wife, Paula Hyman teaches history at Columbia. Their daughters, Judith (6) and Adina (3), are "currently experts in the playgrounds of Riverside Park."

The best-story-of-the-issue award goes to David Rubin who (apart from being original enough not to be practicing law or teaching medicine) was recently on leave from the Journalism Department at NYU to be on the President's Three Mile Island Commission! David claims not to glow in the dark.

Eugene Schwartz asks to hear from alumni who can assist with advice on "the humane care of the aged and handicapped." Gene lives in Spring Valley, N.Y.

John Shayner went on from the College to complete a Ph.D. in Classics at Stanford in 1973 and now teaches English at Centenary College for Women; John lives in Belvidere, N.J.

A resident of Studio City, California, trying to convince his Eastern friends "to drop their Woody Allen view of the West Coast" is CBS record producer Tom Werman. And a partner in the law firm of Solomon & Zimmerman in Denver, Colorado is Steven L. Zimmerman.

Not on the mailing list for CCT or not mentioned in Class Notes? Write in!

Class Correspondent:
Edward Rosen
38 West 31st Street, #1106
New York, N.Y. 10001

'68

Lawrence Stallman's dad, Irv, reports that Larry is a director of the Hugenot Center of New Rochelle, N.Y., an outpatient clinic of Harlem Valley State Hospital of Westchester County, N.Y., after getting a Ph.D. in psychology from Temple University. Larry lives and plays in Yonkers, N.Y. Thanks, Irv; please excuse the delay, your original letter was misplaced.

Donald L. Liberman is a free-lance producer and director, directing "The Glass Menagerie," and co-directing a short subject series, "The Folkbook," for WPNE-TV of Green Bay, Wisconsin, which has won awards both in the U.S. and abroad. Currently living in Evanston, Illinois, he's also artist-in-residence at Lake Forest College in Lake Forest, Ill.

Bob Kaye is a school psychologist in the N.Y.C. public schools; very happily married, he lives in Bayside, N.Y.

Dr. Charles I. Jarowski is an assistant attending physician at the New York Hospital, specializing in medical oncology and hematology. Living in Manhattan, he is an ardent Columbia basketball fan; he and wife Joan have two sons, Charles Leo and Peter Damian.

Alan H. Seplowitz, M.D. is an assistant professor in clinical medicine at Columbia P&S, and has a private practice in internal medicine in New York City.

Steve Ross of New York City has been elected executive VP of the International E.D.P. Auditors Association.

Nigel Paneth, M.D. is teaching epidemiology at the Columbia School of Public Health; living in New York City.

Glen I. Reeves, M.D. will have a job with the department of oncology at Hadassah Hospital in Jerusalem, Israel, in 1980. He and wife Jane have visited Israel twice before, have a son, Michael, and a daughter, Sarah.

Jan Kalicki is foreign policy advisor to Sen. Edward Kennedy, and presumably would have an important position in the government, should Senator Kennedy be elected president in 1980; living in Alexandria, Va.

Neil H. Goran, M.D. is an internist in Oakland, California; living in Berkeley.

Dr. Steven James Taylor, after graduating from P&S in 1972, was a family practice resident at the Medical University of South Carolina Teaching Hospitals in Charleston to 1975; now has a private practice in Logan, Utah.

Class Correspondent:
Michael Oberman
Kramer, Levin, Nessen, Kamin & Sall
919 Third Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10022

'69

Reunion (Reprise): Inspired by the success of last Spring's tenth reunion brunch, our class held an eleventh anniversary dinner on Dean's Day. Eighteen classmates (plus 12 wives or dates) attended at the Kings Table: Jim Alloy, Richard Altabel, Johan Andersen, Fred Bartek, Ira Cohen, Steve Ditlea, John Fogarty, Jerry Gliklich, Mark Leeds, Jim Liana, Joe Materna, Dick Menaker, Jerry Nadler, Michael Oberman, Irv Ruderman, Dan Weingrad, Stark Whiteley and Eric Witkin. The food, table settings and service that night proved once again that the Kings Table is one of the very best dining spots in John Jay Hall (even if, apparently, the university heating system is not connected to it).

Dean Coltery joined us for dinner and, in his amiable but forthright manner, discussed a range of current College topics: campus housing (very tight); co-education (still unlikely); fund raising (going well, but more money is needed); today's student ("happy"); student government (active again); quality of life on campus (biggest issue). And in other news....

Personals: Eric Witkin, a tireless worker for Columbia (vice president of Alumni Association; 1960's Decade Fund Chairman) and one of the class' most eligible bachelors, will soon become ineligible. He'll marry Regina Bilotta in June. Mark Leeds and wife, Marian, joyfully announce the birth in January of Elizabeth Rachel Demyen Leeds.

Publication: Hoffer Kaback's article, "Behind the Balance Sheet: A Case Study in Accounting Analysis," appeared in the January 1980 issue of The Accounting Review. Hoffer, who is with Ivan F. Boesky & Co. (a firm specializing in securities risk arbitrage), demonstrates the nature and extent of information that can be generated from purely public sources.

Positions: William Handelman is currently assistant professor of medicine and clinical director, medical service, at the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center, in Denver.

Barry Hamilton is Assistant State's Attorney for Montgomery County, Maryland. He has been directing music for a local community theater; recent productions include "Kiss Me Kate," "Starting Here, Starting Now," and "On a Clear Day." Jerry Nagler is an internist and gastroenterologist in private practice in Manhattan, and on staff at New York Hospital — Cornell Medical Center and Lenox Hill Hospital. Robert Mueller is editor of Office Products Dealer, a trade magazine for office equipment, furnishings and systems industry; he lives in La Grange, Illinois. Robert Rabinoff writes that he is associate professor and chairman, department of physics, and dean of faculty at Maharishi International University, Fairfield, Iowa. He is doing research on the nature and dynamics of consciousness, especially as manifested in physical sciences.

Participation: Our class steering committee is planning to sponsor future get-togethers like last year's brunch and this year's dinner and would like to develop a mailing list of those classmates interested in attending reunion events. If you would like to receive notice of future events (or to help to plan them), please advise me or class president Joe Materna (90 Park Avenue, N.Y., N.Y. 10016).

And remember, you, too, can be featured in CCT. Just let us know your news.

Class Correspondent:
Peter N. Stevens
12 West 96th Street, Apt. 13D
New York, N.Y. 10025

'70

Class Correspondent:
Jim Shaw
3611 T Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20007

'71

Bob Arant, who received both a B.Arch. and M.S. (Urban Design) from Pratt Institute in Brooklyn in 1977, was an architectural designer-draftsman with David Paul Helpen Associates for two years but recently switched to Swanke Hayden Connell & Partners. He's working on the design of the new offices of Shearson, Loeb, Rhoades stockbrokers, on the 101st through 106th floors of the World Trade Center. Speaking of Shearson, also involved in financial firms are two recent history Ph.D.'s: John A. Carey (Harvard '79, dissertation on judicial reform in France before the revolution), is a security analyst for the Pioneer group of mutual funds in Boston. Philip Bartolf, finishing his dissertation now, is a commercial insurance underwriter for Chubb & Son in California.

Mark Allen is back again at Caltech, this time as a research fellow in the Division of Geological and Planetary Sciences. He researches the chemistry of the atmospheres of Earth and the other planets, e.g., the depletion of terrestrial ozone by halocarbons and the question of what makes the Great Red Spot of Jupiter red. David Ellis, meanwhile, is now working on software development projects for Bell Labs in Holmdel, N.J.

"After eight years of a 9-5 job, the relative freedom and irresponsibility of student life proved too attractive to resist" to Julio Rivera, who is now a student in Yale's School of Organization & Management.

Also in New England is Robert Pu, a lawyer in Brattleboro, Vermont, and appointed by Governor Richard Snelling to serve as chairman of the District II Environmental Commission. It conducts hearings on prospective construction to ascertain whether a developer's plans meet the criteria set by the state's environmental laws (Act 250).

Other lawyers include Jeff Fowley, now with Orrick, Herrington, Rowley & Sutcliffe in San Francisco. But several classmates have started their own firms: Roger Leifer and James Randel have formed Randel & Leifer, for the general practice of law in Westport, Connecticut. They specialize in real estate, litigation, corporate and entertainment law. Michael B. Kusin, formerly in-house counsel for Kaneb Services, Inc., has founded a firm specializing in corporate and related matters, at 1500 Lummas Tower, 3000 South Post Oak Road, Houston, Texas 77056, (713) 850-1092.

A trio of psychiatrists report: Stanley N. Caroff is a research fellow in the department of psychiatry at the U. of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, and happily married to Rosalind Berkowitz Caroff, M.D. Milt Erman has moved to Dallas, where he's assistant professor of psychiatry at Southwestern Medical School, U. of Texas. And Howard Dolinsky, having completed a residency in psychiatry at UCLA, is in private practice and doing a part-time fellowship in psychiatry at UCLA.

But not all our doctors are psychiatrists. Vincent R. Bonagura is a second year fellow in immunology at Columbia P&S. Marc A. Borenstein has been accepted for fellowship training beginning in July in hematology-oncology at the Mayo Clinic Graduate School of Medicine.

Norman Corenthal reports: "My wife (Deborah Abramson) and I ecstatically announce the birth of our daughter, Kate Elizabeth Corenthal, on September 5, 1979." Norman still practices criminal law.

Keep your letters coming.

Class Correspondent:
Dr. Paul S. Appelbaum
1648 Massachusetts Ave., #56
Cambridge, Mass. 02138

'72

Mike Gerrard, whose name evokes memories of Spectators past, wrote to say that he is now practicing law with the Manhattan firm of Berle, Butzel, Kass and Case, specializing in environmental law. He is also chairman of the Permanent Citizens Advisory Committee to the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, and does an occasional piece of writing for such publications as Esquire and The New York Times.

Class Notes

Brian O'Neill, having earned an M.A. with distinction from the University of Essex, is now completing his Ph.D. in anthropology at the London School of Economics. His master's thesis described the literature and folklore of a Spanish village, while his doctoral tome will be based on two years of field work in Portugal, supported by a fellowship from the Gulbenkian Foundation.

Scott Beasley received his M.D. from Yale in 1977. Now completing a residency in pediatrics at the U. of Calif. Center for Health Sciences, he will soon be returning to Yale for a fellowship in neonatology.

Bernard Fishman, a doctoral candidate at Penn, is now in Luxor, Egypt as an epigrapher for the Epigraphic Survey of the Oriental Institute of the U. of Chicago. When he completes his 6-month tour of duty recording inscriptions from the ancient monuments in the Luxor area, he will be moving to Chicago to continue working with the Institute.

Class Correspondent:

Barry Etra
209 East 59th Street, Apt. 2R
New York, N.Y. 10022

Jeffrey Gross is currently finishing his second-year medicine residency at the Univ. of Pennsylvania Hospital; he will begin a three-year neurology residency there in July.

Ray Kania is non-medical director of the Kennewick (Washington) General Hospital Emergency Dept.

Let me hear from more of you, please? It only takes a minute to let me know what is happening — thanks.

Class Correspondent:
Fred Bremer
532 West 111th Street
New York, N.Y. 10025

Since the 86-page Class Directory went to press, I have received over a hundred returned questionnaires and notes from our regional class correspondents. There is no way to even quickly cover everyone, so you'll have to wait for the forthcoming Class Newsletter for the complete story.

While in Israel, I had a chance to speak with David Katz and found that his doctoral dissertation on 17th century Jews in England will soon be published by Oxford University Press. I was reminded that two other classmates have written on similar topics: Jeremy Cohen (our class salutatorian who is now a professor at Cornell) and Leon Wieseltier (one of our Kelleths who is doing a Ph.D. at Harvard).

A lot of letters have come in from classmates who have become clerks for judges around the country: Noam Stamper (Salem, Oregon), Dewey Cole (Beaumont, Texas), Don Koblit (D.C.), and Paul Diamond (Philadelphia). I also heard that Abbe Lowell was recently appointed by Attorney General Civiletti to be one of his special assistants.

I'm sure you all are curious to know which of our pre-meds went into gynecology: Burt Rochelson is delving in this area at Long Island Jewish Hospital. Jules Allen and David Mandelbaum (both at P&S) are pediatricians, David Lessing is an orthopedic surgeon at NYU, and Michael Handler is doing general surgery at Bellevue. Among the many residents in internal medicine are Harry Staszewski (North Shore Hospital on Long Island) and Peter Meyers (working for the Navy in San Diego).

There seem to be a number of classmates working in the economic development field. Richard Arthur is attempting the impossible as a project archeology department at Bryn Mawr College. In 1925, he announced the discovery of the first known Greek settlement in Spain, dating from 700 B.C. In addition to more than 20 works on classical archeology, Mr. Carpenter authored three volumes of poetry and several travel books. There are no immediate survivors.

1911

William Newton Best, retired Marine Corps officer, La Jolla, Calif. Entering the Marine Corps in 1916 as a 2nd Lieutenant, General Best advanced through the grades until his retirement after World War II as a Brigadier General.

W. Barton Eddison, inventor, mechanical engineer, yachtsman and banker, in Bridgeport, Conn., on January 1, 1980. Inventor of the quick-timing alarm clock and contributor in the creation of high-speed machinery for the packaging industry, Mr. Eddison was also active in banking and yachting; he was a commodore of the Northeast Harbor (Me.) sailing fleet and president of the Irvington National Bank and Trust Company in Irvington, N.Y. He is survived by his wife, Mary Corbin Eddison.

Peter Grimm, real estate expert, civic leader, New York City, February 16, 1980. President of William A. White and Sons, Mr. Grimm assembled the properties that became the entire site for Rockefeller Center and helped found the Citizen's Budget Commission, a non-partisan association of business and real estate interests. A member of the John Jay Associates, Mr. Grimm was a president of the New York Real Estate Board and the New York Chamber of Commerce, and served in a variety of roles under mayors from Jimmy Walker to Robert F. Wagner, Jr., and under presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Dwight D. Eisenhower. Survivors include his son, Peter Grimm, Jr., of Wilton, Conn.

1912

Julius V. Bunzl, lawyer and retired New York City official, New York, N.Y. After working for more than twenty years with the Department of Finance in New York City, Mr. Bunzl retired in 1963 as a city tax investigator. Survived by his wife, Mrs. Elsie Pollak Bunzl, New York, N.Y.

manager for the South Bronx Development Office. Out in Ann Arbor, Michael Wolkoff has a HUD grant to research the effects of tax abatement policies on urban economic development. On the academic side, we find Richard Pernicaro teaching urban and regional economics at Stockton State College in Pomona, New Jersey. Arthur Ambrose is working for a consulting firm in Lowell, Mass. doing economic feasibility studies of government contracts.

For The Graduate in the 1960s, "plastics" might have been the booming field, but for the early 1980s the field seems to be computers. Sal Lanuto is developing new computer terminals on Long Island, Mark Goldstein is designing computer systems for Standard Oil out in San Francisco, Tom Eccardt is a computer analyst in Manhattan, and Ted Markowitz is a computer programmer for Columbia. Even in one specific area — electronic funds transfers — we have a large representation in Manhattan alone: Ken Cirillo (Citibank), Don Ferruggia (Irving Trust), and John Makar (Morgan Guarantees).

If you think you have to deal with a lot of crazy people, think of our classmates who are psychiatrists and psychologists. Jeff Rosecan (at P&S), Jon Berlin (at the University of Colorado Medical Center) and Bernard Rosenberg (at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston) are all psychiatrists, and Steve Schiff (Adelphi) and Greg Kuhlman (CUNY) are both doing Ph.D.'s in clinical psychology. Ira Packer tells us that he is also a clinical psychologist (in Ann Arbor), and occasionally give psychological evaluations of defendants in court.

Lastly, some miscellaneous notes. Steve Silberman has moved from Wall Street to Chicago to start his own firm — he tells us he's a "market-maker on the Chicago Board of Options." Alan Hecht (Manhattan) is no longer making records — he's into video productions for cable syndicates. John Harrington has completed his Ph.D. in English at Rutgers, and is currently teaching there. Arthur Schwartz (Brooklyn) is a labor attorney "representing only unions and employees," and soon will open his own firm. And yes — Zev Stern continues his doctoral research at Brooklyn College on "the effect of ethanol on lipogenesis in mouse liver."

You'll have to wait for the next newsletter to find out who has recently been married, who has had their first, second, and — yes — third offspring, and the seemingly infinite number of job and address changes. In the meantime, please send in additions and corrections to the directory.

Class Correspondent:

Gene Hurley
1380 Riverside Drive, Apt. 5C
New York, N.Y. 10033

David Goldberg, now in the auction business in New Orleans, wrote in to say he was "shocked" at the dearth of Class of '75 news in the last issue (the column didn't appear). The truth is more complicated, as usual. I was moving at deadline time and in the shuffle lost the one piece of correspondence I had received, a letter from a Navy ensign. Ensign, if you recognize yourself, please write again. In any case, this time 'round there's plenty of news.

George Robinson continues his tenacious climb to the top of the publishing ladder — he's now a full editor with Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, Inc.

Marc Kozinn is now Dr. Marc Kozinn of Euclid, Ohio. Marc graduated from SUNY-Downstate Medical School in May '79, and is presently a fellow in internal medicine at the Cleveland Clinic. He's also engaged to be married to Betty Rogers of Buffalo, N.Y. The wedding is scheduled for this coming August 2.

Neil Selinger is an associate with the New York law firm of Lowey, Dannen-

Obituaries

1900

Melville H. Cane, lawyer, poet, editor, New York, N.Y., on March 10, 1980. Believed to be Columbia College's oldest alumnus, Melville Cane enjoyed a dual career as legal counsel to such writers as Sinclair Lewis, Thomas Wolfe, T.S. Eliot and William S. Burroughs, and as a published poet in his own right. A founding partner of the law firm of Ernst, Cane, Berner & Gitlin, and a board member of Harcourt Brace for over 40 years (continuing a College friendship with Alfred Harcourt and Donald Brace of the Class of 1904), Mr. Cane also wrote some 13 books of poetry and essays and edited several anthologies. Last April, shortly before his 100th birthday, he visited the Columbia campus to open the Melville Cane Centenary Exhibit, in Butler Library. A member of the John Jay Associates, Mr. Cane received the University's medal for excellence in 1948 and the Alumni Medal in 1933. Survivors include two daughters, Katherine Detre and Mary Robinson, both of Denver, Colo., and a brother, William G. Cane '09, New York, N.Y.

1903

Henry K. Heyman, lawyer, New York, N.Y., on October 3, 1979.

1906

Charles O.C. Sloane, management engineer, West Orange, N.J., on October 31, 1979. For over 25 years, Mr. Sloane worked for Emerson Consultants in New York City. He is survived by his daughter, Miss M.S. Sloane and his son, Charles O.C. Sloane '37.

1908

Hyman Cohen, physician, New York City.

Edward Curtis Rouse, lawyer, New York, N.Y. A 1910 graduate of the Law School, Mr. Rouse was for over thirty years a member of the New York firm of Cromwell, Rouse & Varian.

1909

Rhys Carpenter, archeologist, writer, and classics scholar, in Devon, Pa., on January 2, 1980. A leading authority on the study of ancient Mediterranean civilizations, Mr. Carpenter spent over forty years as head of the Arthur W. Macmahon, retired educator, public policy consultant, in Kennet Square, Pa., on February 4, 1980. An influential teacher and leader in the development of public administration as an academic discipline, Dr. Macmahon lectured on academic and public issues throughout the nation and taught American government at Columbia for forty-five years, retiring in 1958 as Eaton Professor of Public Administration. He was a consultant to many governmental bodies, and served on numerous academic and public commissions. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Edna Macmahon, his son, Alan Macmahon and his daughter, Gail Cornara.

Charles W. Person, retired association official, New Rochelle, N.Y. Mr. Person worked from 1920 to 1953 as advertising manager of the American Gas Association in New York City.

1913

William L. Berk, retired lawyer, Northport, N.Y.

1914

Harold J. Miller, retired banker, University City, Mo. For many years, Mr. Miller was vice president of the corporate trust department of the St. Louis Union Trust Company in St. Louis.

Solo S. Roth, real estate executive, Yonkers, N.Y. Mr. Roth was for many years a partner with the Sherwood Real Estate Company in New York City.

1915

Robert Ogden DuBois, retired physician, Redding, Conn., in September, 1979. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Robert O. DuBois of Redding, Conn., and his brother, Arthur M. DuBois of New York City.

Ernest H. Edinger, lawyer, Richmond, Va., on January 15, 1979. Survived by his wife, Mrs. Ernest H. Edinger, Richmond, Va.

1916

Henry Starr, New York, N.Y. Survived by his wife, Mrs. Madeleine B. Starr, New York, N.Y.

Carl Condit Van Ness, retired book publisher, Scottsdale, Arizona, on November 17, 1979. For many years, Mr. Van Ness was an editor and executive for Appleton-Century-Crofts, Inc. in New York City, retiring in 1962 as vice-president.

1917

John P. Knox, lawyer, Greenwich, Conn., on January 5, 1980. A former Greenwich Town Court judge and justice of the peace, Mr. Knox was a senior associate in the firm of Knox and Miller. He is survived by his brother, Robert Kenneth Knox, Bronx, N.Y.

Henry Pleus, lawyer, Brooklyn, N.Y.

John U. Wegener, retired air force colonel. Tampa, Fla., on February 2, 1980.

1918

Ross A. Abel, Sr., Thompson, Conn.

Walter C. Adams, retired business executive. Mr. Adams was a former assistant treasurer of Aircro Inc. in Montvale, N.J.

Charles S. Ascher, lawyer, city planner, political scientist, New York, N.Y., on February 4, 1980. An early leader in progressive housing planning, Mr. Ascher gave up his law practice soon after he began it to pursue what became a life-long interest in city planning. He played a role in the creation of two communities — Sunnyside Gardens in Queens, N.Y. and Radburn, N.J. — now considered among the boldest models for urban and suburban community planning in the 20th century, forerunners of later plans for the New Deal "Greenbelt" towns; for Osaka, Japan; for Chandigarh, India; and for Brasilia. The town of Radburn recently honored Mr. Ascher's contribution by renaming its main park after him. In the 1930's and 1940's, he directed several different housing and planning agencies in Chicago and New York. After World War II, he was named executive officer for programs of UNESCO, in Paris. Upon his return, Mr. Ascher joined the political science department of Brooklyn College, where he was named chairman in 1949 and continued to teach until his retirement in 1966. A much-admired lecturer and consultant, he also helped to found Syracuse University's Maxwell School of Public Administration. Mr.

berg & Knapp, specializing in securities litigation. His wife Judy (B'75) is in her third year at NYU Law School. The couple lives in Brooklyn.

Philip Roth will complete the Ph.D. part of an M.D.-Ph.D. program at P&S this spring, and return to the school in the fall for two years of M.D. training. He writes: "Essential to my surviving all these years has been my marriage to Ruth Tepler (B'76) three years ago."

Bob Schneider received his J.D. from Penn Law School and his MBA from Wharton Graduate School in May '79. He is now an associate with the New York law firm of Hawkins, Delafield & Wood.

Joshua Tropper is also lawyering, for the firm of Seward & Kissel, New York.

Kenneth Scherzer is "still a graduate student" and teaching fellow, working on his doctorate in American history at Harvard. He and his wife Georgina (B'76) are resident tutors at Harvard's Mather House.

Dov Fisch is a rabbinical student at Yeshiva University, doing graduate work in Jewish history. His community activities include executive committee work at the American Zionist Federation, and New York City Area Policy Board #7.

David Weiner is a resident at Montefiore Hospital Medical Center in the Bronx. David received his M.D. from Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

Michael Dwyer received a master's degree in architecture from the U. of Penn in 1979 and is presently an architect with Moore, Grover, Harper, in Essex, Conn.

"August has been a good month for me," writes Michael Dulberg. Michael became an Assistant District Attorney for New York County in August '78, and in August '79 married Marcy Morgan.

Anthony Wayne is interning in pediatrics at Buffalo Children's Hospital. His address is 175 North St., Buffalo, N.Y. (This reminds me: if anyone would like his address printed in this column, please write to say so, or if writing to the College for any reason — like contributing to the College Fund — designate your address to appear here.)

Who is this? J.D. Harvard Law '78, M.A. American history, Columbia '79, now assistant corporate counsel. You forgot to sign your name.

Finally, Warren Goodell is "alive and well in Hadley, Massachusetts and working hard for the Smith College School of Social Work." Happy Fifth Reunion.

Class Correspondent:
Dave Merzel
5 East 98th Street, Apt. 916
New York, N.Y. 10029

'76

Judging from this and past groups of responses, graduates of the Class of '76 are achieving much success in the professional, academic, and business communities. And we're having fun, too!

Proof positive is Peter Honerkamp, who is the "Page Six" reporter for The New York Post. He is planning to write television screenplays which deal with historical subjects ("God bless Jim Shenton's history class.") "All is well, though I still feel friends, women, and beer" (in that order?) "are more critical than my career. I'm also manically depressed that when I drop by Columbia I can't suck a few down at the Gold Rail. The Columbia students of today must be slipping if they let that place turn into a non-alcoholic joint. Alas, the youth of today are indeed misguided." Awright! But let us not forget The Pub, The Lion's Den, CDR, 6 Jay, 13 Carman...

John Mekras, one of the standouts on the lightweight football team during his four years at Columbia, is having a "blast" down in sunny Miami. He misses all the guys and requests that anyone from "the gang" get in touch (% Dept. of Microbiology, U. of Miami). When he is not out on his boat, he is working on his Ph.D. in microbiology. As evidenced and aided by yours truly,

John can still pack 'em away with the best of them.

Bob Goodlow is back in Cleveland working in personnel management. He's doing his best to keep in touch with old friends and anyone going to Cleveland has a hearty welcome awaiting him at 1088 Parkside Rd., Cleveland, Ohio 44108; (216) 681-2960.

Ira J. Cooper of East Meadow, N.Y. is back. "I may be leaving my heart here in San Francisco, but my soul lingers in New York."

Allan J. Leon is living in Silver Springs, Md., while working for Uncle Sam in the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. He and co-workers administer a nationwide program of grants for labor, industry, universities, etc. to develop educational, safety, and health programs and services.

Tony Iaquinta of Pelham Manor, N.Y. is attending the NYU School of Business.

Richard Katz is an associate of the law firm of Ullman, Miller & Wrubel in NYC, where he is currently living.

Steve Flamengo and his wife Allison are expecting their first child. By the time this column is published, Steve should already be a father. Steve is in his last year at Cornell U. Medical School and is planning a career in sports medicine. He is hoping to be in Seattle or L.A. for his residency training. A long distance runner while at Columbia, Steve still runs at least five days a week and races occasionally.

Congratulations and good luck! As the four-year mark since '76's graduation draws near, many of our classmates, especially those in medical and graduate schools, will be finishing their studies and moving in pursuit of their careers. In the next issue, I would like to list as many '76ers as possible who will be starting new jobs and careers upon graduation or who will be settling in new areas. If you are one, or if you know of someone who is, drop me a line. Even if you are still in the same old rut, drop me a line anyway.

Yours truly, soon to finish at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in N.Y., will be heading out to Ann Arbor, Mich., to start a residency in pediatrics at the C.S. Mott Children's Hosp. of the U. of Michigan. Until the next issue, "Take 'er easy."

Class Correspondent:
Jeffrey Gross
1909 Wynnefield Terrace
Philadelphia, Pa. 19131

'77

I am very proud of the fact that the trustees have selected Michael Sovern '53, the father of our classmate Jeffrey Sovern, to be Columbia's new president. I am also pleased to note that our new grid coach, Bob Naso, has selected classmate Tom Masso to be one of his assistant coaches.

On another front, Jim O'Toole has been instrumental in forming the Union of Recent Eastern Colleges Alumni ("URECA"), which is a social organization for Ivy League alumni in the Philadelphia area. To find out about URECA's events, call Jim at 215-MU 6-2922.

I wish good fortune to my fellow law students who will be taking the bar exam for the first time in July. Among these are Steven Teitelbaum, who will soon be an associate at the Washington, D.C. law firm of Melrod, Redman & Gartler; Marshall Donat, who will be with Kieffer & Hahn in New York City; and Scott Morgan, who will work at Martin, Clearwater & Bell in New York City. Howard Gutman will clerk for Judge Irving Goldberg on the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in Dallas upon graduation from Harvard Law School.

Efrain Agosto is a theological student at Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary in South Hamilton, Mass. David Gorman, at work on his Ph.D. in comparative lit, is an adjunct lecturer at Baruch College. Larry Moss received an M.A. in Jewish history from the Jewish

Obituaries

Ascher is survived by a son, Dr. Robert C. Ascher '45 of New York City, and a daughter, Joan Kardon of Wheaton, Md.

Leopold Duskis, retired teacher, New York, N.Y. Mr. Duskis taught French at Thomas Jefferson and at Lafayette High Schools in Brooklyn, N.Y., for 36 years.

Sydney Hutner, physician, Brooklyn, N.Y. on December 15, 1979.

Byron E. Van Raalte, manufacturing executive, Lawrence, N.Y., on November 27, 1979. Mr. Van Raalte was president of Walter B. Stevens & Sons, a textile manufacturer in New York City, until his retirement in 1976. Active in alumni affairs, he was a life member of the John Jay Associates. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Peggy Van Raalte, Lawrence, N.Y.

1919

Ira E. Goldstein, real estate executive, New York, N.Y. Mr. Goldstein was a vice-president and director of L.V. Hoffman & Co. of New York City.

Henry Herman, Los Angeles, California. Survived by his wife, Mrs. Miriam Herman, Los Angeles, Calif.

Mark L. Thompson, lawyer, West Point, Ind. on October 6, 1979.

1920

William R. Quattrocchi, Delray Beach, Fla., on Marcy 31, 1979.

Edgar W. Woolard, Bullhead City, Ariz.

1921

Norman B. Kuklin, retired attorney, Pelham Manor, N.Y., on October 18, 1979. Survivors include his son, Anthony B. Kuklin, Larchmont, N.Y.

Harry D. O'Brien, Staten Island, N.Y., in June, 1978.

1922

Morris K. Bauer, attorney, New York, N.Y. on September 1, 1978. Survived by his wife, Mrs. Morris K. Bauer, New York, N.Y.

Phillip L. Brandstein, New York, N.Y.

Morris G. Cohen, teacher, Brooklyn, N.Y. Mr. Cohen taught history at Thomas Jefferson High School in Brooklyn for 32 years.

Irving E. Ferris, Jr., retired builder, Union Springs, N.Y., on December 26, 1977.

Harvey L. Gardner, attorney, New York, N.Y., on September 2, 1978. Survived by his wife, Mrs. Celia Gardner, New York, N.Y.

Allen G. Strand, on January 17, 1980.

1923

Isidore Abramowitz, New York, N.Y.

George L. Daniels, physician, Hartsdale, N.Y. Dr. Daniels practiced medicine for many years in Port Chester, N.Y.

Edgar N. Grisewood, physicist, Brick Town, N.J. Professor Grisewood taught at N.Y.U. for many years.

Richard Rodgers, composer, New York, N.Y., on December 30, 1979. The world-renowned composer of South Pacific, Oklahoma! and dozens of other works, Mr. Rodgers shared the 1961 Alexander Hamilton Medal, highest award of the College Alumni Association, with Oscar Hammerstein 2nd '16. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Feiner Rodgers, New York, N.Y. [See obituary, March, 1980 CCT].

Jose R. de la Torre Bueno, retired editor, Haddam, Conn., on January 15, 1980. A senior editor at Wesleyan University Press from 1958 until his retirement in 1972, Mr. de la Torre Bueno also wrote two books, Gilbert and Sullivan Songs for Young People, and The American Fisherman's Guide, and was actively interested in dance. In 1972, the Dance Perspectives Foundation established an annual prize for the most distinguished unpublished book in the field of dance, in honor of Mr. de la Torre Bueno. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Emily Daughtry de la Torre Bueno.

Carl M. Lange, retired aircraft inspector, Elizabeth City, N.C., on October 29, 1979. Mr. Lange was with the Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp. of Bethpage, L.I., for many years.

Harold H. Marshall, New York, N.Y., in June, 1979.

Joseph T. Rebholz, retired educator, Flushing, N.Y., on January 5, 1980.

Fred F. Smith, physician, civic leader, New Haven, Conn., on July 23, 1979. A prominent physician and civic leader in New Haven, Dr. Smith served on local health, housing and police commissions, chaired the organizing committee for the Urban League of Greater New Haven, and founded the "Freddie Fixer" improvement program and parade. Dr. Smith, a graduate of Howard University School of Medicine, also served in World War II as a captain in the U.S. Army Medical Corps in North Africa and Italy, and was emeritus assistant professor of clinical medicine at Yale. Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Linda Wallace, Dallas, Texas, and a son, Fred Smith Jr., Milford, Conn.

Ralph Demarest Trisman, insurance executive, River Edge, N.J., on October 24, 1979. Mr. Trisman worked with the Royal Exchange, Ltd. and Chubb & Sons, Inc. of Short Hills, N.J. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eleanor L. Trisman of River Edge.

1925

Axel W. Berggren, Jamestown, N.Y., on December 10, 1979. Survivors include a niece, Mrs. Berger H. Tulen of Jamestown, N.Y.

George K. Coggeshall, retired investment banker, Barnstable, Mass., on June 15, 1979. Mr. Coggeshall was a director of Schoellkopf, Hutton, & Pomeroy, Inc. of New York City.

Paul R. Hays, judge, New York, N.Y., in Tucson, Arizona on February 13, 1980. The senior member of the United States Court of Appeal for the Second Circuit, Judge Hays was known for his strong views on judicial restraint and a strict adherence to the Constitution. Prior to his appointment to the Federal bench by President Kennedy in 1961, Judge Hays was Nash Professor of Law at Columbia Law School, where he had graduated in 1933 and had taught since 1936. Among the more controversial decisions — in the nearly 14 volumes of legal opinion Judge Hays authored — were his 1971 extension of a restraining order temporarily barring The New York Times from publishing the Pentagon Papers; a 1968 ruling that found the Swedish film "I Am Curious-Yellow" not to be obscene; and a 1971 decision sustaining Con Edison's license to construct a power plant at Storm King Mountain. Before his judicial appointment, the Iowa-born classical scholar had distinguished himself as a labor arbitrator — as a member of the State Board of Mediation and other bodies, and as a private consultant. He was active politically, heading the New York chapter of Americans for Democratic Action, serving as state chairman of the Liberal Party, and speaking out for the American Committee for Cultural Freedom. Survivors include his wife, Elinor Rice Hays.

Sidney A. Schreiber, New York, N.Y., on April 6, 1979. Survived by his wife, Mrs. Belle W. Schreiber, New York, N.Y.

1928

John J. Gentleman, on August 3, 1969. Survived by his wife, Mrs. John J. Gentleman, New York, N.Y.

Murray I. Gurfein, judge, New York, N.Y., on December 16, 1979. A former aide to Thomas Dewey and prosecutor at Nuremberg, Judge Gurfein was appointed to the Second U.S. Court of Appeals by President Nixon in 1971; he later ruled against the government's attempt to suppress The New York Times's publication of the Pentagon Papers. Judge Gurfein was a member of the John Jay Associates. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eva Hadras Gurfein, New York, N.Y. [See obituary, March 1980 CCT].

August J. Harms, Bradenton, Fla., on September 14, 1979.

Thomas F. O'Grady, retired advertising executive, Englewood, N.J., on December 15, 1979. A member of the John Jay Associates, Mr. O'Grady was a vice-president of the J. Walter Thompson Co. of New York. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marion O'Grady, Englewood, N.J.

James D. Prince, chemist, Wilmington, De., on December 2, 1979. Mr. Prince was a researcher with the E.I. DuPont Company. Surviving is his wife, Mrs. Mildred P. Prince, Wilmington, Del.

Class Notes

Theological Seminary, and is currently pursuing a J.D. at the University of Chicago.

Wedding bells have tolled in the past few months for Sheldon & Rebecca Deluty, William & Laurie Hirsch, and Michael & Bernadette Hodinar.

As noted in our newsletter, Russ Behrman is sports director of the CBS affiliate station in Fort Pierce, Florida; Dennis Aye is working for Texas Instruments; Daniel Kottke is employed by Apple Computer in Cupertino, California; and John Gummere is teaching art and music at Gesu Parochial School in Philadelphia.

Peter Basch says that he is studying acting with John Stine and getting nibbles in the theater scene. John Fraser, a stage director and researcher/writer for WCBS-TV News, tells of meeting Tennessee Williams at John's revival of Williams' "Orpheus Descending" in January. Williams, it is reported, wanted the production to continue, saying that it was better directed than the original.

Not all our classmates are living in New York City. Michael Bornstein's mom writes that "Michael is a paratrooper in the Israeli army and is earning about $40 a month. I know he will want to contribute to his alma mater as soon as he is solvent."

Michael Young writes in from Tokyo with "best regards to the splendid."

Class Correspondent:
Matthew Nemerson
545 Orange Street
New Haven, Conn. 06511

'78

Two years and counting, our class marches on. Fewer notes confirming your continued existence have been coming in of late, and our coffers are in need of more post-graduation generosity. On the brighter side, the first class newsletter is in the works and you should have it before the summer. To help guarantee that you receive your copy, please send all address updates to the alumni office. Also, if you wish to be included in the 1978 journal, please drop us a line or two if you have not already done so.

From the new school of public affairs and administration, Fred Rosenstein writes that "it's good to be back at Columbia." Fred spent that last few years traveling around the country, working for the City and acting as a consultant to the YMCA. Most important, according to unofficial returns, Mr. Rosenstein leads us all in total class fund giving. Way to go Fred! Also studying public administration is Andy Benesch at SUNY Albany.

If you're in Loudoun County, Virginia, you might want to give Gary Pickholz a call. Gary is a senior economic officer with the CIA and notes "I've become the quintessential Washington workaholic, putting in my 12-hour days." Gary is taking flying lessons (never thought a Columbia man would end up in a U-2) and spends a lot of time on European assignments. Jeff Canfield seems to be moving in the same circles — he's at SIA, where he edits the Journal of International Affairs and works in the Institute on East Central Europe.

Moving at a fast clip is Peter McAlevy, who is now an editor at In-side Sports and has had cover stories in several film magazines. Peter is "against any sort of 'super-school' of Arts and Sciences," saying, "let's keep the College the College." An excellent point and one that you all might consider noting when sending in any contributions.

Former band leader Robert Freeberg is at the University of Bridgeport working on a master's in music education. In addition, Robert is director of both the Wind Ensemble at Columbia and a jazz band in White Plains and plays the trumpet professionally. Proof that there is more to the marching band than carrying a saw and getting into football games for free. Which reminds us of the time that Merrill Weber almost got arrested for doing just that at Dartmouth. Merrill is now a journalist in Chicago.

A few more classmates are admitting to the fact that they are in business school. "This is a place where one reads The Wall Street Journal for fun!" writes Joseph Cosgriff from Harvard. Not if you own the stocks that I do, I must add. Bruce Utz got an MBA from Miami and is now a marketing trainee at IBM in Florida. Also into computers — micro-processor software more precisely — is Joseph Schachner, at the Nicolet Scientific Corporation in New Jersey. Joe was married last August to Pearl. Bob Kerker is at SUNY Albany getting a master's degree in computer science.

Mike Eisenberg waited two years to write, and when he did it was so I could tell all of you about a musical that he wrote for the Barnard-Columbia Repertory Company that will be performed in mid-April on campus. Sorry about that Mike, I tried.

Jonathan Kahn is a manufacturer's agent for a commercial kitchen equipment firm and asks that each alumnus be given a few postage-paid cards to help them keep in touch. I guess the kitchen business isn't going so well, Jon, but from here on in we pay for everything — Columbia won't spend a dime.

Craig Carter is working with a trade magazine and newspaper firm in New York; Evan Kardon reports simply that he is living in Brooklyn; and William Boslego is pursuing a doctorate in linguistics at Ohio State. William asks how one can become a regional representative for the College. Anyone who is interested in forming a club or helping to recruit freshmen, should write to either the Admissions or the College Alumni offices in Hamilton Hall for information.

It's time to find out who's in law school that we didn't already know about. An old friend Phil Vecchio from Five Jay writes to say that he is at Albany Law School and is working for the state in the Division of the Budget. Phil is recovering from a pretty bad hang-gliding accident, but is still awaiting a class reunion at Saratoga. How about Arden House, Phil?

Sci-Fi maven Marvin Ira Charles Siegfried is a second year student at Brooklyn Law and is clerking for a King's County Supreme Court Judge. Philip Spector is at Penn Law School, but trying to commute back to the City whenever possible. David Cohen is at George Washington's National Law Center and works as a Congressional Liaison officer in the Labor Department.

Mark Axinn is at Fordham, has nothing very flattering to say about the place, but is doing his best to "punch out." Jeffrey Moerder, at NYU, is engaged to Susan Berkowitz and is a member of the Review of Law and Social Change. "Hard," is all Bruce Fraser has to say about Harvard Law School. "Easy," is all we can say about his law job in L.A. this summer. These former Sundial people know where to have a good time... and Hugh Weinberg has given up on the journalism world of Ohio and is now going to Cardozo Law School in the City. I bumped into him at the Columbia Law School Library on a recent Saturday. I guess the Lord never said writing a brief was really work.

We have enough future doctors to report on this issue that we could take off to Hawaii and have a convention. Jeffrey Zapsky is working his charm up at Rochester where he is president of his class and chairman of the medical school senate. I didn't know they did things like that in medical school. In fact, I sort of wish he'd spend more time studying anatomy and less time preparing to lobby for the AMA — seriously though, Jeff says he's actually spending a lot of time cross-country skiing.

Steven Katz married Regina Kaufer (B'78) last summer and is now at the

Obituaries

Howard W. Rogers, retired physician, Newburyport, Mass., on May 2, 1979. A 1930 graduate of Columbia P&S, Dr. Rogers had a general practice in Newburyport for roughly four decades. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers, Newburyport, Mass.

1927

Dewitt Edward Untermyer, importer, Houston, Texas, in Corpus Christi on December 11, 1979. Mr. Untermyer was president of Demagou of Houston, Inc. Surviving is his wife, Mrs. Marguerite Graves Untermyer, Houston, Tex.

1928

Frank W. Landsiedel, retired mechanical engineer, Pompano Beach, Fla., on September 19, 1979. A 1932 graduate of the Architecture School, Mr. Landsiedel held patents for control tools for cranes. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice D. Landsiedel, Pompano Beach, Fla.

Lawrence M. Lynch, Jersey City, N.J.

1929

William T. Bockes, North Caldwell, N.J.

Harold Brown, musician, teacher, Massapequa, N.Y. in September, 1979. A former member of the Baltimore and the New York City Symphony Orchestras, Mr. Brown later taught at New York's High School of Music and Art, at Mansfield State College in Pennsylvania, and at Bayport (N.Y.) High School. He was the organizer and director of the Renaissance Chorus of New York. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Nancy C. Brown, Spokane, Washington.

Charles E. Donovan, business executive, Montclair, N.J., on February 11, 1980. Mr. Donovan was a corporate planner on the board of several companies.

James W. Hampton, High Point, N.C., on November 23, 1979. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Mary F. Hampton, High Park, N.Y., and a brother, Vernon B. Hampton '23 of Staten Island, N.Y.

John L. Olpp, physician, Tenafly, N.J., on November 6, 1979. A 1932 graduate of Columbia P&S, Dr. Olpp was a life patron of the John Jay Associates. Dr. Olpp practiced radiology in Englewood, N.J. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Beatrice Olpp, Tenafly, N.J.

Leon A. Wehring, San Diego, Cal., on January 28, 1980.

Vincent J. Winkopp, retired businessman, Middletown Springs, Vt., on November 5, 1979. Mr. Winkopp was for many years treasurer of his family's business, McBride Studios, designers of marble. He served on the Closter, N.J. Borough Council, where he lived for many years. He was also sales manager for several shoe manufacturing firms in New England. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Aileen Pelletier Winkopp, Middletown Springs, Vt., and his brother, Paul J. Winkopp '25, Deerfield, Beach Fla.

1930

Allen S. Andriette, Midland, Mich., on September 11, 1979. Survived by his wife, Mrs. Allen S. Andriette, Midland, Mich.

Richard Franko Goldman, educator, composer, Baltimore, Md., on January 19, 1980. President of the Peabody Conservatory of Music until his retirement in 1977, Mr. Goldman was for many years conductor of the Goldman Band and a member of the faculty at the Juilliard School of Music. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Richard F. Goldman, Baltimore, Md. [See obituary, March 1980 CCT.]

Norman A. Greig, retired public relations executive, Mill Spring, N.C., on March 20, 1979. Mr. Greig was president and general manager of the Chimney Rock Co. in Chimney Rock, N.C.

James P. Morrison, insurance executive, Great Neck, N.Y., on November 10, 1979. An active alumnus and member of the John Jay Associates, Mr. Morrison owned the James P. Morrison Insurance Agency of Elmhurst, N.Y. A past president of the Class of 1930, Mr. Morrison served as Class Correspondent for Columbia College Today. Surviving is his sister, Mrs. Mary E. Harms, Portsmouth, Va.

1931

Jasper A. Forestiere, Newburgh, N.Y., on October 15, 1979. Survived by his wife, Mrs. Jasper A. Forestiere, Newburgh, N.Y.

John J. Reilly, Greenbelt, Md.

1932

Warren W. Lacey, Jr., physician, Queens Village, N.Y., on May 31, 1979. Dr. Lacey was medical director of the Republic Aviation Company of Farmingdale, N.Y.

W. Wells Van Pelt, sales executive, Charlotte, N.C., on January 4, 1979. A retired U.S. Army major, Mr. Van Pelt headed Van Pelt International Industries for 12 years before joining the National Chemsearch Corp. in 1959.

1933

John E. Morrell, Augusta, Me., in April 1979. Survived by his wife, Mrs. Pat D. Morrell, Augusta, Me.

Charles W. Thorne, Jr., retired airline navigator, Allenhurst, N.J., in November 9, 1979. A flight navigator with various airlines, Mr. Thorne later worked with Allied Van Lines in Red Bank, N.J. Surviving is his daughter, Mrs. Ellen Thorne Morris of Allenhurst, N.J.

1934

Robert W. Kretsch, teacher, author, New York, N.Y., on November 8, 1979. A professor of modern languages at the Polytechnic Institute of New York, Mr. Kretsch was an authority on French and Spanish literature and the author of Alphonse Karr — Social Critic and Painter of Manners. A graduate of master's and doctoral programs at Columbia (where he received the 1935 France-Amerique Medal), he also taught at CCNY, Hunter College, Western Reserve University, and Queens College.

Harold Leventhal, judge, Washington, D.C., on November 20, 1979. Appointed to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia by President Johnson in 1965, Judge Leventhal spent much of his life as counsel for various government agencies. After World War II, Judge Leventhal was on the staff of the United States prosecutor of Nazi leaders at the Nuremberg Trials. A 1936 graduate of Columbia Law School, Judge Leventhal was a visiting lecturer at Yale Law School from 1957 to 1962, and was general counsel of the Democratic National Committee from 1952 until 1965. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Kathryn Kumler Leventhal, Washington, D.C.

Samuel Traustein, retired dentist, Hallandale, Fla., on April 24, 1979.

Ivy L. Norton, Memphis, Tenn., on September 4, 1978. Mr. Norton was vice-president of E.H. Crump & Co.

1936

Henry S. Flynn, Northampton, Mass., on December 1, 1978. Mr. Flynn is survived by his brother, Thomas C. Flynn '40, New York, N.Y.

David P. McCullough, Woodbury, Conn., in 1968.

Walter C. Strodtt, mathematician, Canton, N.Y. A mathematics professor at St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y. Dr. Strodtt was a member of the Columbia faculty for nearly thirty years, having been appointed full professor in 1958. Dr. Strodtt received his M.A. from Columbia in 1937 and his Ph.D. in 1939.

John S. Wise, mining engineer, Tucson, Arizona, on October 20, 1979. A graduate of Columbia's graduate engineering program, Mr. Wise worked for various mining companies throughout the Rocky Mountain states, including the Magma Copper Co. of San Manuel, Ariz. Surviving is his wife, Mrs. Margaret C. Wise, Tucson, Ariz.

1937

James Barton, retired chemical engineer, Sun City, Ariz. Mr. Barton worked for the Eastman Kodak Co. of Rochester, N.Y., for many years.

Sanford S. Parker, economist, journalist, author, New York, N.Y., on February 28, 1980. As chief economist for Fortune magazine and editor of that publication's "Business Roundup" section, Mr. Parker employed a rare ability to interpret and explain economic trends for a generation of avid readers. Before joining Fortune in 1950, Mr. Parker had worked for the Works Progress Administration, for Business Week, and McGraw-Hill, and for the National Industrial Conference Board. Hedley Donovan, the former Time Inc. editor-in-chief, now a senior Washington University Dental School. Ell Bryk is at P&S, and was married to Laurie the summer after we graduated. "Going to concerts, playing futsal and studying," that's the medical school life as described by Kevin Vitting at Rutgers. Marc Keuler is at the Medical College of Pennsylvania and David Melamed left journalism for medical school at the Illinois College of Medicine.

Our contingent at SUNY medical schools increases. Isaiah Pinckney II is at Buffalo, where he is president of the local chapter of the National Student Medical Convention. Richard Schloss, Wilson Ko and Aaron Greenberg are all at Downstate.

Steve Waxner is getting his money's worth out of Albany Medical College of Union University. He is editor of the AMC Nexus, founder and chairman of the Cultural Arts Group there and is planning to publish his research soon. Steve is looking to start an alumni group in the Albany area, so please get in touch with him if interested.

Your loyal secretary is looking for honest employment this summer, after several years of political work. New Haven is very depressing after a basketball season with two Lion losses to you know who, so please be in touch if you're passing through or especially if you want to be in the class journal which is coming out soon. Have a great summer.

Class Correspondent:

Peter F. O'Reilly
344 West 72nd Street, Apt. 6K
New York, N.Y. 10023

Byron Magafas studies law at Northeastern and finds Boston's only "New York" sophistication to be a modicum of jazz.

Joe Ferullo works at Rolling Stone magazine, lives at 464 Riverside Drive, #101, phone 663-0610.

Elliot Goldman presently works in the Manhattan DA's office.

Two of us write from Columbia: David Ingram from P&S and Ray Woodcock from joint Law-Business (Boolah-boolah!).

Keith Stevens writes that his allegiance is really to '74, but his friendships extend through '79. Pursuing educational research and psychology at U. of Missouri-Kansas City, he sends his best wishes.

As inevitable as impossible: Jeff Merzel, who works for Data General, married Ann Cymerman, B'79 on January 19th! Our best wishes. (Their address, 5 Royal Crest Dr., #1, Marlboro, Mass. 01752, has been passed on to the fund raisers.)

Thank you all. Keep writing.

Classified

NYC HOUSESITTER, Harvard Senior Semite seeking summer shelter, having references readily available, ring or write (call collect): Nathan Leight, (617) 498-2306. Dunster House, K-31, Cambridge, Mass. 02138.

SERVICES

Having a party? A reception? Need a bartender? Call: COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY STUDENT BARTENDING AGENCY for professional, reliable service throughout the metropolitan area. (212) 280-2392.

Renting, selling, hiring, looking to buy or swap? Reach 36,000 interested families with CCT Classified ad. 50¢ per word, 10-word minimum, with 10% discount for College students, alumni, faculty or parents. For larger display rates, write Columbia College Today, 100 Hamilton Hall, N.Y., N.Y. 10027 or call (212) 280-5538.

THIS WAY BACK TO COLLEGE.

ALUMNI!
YOU CAN STILL ORDER
THE COLLEGE RING
YOU LEFT BEHIND.

JOSTEN'S

CONTACT: Columbia University Bookstore
2960 Broadway (between 115th-116th)
New York, N.Y. 10027

'79

Obituaries

White House adviser, recently told Fortune: "Sandy Parker had extraordinary insight into the workings of the American economy, the imagination to think of good questions that hadn't been asked, and the courage to predict. He was a delightful man in spite of being almost always right." Survivors include Mr. Parker's wife, Mrs. Laura Parker, New York, N.Y.; his daughter; his brother Saul Parker '30, Irvington, N.Y.; and a nephew, Scott Parker '64, Washington, D.C.

1938

James D. DeSanto, Ridgecrest, Cal.

Mark D. Farrington, teacher, Scottsdale, Arizona, on October 5, 1979. Surviving is his wife, Mrs. Cathy Farrington of Scottsdale.

Thomas B. Richey, chemical engineer, Westfield, N.J. Mr. Richey worked with Emery Industries, Inc., and the Malmstrom Chemical Corporation, where he was vice-president and director.

1939

Jay-Ehret Mahoney, lawyer, amateur athletics official, New York, N.Y., on January 6, 1980. A graduate of Brooklyn Law School and a member of the firm of Mahoney, McNulty, McCarthy & Andrews, Mr. Mahoney devoted a major part of his life to the furtherance of amateur athletics. In 1964, he was elected president of the Amateur Athletic Union, following in the footsteps of his father, the late Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney, who had earlier served as A.A.U. president. An active promoter of young men's athletic competition in New York City, Mr. Mahoney was himself an expert water polo player and a member of the Water Polo Hall of Fame in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. For his U.S. Navy service in World War II, he was decorated eight times and was awarded the Silver Star. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Grace R. Mahoney, New York, N.Y.

1940

Dominick J. Calderone, lawyer, New York, N.Y.

William F. Weiss, New Haven, Conn., on August 6, 1979.

William W. Winter, chemical company official, Sudbury, Mass. A 1943 graduate of Columbia Engineering School, Mr. Winter worked most recently with the Digital Equipment Corp. of Maynard, Mass.

1941

Jack Mills, chemist, Indianapolis, Ind., on December 6, 1979. A fellow of the John Jay Associates, Dr. Mills was scientific advisor to the vice-president for research and development of Lilly Research Laboratories, Indianapolis, Ind. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jack Mills, Indianapolis, Ind.

1942

Mark Eisenbud, physician, Staten Island, N.Y., on January 5, 1980. A specialist in internal medicine and allergy, Dr. Eisenbud was a New York City police surgeon on Staten Island for many years. In addition, Dr. Eisenbud served on the staff of Mount Sinai Hospital and St. Vincent's Medical Center in Manhattan. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. June Eisenbud, Staten Island, N.Y.

Donald D. Snively, sales engineer, Morrow, Ga., on December 3, 1979. A member of the John Jay Associates, Mr. Snively received a B.S. from the Engineering School in 1943. He was owner of the Naturetown Corp. of Morrow, Ga. Surviving is his wife, Mrs. Antoinette Piele Snively, Morrow, Ga.

1948

John C. Leith, Wethersfield, Conn., on December 16, 1979. Mr. Leith was assistant chief of the Connecticut Department of Mental Health.

1949

Frank J. Beni, sales representative, on March 9, 1979. Mr. Beni worked for the McGraw-Edison Company of Cincinnati. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eileen Q. Beni, of Rivera Beach, Fla.

1950

Felix M. Bilgrey, attorney, New York, N.Y., on January 12, 1980. As general counsel of the Times Film Corporation of New York, Mr. Bilgrey devoted much of his career to fighting censorship in the film industry. In 1957, Mr. Bilgrey successfully persuaded the Supreme Court to overturn a Chicago ban of the film "The Game of Love," based on a story by the French author Colette. He lost a similar case in 1961 concerning the film "Don Juan," but a 1965 Supreme Court case, in which Mr. Bilgrey was again involved, changed the effects of the 1961 decision. Born in the Netherlands, Mr. Bilgrey came to the U.S. in 1940 and served with the U.S. Air Force intelligence service. Surviving is his wife, Mrs. Lotte Bilgrey, New York, N.Y.

1953

Glenn R. Vessa, Hong Kong. Mr. Vessa was managing director of Honeychurch International Antiques, Ltd., of Hong Kong.

1954

Leonard E. Chabrowe, free-lance writer, teacher, Brooklyn, N.Y., on August 8, 1979. With a master's degree in English and comparative literature from Columbia in 1960, Mr. Chabrowe contributed critical articles on the theater to publications such as Modern Drama and the Kenyon Review. Survivors include his father, John M. Chabrowe '21 of Brooklyn, and a brother, Richard K. Chabrowe '51, Larchmont, N.Y.

1955

Alexander Kurth, salesman, Ft. Salonga, N.Y. In November, 1978, Mr. Kurth worked for Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., Melville, N.Y.

1957

Morton L. Newstadt, mechanical engineer. A 1958 graduate of the Engineering School, Mr. Newstadt worked at the Bettis Atomic Power Laboratory of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation in West Mifflin, Pa. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Irene Newstadt, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Kenneth R. Skivington, San Francisco, Cal.

Frederick Jay Wade, retired naval officer, business executive, Port Washington, N.Y. on June 29, 1980. A former naval lieutenant commander and director of organization and manpower planning for the Boise Cascade-Ebasco Company in New York, Mr. Wade held degrees from both the College and Engineering and a master's in mathematics from C.W. Post College. He served on active duty in the Navy from 1958 to 1964, when he entered the reserves. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Geraldine Wade, a son and a daughter.

1959

Jeffrey P. Rothman, physician, New York, N.Y. Dr. Rothman was an assistant medical examiner of the City of New York.

1980

Frederick W. Squires, Encinitas, Calif. Survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Squires '22, Harwich, Mass.

1987

Alan C. Winkler, Great Neck, N.Y., on October 16, 1979. Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Henry Winkler, Great Neck, N.Y.

1988

William H. Stein, Detroit, Mich. Survived by his wife, Ms. Mary Obst, Detroit, Mich.

1969

George F. Thomas, New Castle, Pa. Mr. Thomas worked at the Oakmont Country Club in Oakmont, Pa.

1972

Marc A. Dorenfeld, attorney, Chicago, Ill., on August 29, 1979. Mr. Dorenfeld was an associate of Pope, Ballard, Shepard and Fowle in Chicago. Survivors include his father, Adrian C. Dorenfeld '40, Minneapolis, Minn.

1974

Charles David Huckaba, on February 14, 1980. Mr. Huckaba, an ensign in the U.S. Navy, was killed in an aircraft accident near his base in Texas. He received a Ph.D. in philosophy from the University of Chicago in 1979. Survivors include his father, Mr. Charles E. Huckaba, New York, N.Y.

1976

Richard S. Downey, medical student, Closter, N.J. Mr. Downey was a student at Columbia P&S.

B. Anthony Long-Yevenez, law student, Washington, D.C. Mr. Long-Yevenez was a member of the class of 1981 at Georgetown University Law School. Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Lucia Yevenez, Flushing, N.Y.

Calendar of Upcoming Events for Alumni

May 6	College Fund phonothon for Rochester area alumni	Vanderlinde Electric Corp. offices; contact Tom Ferguson, 100 Hamilton Hall, (212) 280-5534 for information
May 13	Columbia College Class Day	On campus
May 14	Commencement	On campus
May 15	CU Club of Boston dinner; Guest speaker, Professor Morton Smith	Marriott Hotel, Newton, Mass.; contact Bruno Santonocito, 100 Hamilton Hall, (212) 280-5533 for information
May 18	College Fund phonothon for NY/Metro area alumni and parents	Offices of The New York Times ; contact Bruno Santonocito, 100 Hamilton Hall, (212) 280-5533 for information
May 21	CU Club of Michigan dinner meeting; Guest speakers, Professors Kirby Warren and Jack Widick	Hyatt Regency, Fairlane Town Center, Dearborn, Mich.; Contact Jill Harrison, 301 Low Library, (212) 280-3927 for information
May 24	Annual Meeting of the Columbia College Alumni Association	Arden House; Contact Rose Brooks, 100 Hamilton Hall, (212) 280-5537 for information
May 24-25	Regional Alumni Leaders' weekend workshop	Arden House
May 31-June 1	Anniversary Class Reunions	Rye Town Hilton Inn; contact Rose Brooks, 100 Hamilton Hall, (212) 280-5537 for information
June 10	Luncheon for Washington, D.C. College Alumni; Guest speaker, Associate Dean Michael Rosenthal	Location to be announced; contact Tom Ferguson, 100 Hamilton Hall (212) 280-5534 for information

100 Hamilton Hall
New York, N.Y. 10027

Second class postage paid at New York, N.Y.

Alumni News Edition

May 1980

In this issue: Class News • Summer Job Postings • Leon Keyserling '28 on Rex Tugwell • William C. Greenburg '59 on Jay Neugeboren • and more...

Columbia College Today

Fall 1980

Within the Family

There are certain subjects that this publication should not editorialize about. It should not predict Kentucky Derby winners or endorse candidates for the Kansas state legislature; it should not analyze mineral waters or recommend an investment in frozen pork bellies—although any of these matters might be broached elsewhere in an issue.

We are permitted to speak out when dramatic changes occur in the form of Columbia College Today itself. For instance, the last time "Within the Family" appeared, in June 1974, we grimly announced the demise of the magazine. Of course, the College immediately showed its pluck by resurrecting CCT three months later, in an abridged format. Over the past six years, however, many alumni and friends of Columbia have expressed regret that the trimmed-down CCT could not, despite the financial turnaround of the period, achieve the distinction it enjoyed little more than a decade ago, when it was recognized as the finest alumni magazine in America. More recently, signs have pointed to a comeback: the intensified programs in campus renovation, admissions, fund raising, and regional organization; recognition of the fact that for a majority of readers, CCT is the principal or only link to the College.

With this issue, Columbia College Today returns as a full-fledged quarterly magazine, ending the dual-edition policy which brought you, in alternating sequence, the tabloid "Alumni News Edition" and the slender but feisty "regular CCT". We were greatly abetted in this venture by College Dean Arnold Collery, Director of Alumni Affairs Bill Oliver '64, and University Vice President Terry Holcombe, all of whom shared our conviction that College alumni would be enthusiastic about a revised publication, one that more proudly mirrored the identity and tradition of Columbia College.

It is fitting that our first issue should coincide with the inauguration of Michael I. Sovern '53 as the first Columbia College graduate to serve as University President since Nicholas Murray Butler. Columbia College thus introduces its new magazine at a time of renewed hope for the College's historic mission within the University and American higher education.

CCT's purpose is to provide a theater for ideas as varied and unlimited as the College's alumni, faculty and students themselves, and to tell their stories, not without sympathy, but with a critical, inquiring spirit that is squarely within the finest Columbia traditions.

The relationship between alumni and the College is complicated, with strong currents of expectation running in both directions. We have attempted in this issue to touch the many nerve endings of that relationship, extending from the most personal experiences to more abstract questions.

We knew that in an election year, Columbia alumni have more than Columbia on their minds. So we asked a group of fifteen College alumni to share their thinking on America's most critical issues, formulated as advice for the next President. Their answers—ranging from thoughtful, to ironic, to sharply accusatory—are collected as our feature story, "Dear Mr. President..."

On the home front, Dean Collery leads off with the first of a continuing series of reports from the College administration, an overview of institutional priorities for the next decade and beyond. He looks forward to answering your questions and comments in a CCT press-conference-in-print, to appear in the next issue.

For more intimate news of Columbia people and events, we have revived three columns which many readers will recognize from the award-winning CCT of editor George C. Keller '51: Around the Quads, Talk of the Alumni, and Roar Lion Roar, (a mere meow in this issue, to be amplified next time around). To these we have added a new column, The Lion's Den, an open forum for short essays on just about anything. Class Notes devotees will notice the longer alumni profiles we have added to the usual tidbits.

Lastly, we have reserved many column inches in future editions for Letters to the Editor. We regard this magazine as a work-in-progress, to be refined with your advice and support. Let us hear from you: both your praise and your criticism are valuable.

We especially look forward to your thoughtful contribution to a dialogue that began, after all, in freshman classrooms in Hamilton Hall. There we learned, as former College Dean Peter R. Pouncey once told his students,

"... that the human spirit is not, for all its weaknesses and insecurities, inevitably destined to a downward slide to squalor and meanness, but is capable, against the pull of gravity, of rising to wit, intelligence, courage, and compassion—of making sense of its world, of seeing it whole, of reaching out and understanding others, of spanning, with its daring, great gulfs of fear or incomprehension."

If Columbia College Today can contribute to keeping that spirit alive, then we will have succeeded.

—James C. Katz '72

Letters

Rodgers and heart

TO THE EDITOR:

As a freshman chorine in "Fly With Me," my admiring recollection of Dick Rodgers was his regular attendance at the rehearsals playing the piano accompaniment night after night with modestly complete cooperation.

The poster you reproduced is vaguely reminiscent of my design that won the competition and was used also as the cover of the program. It was a memorable introduction to collegiate extracurricular activity.

Lincoln Rothschild '23
Dobbs Ferry, N.Y.

TO THE EDITOR:

Alumni who attended their reunion at the Rye Town Hilton were treated to a special "extra" in the form of selections from "Fly With Me," performed with professional flair by a student cast.

The show had been revived in April in tribute to Richard Rodgers '23, who wrote the music to the lyrics of Larry Hart '18. (I portrayed a chorus girl in the original production!)

Andrew B. Harris of the Center for Theater Studies, who produced the show, his assistant Kate Cambridge, and the students who performed with such enthusiasm and presence, all deserve a public thank-you for providing us with such an "enchanted evening."

Arthur A. Snyder '20
Brooklyn, N.Y.

Columbia College Today

Volume 7, Number 3
Fall 1980

EDITOR: James C. Katz '72
MANAGING EDITOR: Phyllis T. Katz
STAFF WRITERS: Alan Lessoff '81,
Bruce K. McWhirk, Phyllis Sharp
STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER:
Nick Romanenko '81
DESIGN: Linda Kaytes Josefowicz

Composition: Compo-Set Typographers
Printing: The Georgian Press

Published quarterly by the Columbia College Office of Alumni Affairs
and College Relations
DIRECTOR: William Oliver '64
for Alumni, Faculty, Parents and Friends of COLUMBIA COLLEGE, founded in 1754, the men's undergraduate liberal arts college of
COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY in the City of New York

Address all editorial correspondence and advertising inquiries to:
100 Hamilton Hall
New York, N.Y. 10027
Telephone: (212) 280-5538

Second class postage paid at New York, N.Y.
(USPS 990-180)

Opinions expressed are those of the authors, the editors, or their subjects, and do not reflect official positions of Columbia College or Columbia University.

© 1980, Columbia College Today
All Rights Reserved

In this issue:

9 "Dear Mr. President . . ."

Fifteen alumni diagnose the state of the Republic and offer advice for the winner of November's election.

14 Priorities for the 80's

A survey of recent and prospective trends affecting Columbia College in the next decade by Arnold Coltery, Dean of the College

Special insert: Annual Report of the 28th Columbia College Fund

Departments:

2 Within the Family

2 Letters

4 Around the Quads

16 Roar Lion Roar

17 Bookshelf

20 Talk of the Alumni

26 Obituaries

28 Class Notes

Profiles:

32 Vincent G. Kling '38

35 William Rubin '49

45 Rick MacArthur '78

46 The Lion's Den

47 Classified

On the cover

Columbia president Michael I. Sovern '53 addresses the University community at his formal investiture on September 28.
In the foreground lies the College's original charter, granted by King
George II in 1754.
Photo by Nick Romanenko

Around the Quads

Freshman orientation:

By George, It's the Class of 1984

When the Class of 1984 arrived on campus August 28 for freshman orientation, they undoubtedly experienced all the usual butterflies and bewilderment. But once the frantic schedule began, it is unlikely that any of the students had time to call home for moral support.

As CCT went to press, furious preparations were under way to stage a six-day welcome for the 1600 incoming freshmen of Columbia College, Barnard, the School of Engineering and the School of Nursing. The objective of the program is to give freshmen a total immersion in the social and intellectual life of Columbia.

"When freshmen arrive, they have a Pandora's box of anxieties, which is only natural," said Brian Krisberg '81, who helped organize an orientation program which took six months to plan and required a budget of approximately $100,000. The cost is borne by the freshmen themselves, who each pay a hefty $70 orientation fee, although aid is available to make sure everyone can attend. For this fee, freshmen receive room and board, a bundle of literature and directories, the obligatory beanie, and a frenzy of pre-planned activities.

Among the 92 scheduled events were: burrito lunches and tours of the city; a ping pong tournament; a morning jog in the park; a midnight cruise around Manhattan; "human interaction" games; a champagne brunch; square dancing (with "Piute Pete" calling the formations); disco (the "Electric Circus" variety); salsa (courtesy of "Novidades"); jazz ("So What"), and, naturally, New Wave rock (by "The Shirts"). The word "mixer" is carefully avoided these days.

Of course there is the more familiar freshman week fare: campus tours, meetings with advisors, mandatory lectures, placement exams, and the traditional College Convocation, to be echoed four years later at the Senior Convocation, sans beanies.

Academic affairs do play a serious role in the initiation. "One major objective is to make freshmen fully aware of the intellectual life at Columbia and show them that academics and scholarship are still very much alive here," commented Charles J. O'Byrne '81, the academic coordinator for the program. To this end, such professors as Karl-Ludwig Selig, Wm. Theodore deBary '41 and Graham Irwin were due to lecture in their fields.

To introduce freshmen to the philosophy behind the core courses they are compelled to take, Associate Dean Michael Rosenthal and former College Dean Peter R. Pouncey were to join

And you think you had it tough...

With blue beanies for freshmen once again de rigueur, it could be argued that freshman week is beginning to resemble those "olden days" of nasal peanut-pushing up Low Library's steps. But what the Class of 1984 had to endure with their required headgear is only a shadow of things past:

Rules for Freshmen: 1917

- 1) All Freshmen must wear the regulation caps with the white pearl button.
- 2) Freshmen must keep copies of these rules and show them whenever requested.
- 3) Freshmen must not wear turned up trousers or bright colors in socks or scarfs on the campus, black and green are the prescribed colors.
- 4) Freshmen must not wear the Columbia colors.
- 5) Freshmen must not wear preparatory school insignia on the campus.
- 6) Freshmen must not smoke pipes unless they win a majority of the cane sprints.
- 7) Freshmen must keep off the grass plots on the campus.
- 8) Freshmen must not sit on the steps or ledges of the Library, on the balustrade in front of Hamilton Hall, or on the Exedra (the 1886 bench).
- 9) Freshmen must not occupy seats in the Gemot in Hamilton Hall to the exclusion of members of other classes.
- 10) The decision of upperclassmen in regard to all underclass matters shall be final.

Assistant Professor of Religion Peter J. Awn for a panel presentation. "The faculty often talks about the coherence of the curriculum," Mr. O'Byrne explained, "and we thought we might be able to improve the regard in which it is held by freshmen."

Descartes and Spinoza notwithstanding, partying is still in the forefront of many minds. (Or, as one fellow put it, "Je danse, donc je suis.") Freshman week still carries the reputation of being a riotous time: 56 kegs of beer were due to be tapped, swilled and laid dry over the six days.

Not coincidentally, competition was fierce for the privilege of playing Big Brother to the Class of 1984—400 upperclassmen vied for the program's 169 counselor jobs.

Does it all work?

This much is certain: by the time all the burritos are digested, the ping pong champ crowned, and the inevitability of CC grasped, most freshmen will have made at least one good friend; they should know where to go on the first day of classes; and, if the orientation has been truly thorough, they will be able to explain to a newcomer that Ta-Kome is pronounced "Take Home."

—B.K.M.

2nd consecutive year:

Columbia leads nation in Guggenheim fellowships

Columbia University led the nation for the second year in a row in the number of Guggenheim fellowships won by faculty members.

Competition is intense for the research grants, awarded annually by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation. Columbia's Guggenheim fellows are:

Jagdish Bhagwati and Guillermo Calvo (Economics); David V. Chudnovsky and Gregory V. Chudnovsky (Mathematics); George Edwards (Music); Marilyn Hacker and Werner Sollors (English); Dennis E. Hays (Geological Sciences); Herbert S. Klein and Isser Woloch '59 (History); Walter G. Klemperer (Chemistry); John E. Malmstad (Russian Language and Literature); William Tucker (Sculpture); and Harriet Zuckerman (Sociology).

ASSOCIATED FILM STUDIOS

Titanic search: A boon for science, a pledge to return

Scientists from Columbia's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory joined a search in July and August for the sunken remains of the "unsinkable" luxury liner Titanic, 380 miles off the southeast coast of Newfoundland.

The $1 million deep-sea expedition, sponsored by Texas oilman Jack Grimm, used sophisticated underwater sonar and magnetic equipment to comb 12,000-foot-deep waters in a submarine canyon, where the Titanic—which sank on its maiden voyage with 1500 passengers after an iceberg collision in 1912—is probably located.

By mid-August, the research team aboard the F.J.W. Fay had traced what appeared to be the outline of a wreck (situated at 41° 46' N, 50° 14' W) matching the dimensions of the 882.5-foot Titanic. However, high seas, gale-force winds, and equipment damage soon forced Mike Harris, the expedition's leader, to call off the search. When the team returned to Boston, Columbia geophysicist William B.F. Ryan expressed doubt that they had found the Titanic, but was convinced that it will be found.

Columbia researchers were excited by their geological findings on the ocean floor, which they described as a "scarred seascape of natural catastrophes that are apparently occurring at a pace more rapid than hitherto anticipated." Vowing to return next summer with state-of-the-art underwater photographic equipment and a 51½-foot deep-water sub called the Aluminaut, Mr. Harris told reporters the group would then attempt to take the first photographs of the wreck and try to recover, with the submarine, some $200 million in diamonds and other jewels which may remain in the ship's interior. Whatever the result, much of the new equipment will eventually be donated to Columbia for future oceanographic research.

—B.K.M.

University finance: Out of the Blues and Into the Black

For the second consecutive year, the University is projecting relative financial stability in the form of a balanced budget.

On May 5, the trustees approved an operating budget for 1980-81 of $339.7 million, a 10.6 percent increase over the estimated final figure for the preceding fiscal year. The total budget includes the University's first formal capital budget, nearly $4 million to begin to address an estimated $15 to $20 million in repairs, modernization, and other campus improvements which had been deferred because of deficits over the last decade.

Columbia also plans in 1980-81 to institute the first phase of what the University calls Direct Responsibility Center Model budgeting, a revised system of financial planning and control which would make each academic and administrative unit responsible for determining its direct revenues and expenditures. It has not been determined whether the College will constitute a "responsibility center," and the phasing-in of the new system will not yet significantly affect the College.

Both tuition charges and financial aid allocations have increased 12 percent this year—tuition is up $610 to $5,730. Faculty salaries have risen an average of 11 percent and staff salaries an average of 9 percent in 1980-81. The University has reduced fuel consumption by almost 20 percent and should save up to $2.5 million in utility costs by completing its powerhouse conversion from oil to gas.

Outgoing President William McGill warned that uncertain levels of federal spending and continuing high inflation "will present powerful financial stresses" in the 1980's, but he remarked, "I am confident that Columbia is well equipped to take maximum advantage of changing social and economic realities of the next ten years."

—A.L.

Trilling Award: A Prophet with Honor

There is a statue in front of historian István Deák's apartment on Riverside Drive and 113th Street, a dramatic rendering of Louis Kossuth, the 19th-century Hungarian revolutionary leader. Every year in mid-March, Hungarian-Americans parade to the site from Yorkville to remember the Hungarian Revolution of 1848.

Professor Deák, himself an expatriate Hungarian, often contemplates this likeness of Hungary's most celebrated exile. The complex, passionate Kossuth is the central figure of the professor's most recent book, The Lawful Revolution: Louis Kossuth and the Hungarians, 1848-1849, which recently received the Lionel Trilling Book Award, given annually by the students of Columbia College to the best scholarly work published by a Columbia author during the previous year.

"The Revolution of 1848 is Hungary's most celebrated historic event," writes Mr. Deák. "Generations of Hungarians have lived in the aura of that unforgettable year. It unites the people as much as it divides them. It is a source of national pride but also of self-doubt and questioning."

Even the statue of Kossuth in Riverside Park is a powerful enough symbol to divide Hungarians, it seems. Professor Deák reminds us that when the statue was dedicated in 1928, the New York City police had to break up an ugly scene which developed between supporters and opponents of the rightist government of Admiral Horthy — each claiming the legacy of the Revolution — a continuation in the New World of the social struggle which ignited around Kossuth in 1848.

The Lawful Revolution is the first scholarly account in a Western language of the Hungarian Revolution and the subsequent war for independence, the longest and bloodiest uprising of Europe's great revolutionary era. The author emphasizes the conflict between the aristocratic Magyar nationalists and the "radical" social reformers, who spoke for the landless nobles, the disenfranchised peasantry and urban classes, and the national minorities.

George Barany of the University of Denver, one of the leading Hungarian historians in the United States, is among the many who welcome Professor Deák's contribution.

Scholarly inspiration: Historian István Deák and the statue of Hungarian revolutionary Louis Kossuth, in Riverside Park.

"The book is important not only because it is the first work in any language — including Professor Deák's native Magyar — to focus on Kossuth at the high point of his political career," Professor Barany comments. "The significance of the book is that it may be seen as a case study which involves a major challenge to an imperial dynasty, or, what happens if a small people chooses to secede from a multinational empire to achieve independent statehood." Professor Barany also praises Mr. Deák's literary ability, calling the book "exciting reading to the educated layman."

Mr. Deák was born in 1926 in Székesfehérvár, the seat of the medieval Hungarian monarchy, 40 miles southwest of Budapest. He first studied at the University of Budapest, and had already decided to become an historian when he left Hungary in 1948, during the Stalinist era. "Inevitably the necessity of joining the Communist party would have arisen," he explains. "Parading around in big demonstrations? I couldn't see myself doing that."

He emigrated to Paris, where he found work as a librarian, a bookseller, and a night watchman. Eventually he studied at the Sorbonne and became a journalist, working briefly for Le Combat, which had been one of the leading newspapers of the French Resistance during World War II.

In 1951, Mr. Deák went to Munich to spend five years with Radio Free Europe; in 1956 he settled permanently in the United States where he enrolled in Columbia's graduate program, earning his M.A. and his Ph.D. and joining the full-time faculty in 1963. He was director of Columbia's Institute on East Central Europe from 1967 to 1978.

The professor's earlier writings include a widely-respected essay on the radical right in interwar Hungary. He has also written a book about Weimar Germany's left-wing intellectuals and has co-edited anthologies on contemporary Eastern Europe and European social history. He is presently writing a short history of the Habsburg monarchy from 1815 to 1918.

Because of his connection to Radio Free Europe, Professor Deák could not for many years return to Hungary, where his sister is the editor of the foreign language publishing house. Since the middle 60's, government control has relaxed somewhat, and in recent years, Professor Deák has returned numerous times—most memorably when he participated in the return of the Crown of St. Stephen from the United States to Hungary in 1978.

"Hungary is relatively prosperous, and human rights are generally respected," he affirms. "They have abided by the Helsinki accords more than any other Eastern European government. The regime in Hungary has realized that it will be more stable if it is more relaxed—that there will be more support if there is more freedom," reasons Mr. Deák. Yet Hungary is still an occupied nation, and it is not possible openly to criticize the Soviet Union's role there, or Soviet foreign policy in general. Occasionally, the professor is still denied a visa to return.

A Hungarian edition of The Lawful Revolution is now being prepared, the first time in several decades that that government has authorized a non-Marxist work on Hungarian history written by a non-Marxist—even more unusual because its author is an emigré as well. The book will have a wider distribution in Hungary, where 10,000 copies will circulate at the first printing, than in the United States, where it was issued by Columbia University Press, a leading publisher of scholarly works on Eastern Europe.

Istvan Deák's personal feelings about Kossuth as a leader and as an individual are mixed. "In him," Mr. Deák writes,

"Hungarians recognize their spokesman and their hero but also the symbol of much that they see as calamitous in the national character: pomposity, excessive pride, a penchant for theatrical gestures, naiveté, and easy enthusiasm."

Yet, like the revolutionary, the scholar hopes—through his book—to affect Hungary even from abroad. Motioning toward Kossuth's statue, he quietly smiles and says, "Everyone likes to be a prophet in his own country."

—A.L.

College Admissions:

A Complete Overhaul

Those familiar with the College admissions office may not recognize the place this fall. An extensive physical renovation of the office over the summer coincided with an unusual turnover in personnel. The College is now replacing over half of its admissions staff, following the departures of Admissions Director Gary Cornog '65, Assistant Directors Harry Bauld '77, Paul Ganzenmuller '73, and Irving Schenkler '75, and officer Henry Morris '78.

Associate Director Larry Momo '73 will work as acting director while a search for a new full-time director takes place. Dean Arnold Collery asserts, "We've received a number of promising applications for the position."

Diane McKoy, a native of Malden, Mass. and a 1975 graduate of Yale, has been appointed the College's Assistant Director in charge of minority recruitment. Until her appointment, Columbia was the only Ivy League school not to have such an officer. Miss McKoy, a former school teacher, previously worked in the Sex Roles and Social Change program of the University's Center for Social Science, formerly the Bureau of Applied Social Research.

Alfred R. Ramirez '80 was also named an admissions officer. Mr. Ramirez will cover most of the Southwest, as well as Connecticut, Queens, and Rockland County. A native of East Los Angeles, he was a student member of the Admissions and Financial Aid Committee; as chairman of Chicano recruitment, he can take partial credit for the growing number of outstanding Chicano students who have enrolled at Columbia in recent years. "Our biggest problem in the West," suggests Mr. Ramirez, "is a lack of publicity about Columbia. When they think about the East Coast, the image is somewhere between Kojak toughness and Love Story 'preppiness.'"

Tri-partite system:

Stern, Likins Named to University Provostships

Noted historian Fritz Stern '46 and former Engineering Dean Peter Likins were each appointed as Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and University Provost beginning July 1 under a new plan to divide the formerly unitary position into three parts. The provostship is Columbia's chief academic office.

The new system, conceived by University President Michael I. Sovern '53 while he was himself Provost, creates three administrative and planning units: the arts and sciences divisions, the professional schools, and the health sciences divisions. Professor Stern and Dr. Likins will now oversee the arts and sciences and the professional schools, respectively, while a search committee works on filling the third post.

A published report that the health sciences provostship would go to Dr. Paul A. Marks '45 was scotched when Dr. Marks accepted the presidency of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center. Dr. Marks, who had been Columbia's Vice President for Health Sciences, will continue to teach and conduct research at Columbia.

Recent Columbia provosts, in addition to Mr. Sovern, include: Wm. Theodore de Bary '41, Polykarp Kusch, Peter B. Kenen '54, David B. Truman, and Jacques Barzun '27.

The Ferris Terrace?:

Café to highlight FBH renovation

For more than five years, students have submitted proposals to transform Ferris Booth Hall into the student center everyone agrees the College should have.

James Sanders '76 and Roy Strickland

'76 first came up with an audacious plan to renovate the FBH interior while making external adjustments to fit the building more gracefully into the existing campus plan. The Sanders-Strickland plan was shelved in favor of building an art gallery on the second floor.

More recently, Donald Baron '80 devised a plan to install a new cafe on the ground floor, in consultation with such alumni as Vincent Sardi '37, owner of the celebrated restaurant in Manhattan's theater district.

Now, thanks in large part to substantial gifts from two College alumni, construction will soon begin on a terrace café, highlighting a $500,000 renovation of most of the first floor of Ferris Booth Hall.

The café will replace what is now Hewitt Lounge. Included also in the remodeling are a new lounge to replace the present meeting rooms on the Broadway side of the building and relocation of the meeting rooms to the present Lion's Den cafeteria. Plans also call for enlarging the lobby by removing the wall separating the space in front of Wollman Auditorium from the Lion's Den, as well as replacing the cloak-rooms, possibly with shops.

A committee of alumni, students, and administrators had been working on proposals for the café since last fall, but a large gift from Ira Wallach '29 changed completely the scope of the project. Herbert Singer '26 and the estate of George Jonas '19 also provided large contributions.

According to Alan Liebensohn, Director of Student Activities, the FBH renovation will make the student center "more flexible and serviceable to the College community." The College has not yet worked out a final schedule for construction, but Dean Arnold Collery hopes that the project can be completed during the current semester.

Bird-dogging it

Every now and then, life sends you on a little wild-goose chase that ends up teaching you more about your own hopes than about the reality of things.

Two children we know entered the office one August afternoon and told us solemnly that they had found a dead white bird on campus and had buried him with full ceremony on South Field. They mentioned a silver identification tag on the bird's leg.

The possibility that the bird was part of a crucial experiment in migration, life span, or mating roused us from our routine. Seeing ourselves as agents in the advance of science, we asked the kids to lead us to the gravesite in order to retrieve the tag.

Embossed on the aluminum tag was the legend, IF80 JRC 290.

We first telephoned the state's environmental protection agency. They knew nothing. Having read of the Cornell ornithology department's research on endangered species, we tried calling there. Cornell suggested the Fish and Wildlife Service in Washington. An official in Washington directed us to their Maryland branch. Several transfers and a little research later, the people in Maryland informed us that the bird belonged to the Jamaica Rosedale Club of Hamilton Beach, N.Y.

Sensing our goal to be near, we looked up the club's number in the Queens phone book and dialed. A man answered. We told him that we had found a white bird apparently belonging to the club, on the campus of Columbia University.

"Columbia University?" he asked. "In Pennsylvania?"

"No, right in Manhattan. We know it's yours from the tag, I-F-eighty-J-R-C-two-ninety."

"Do you have the bird?" the man asked expectantly.

"Not exactly. You see, it's dead."

"Oh. Well, I'll have to tell its owner. It's a homing pigeon. It must have died from the heat. Thank you very much for letting us know."

What we had imagined as a carrier of critical scientific information turned out to be a poor little homing pigeon that never made it home.

Still hoping that our discovery had meaning, we called a Classics professor who is acquainted with Roman augury, to find out if a white pigeon dropping dead in the middle of South Field might be some sort of sign.

"It could be a good omen, or it could be a bad omen," the professor replied. "But the Romans would probably have thought it was rigged."

Campus Bulletins

• Honored: Professor of Mathematics Lipman Bers and Samuel Latham Mitchill Professor of Chemistry Ronald C. D. Breslow were elected this year to the American Philosophical Society, the nation's oldest learned society. Originally the outgrowth of a group founded by Benjamin Franklin in 1727, the honorary society chooses its membership from leaders in all fields of study.

Professor Breslow was also honored this year by the American Chemical Society, which presented him its James Flack Norris Award in Physical Organic Chemistry. Gilbert J. Stork, the Eugene Higgins Professor of Chemistry, received the Society's Arthur C. Cope Award.

• Elected: The American Academy of Arts and Sciences elected five Columbia professors as members at the academy's 200th annual meeting in Boston on May 21. The new members are: Arthur Danto, Johnsonian Professor of Philosophy; Isidore Edelman, Johnson Professor of Biochemistry; Kent Greenawalt, Cardozo Professor of Jurisprudence; Joaquin Luttinger, Professor of Physics; and Edmund Phelps, Professor of Economics.

• Named: William Leuchtenberg, DeWitt Clinton Professor of History, and Steven Marcus '48, Delacorte Professor in the Humanities, were among 44 scholars selected as 1980-81 fellows of the National Humanities Center, in Research Triangle Park, N.C., following an international competition. The center's first president and director was the late Columbia philosopher, Charles Frankel '37.

• Elected: Peter Blau, Quatelet Professor of Sociology, Cyril Harris, Charles Batchelor Professor of Engineering and Professor of Architecture, and Julian Hochberg, Professor of Psychology, were elected to the National Academy of Sciences this year. Membership in the academy, considered one of America's highest scientific honors, has now been achieved by 42 Columbia scientists.

Dear Mr. President:

Fifteen alumni diagnose the state of the Republic and offer advice for the winner of November's election

Illustrated by Edward Koren '57

Columbia College Today asked a varied group of alumni to attempt a response to the following two-part question:

"What troubles you the most — or excites you the most — within American society today? If the President of the United States — whoever that turns out to be in November — were suddenly empowered to act on this issue, what would you advise him to do?" Here are their replies:

Lewis Anthony '74:

I am persuaded that the most distressing and potentially destructive force facing American society is neither economic exigency nor the need of maintenance of technological or military superiority, but instead the growing distillation from the American character of a hope in the future, a spirit of mission, and of a collective responsibility for the welfare of all, especially the poor, minorities, elderly, and other forgotten Americans for whom the promise and dream of our nation are yet deferred.

Evidence of this disquieting development is manifested in the growing indifference of many of our people to leaders and institutions and in the widespread perception of the powerlessness of institutions and technology to respond to urgent human needs, or to provide, in a time of clamorous inconstancy, a source of stability and inspiration. Thus persuaded, many persons are content with self-preoccupation and self-gratification, feeling that any energy directed towards the achievement of principles and causes will prove wasted and unproductive.

In my estimate, the existence of such an outlook should command pre-eminent attention. One of the chief lessons of history is that the decay of any nation is largely a reflection of the failure of political or intellectual leaders to meet the challenges of change, and the failure of the people to manifest an active concern with the outcome of the affairs that touch their lives.

My advice to any elected official would merely be this: you must bring not only exacting competence and compassion to the management of governmental affairs, but more importantly, you must speak to the aspirations, hopes and dreams of those who find their mental skies clouded with anxiety and despair. And you must speak with the quality of leadership and vigorous hope so well expressed by Mr. Justice Holmes: "We must search beyond the popular discontent to find its cause. We must look ahead—plan and build for a better world—blaze new trails of brotherhood and understanding, [for] beyond the vision of battling races and an impoverished earth, I catch a dreaming glimpse of peace."

Failing the cultivation of such a view as this among us, and the repudiation of our growing narcissism, there can be no security against our demise.

Lewis Anthony is an aide to the Mayor of Washington, D.C.

Arthur F. Burns '25:

Of all of America's current problems, inflation troubles me the most. The damage that inflation has done to our country is evident all around us. Inflation has eroded the real value of everyone's money earnings and monetary assets. It has created large and wholly arbitrary redistributions of income and wealth. It has deprived people of effective means of planning for their future and of providing against the contingencies that arise in life. It has been destroying the self-respect of many of our citizens by forcing them onto the welfare rolls. It has been reducing the efficiency of financial markets and of the workshops of our economy. It has been weakening business innovation and capital investment by multiplying risks, driving up interest charges, and causing taxes to be paid on a phantom portion of profits. It has been making our economy more vulnerable to recessions. It has been weakening the economic security that Congress sought to build through massive social legislation. It has been reducing the value of the dollar abroad as well as at home, thus diminishing our country's power and prestige in the international arena. In short, persistent inflation has been undermining our nation's economic, moral, and political strength.

In advising the President on ways of dealing with this problem, I would urge (a) revising the Federal budget process so as to make it much more difficult to run deficits; (b) adoption by Congress of a concurrent resolution stressing the importance of restrictive monetary policies in ending inflation; (c) dismantling or at least weakening government measures, such as restraints on imports, farm price support, minimum wage and Davis-Bacon legislation, and other restrictions on competition; (d) reforming regulations concerned with the environment, public health, and safety to insure that basic national objectives are achieved at minimum feasible cost; (e) encouraging productivity—enhancing capital investments by scheduling reductions in business taxes in each of the next five to seven years—the reduction to be quite small this year and next in order to avoid fanning the fires of inflation, but to become substantial in later years; (f) adopting other measures to increase productivity, including increased outlays for research and development, improved manpower training programs, and productivity councils in individual plants and offices; (g) de-controlling oil prices more rapidly and perhaps adding consumption taxes, despite adverse short-run effects on the price level, in the interest of achieving price stability over the longer run as well as regaining national energy independence.

A former Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Eisenhower and Chairman of the Federal Reserve board from 1970-78, Dr. Arthur F. Burns is now a Distinguished Scholar-in-Residence at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, in Washington, D.C.

James Stacy Coles '36:

The matter most troublesome nationally in the late 20th century, as I see the role the United States should play in the world and assess its ability to be effective in that role, is the selection process for the American presidency.

There are many extremely capable leaders in business, education and government in our country—the match of those anywhere on earth. On the whole, we find able men and women in our Congress and holding public office at state and local levels. But the present somewhat helter-skelter popularity contest by which the President is chosen has not brought the ablest persons to that office, nor ordinarily even to candidacy for the office. The United States cannot afford the soft luxury of not having the best of our leaders as President.

If this problem is to be recognized and solved, most careful study will be required, and undoubtedly constitutional reform must ultimately take place. The President (or the Congress) should establish a special commission to study the problem and make recommendations for its solution.

James Stacy Coles was President of Bowdoin College from 1952-67. He is now President of the Research Corporation, a scientific foundation based in New York.

Edward N. Costikyan '47:

What troubles me most is that the American electoral system is not working because smaller and smaller percentages of eligible voters are exercising their franchise. This means that special interest groups are increasingly taking over the government and imposing on the vast majority their very special views.

If I were advising the next President, I would urge him to condition access to the facilities which the Federal government increasingly provides to people all around the country upon their exercise of their franchise. There is no reason why people should feel themselves entitled to the privilege of federal loans, small business loans, UDAG grants and all of the other forms of federal subsidy which keep our economy going if they are unprepared to exercise their responsibilities as citizens.

Edward N. Costikyan is a partner in the New York law firm of Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison; his latest book is How to Win Votes: The Politics of 1980.

Ralph de Toledano '38:

What troubles me most about American society today? The breakdown in moral and educational values. Young people enter college today as semi-illiterates, with no knowledge of their historic and cultural heritage. They leave college convinced that the only thing that counts is ME, that society owes them everything and they owe society nothing. And send the bill to a government which, in fraud and waste, is costing the people at least $100 billion a year.

Of course, no President can cope with this condition. It is a problem of an educational system which encourages political and social nihilism. It is the product of a philosophy which holds that the function of education is not to educate but to amuse. John Dewey preached that we must learn by doing. Today's paraphrase of that concept is that we must learn by undoing. So education has become a kind of invisible book-burning.

Ralph de Toledano is an author, photographer, and syndicated columnist.

Armand Hammer '19:

The pejorative attitude of many Americans towards the Soviet Union is a matter of grave concern. I believe our relations with the Soviets are about the worst I have seen in the past 60 years. We don't buy their ideology; they don't buy ours either. But that is no reason we cannot trade with each other instead of threatening each other with nuclear weapons. When I met with Mr. Brezhnev last February, he assured me the Soviets would pull out their troops from Afghanistan if they had a guarantee from the U.S. and countries bordering Afghanistan that they would not support insurgents who are opposed to the present Afghan government. He said this in Pravda, as well, and I feel he meant it.

I would reiterate to the President that despite the Soviet's unwarranted aggression, a dialogue with them must continue. We must restore detente because the fate of mankind rests in the balance. A second cold war could easily lead to a war of global devastation. We must be firm; we must build our military strength; but we must keep our communications in good order. A meeting between Mr. Brezhnev and the President of the United States in order to start a dialogue would be my first advice in this matter.

Dr. Armand Hammer is Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of the Occidental Petroleum Corporation.

Richard Jupa '67:

"Well... I've suddenly been empowered to act. So what do I do?"

He had turned up his palms in dejected appeal as he shrugged. They looked even damper than they'd been during our rather clammy handshake.

At this moment, I paused to reflect that what excited and troubled me most about American society today was that the President wanted my advice.

But advice costs. Ever try to get any from someone who might actually know something? Without leaving a piece of yourself behind?

"Let's deal," I said.

He seemed uncertain. The way he always did.

"I happen to represent a self-righteous little special interest group that really needs a favor... maybe you've heard of them... and I thought you just might....."

Richard Jupa is a former editor of Across the Board magazine, published by The Conference Board in New York, N.Y.

Leon H. Keyserling '28:

What troubles me most in the United States is the unwarranted pessimism about our future as a nation and a people.

At home, we are told that our pre-eminence in economic and related social performance is a thing of the past; that we must face years or decades of low achievement; that we should resign ourselves to lower standards of living or at least to much lower increases in standards of living; that what we should "sacrifice" should take precedence over the gains we can and must achieve; that we must learn "to do without" instead of regaining the capacity to do; and that we must permit illegitimate fears to take the place of legitimate goals and performance.

All this is not only a domestic evil; it means that we are being so far outdone in all basic elements of economic performance by nations such as Germany and Japan that they are excessively invading our markets, causing deep trouble to some of our most important industries, and losing confidence in U.S. capabilities which explains mainly the weakness of the dollar and their reluctance to continue to join with us in activities related to protection against the economic and military inroads of hostile totalitarian forces. Our horrible problems of inflation and budget deficits are but the derivatives of these other difficulties.

This selling short of America by American leadership, with the acceptance of a largely misinformed people, is neither justified nor tolerable. The energy shortages and other special problems from which we suffer now are less serious than others which we conquered in the past, and the natural boundaries for unlimited progress within this country, the hallmark of our successes in the past, are still open to full exploration and achievement.

We need only to learn by our impressive experience, and return again with appropriate adaptations to national policies which served us so magnificently for more than two decades after the Great Depression. This requires, first of all, national leadership in the executive branch and in the Congress, to develop and apply what might be called a long-range American economic performance budget, setting goals related to our potentials, and then adopting a unified and consistent set of policies related to these goals. The Humphrey-Hawkins Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1978 contains and indeed mandates everything needed for this purpose, and the complete violation of this act since its enactment both highlights our troubles and specifies how we can overcome them. It provides a cohesive and dynamic means to bring the American people together toward great purposes, instead of permitting them to be progressively weakened by the divisiveness of single-issue politics.

Dr. Leon H. Keyserling was Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Truman from 1950-53. An attorney who was active in framing the Humphrey-Hawkins Act, he is now President of the Conference on Economic Progress, in Washington, D.C.

Jeffrey Klein '69:

Columbia taught me to examine texts closely, so let me linger on your question. First, you assume a shared sense of dissatisfaction: "or excites you the most" comes almost as an afterthought. Second, you look to a President to remedy this malaise. And finally, you implicitly acknowledge that Presidents don't really have the power to act effectively.

Your question captures much of what I find troubling about public life in America today. We have delegated political responsibility to those who are certain to fail. But given the frightening limitations of those whom we elevate to the Presidency, the limitations of the office seem like a godsend.

Because our current chief executive is a hypocritical, moralistic incompetent, Americans would like to believe that Ronald Reagan is a straight, strong leader. The media is doing its best to broadcast this false image. These past three months, in preparation for a Mother Jones article, I have been researching, traveling with and interviewing Ronald Reagan and his key advisors. Reagan is not only a retrograde simpleton—as President he would be just a talking prop. His aides would run the show, and some of them are quite dangerous men. For example, Richard V. Allen is Reagan's chief foreign policy advisor. When Allen was working for Nixon in the White House, he began what became a highly lucrative acquaintanceship with Robert Vesco, then under full-scale public investigation by the government Allen purported to serve. Within 24 hours of leaving the White House staff, Allen began receiving a $10,000-a-month retainer from Vesco's attorney as a business consultant. Vesco is now a fugitive from multiple indictments; he allegedly looted $224 million in a mutual fund swindle and illegally contributed $200,000 to the Nixon re-election campaign.

Such are the kind of men we look to for leadership. When they inevitably betray us, we drive them from office and inaugurate new scoundrels.

Jeffrey Klein is an Editor of Mother Jones magazine, which has won 3 National Magazine Awards from Columbia University.

Harold Baxter Liebler '11:

Get back the Panama Canal; quit kow-towing with Soviets.

The Reverend Canon H.B. Liebler, the beloved "Navajo priest," lives in Monument Valley, Utah.

Robert D. Lilley '33:

There is much that troubles and excites me about American society today and the balance is on the exciting side. There is, however, one difficulty whose solution is a pre-condition to solving our many troubles: that we have leadership that is perceived by a significant portion of our population as believable. And while believability is something which must be earned, I do not think it wise for every thought or action of our leaders to be subject to an examination, with the idea that they are being perpetrated by a criminal or an incompetent. In a pluralistic society we all should have our say, but if we are to get anywhere, we must support the decisions that come out of our democratic process.

Despite what many perceive as insurmountable difficulties, I think we have a good deal to be excited about. There are many phases of our lives that work very well, indeed, but which are taken for granted and often suffer from lack of attention because of their very success. (For example, one need simply attempt to make a local telephone call in some foreign countries to appreciate the efficiency of our own system of communications.) It is my belief that, in attacking the remaining problems of our country, we should be mindful of our past successes to bolster our confidence.

Although retired now, I am attempting to practice this as an individual through my chairmanship of a local incentive support corporation. This is a well-staffed, well-funded, nationwide organization that identifies community undertakings which are working well. We try to further their success through expert advice, financial support, or both. While it is a small effort at present, it will, we hope, some day provide an exciting example of how individuals can unite to solve some of our problems.

Robert D. Lilley, the former President of A.T.&T., is concluding his second term as a Trustee of Columbia University.

Charles Peters '49:

Today most of the decisions of government are made by lobbyists, bureaucrats, and judges who are not elected by the people and who are not accountable to them. The people realize this, so fewer and fewer of them participate in politics, which means more and more power for the lobbyists who do participate.

The cure, I believe, is a rebirth of the political party which will happen only when there is adequate incentive for political work, when a large part of the present civil service is replaced with a new kind of patronage employee, whose appointment is based on political work and competence and integrity. This will produce a genuinely responsible government, where both the president and the clerk can be fired if they don't deliver the mail. Today the voters can fire the president, but since the president can't hire or fire the clerk, he can't make sure the mail is delivered. So we have people running for president who want, not to make the government work, but simply to be president.

Charles Peters is Editor of The Washington Monthly, and the author of How Washington Really Works.

Alvin F. Poussaint '56:

Social and racial progress in America has been achieved despite violent opposition from diehard reactionaries, and despite ambivalent and often begrudging apathetic attitudes on the part of the majority of citizens. Perhaps this is a testimony to the adequacy, at least up to this point, of our democratic institutions. Whether the have-nots, however, have the possibility of attaining full equality and equity in the future may depend not only on the democratic process, but on fundamental changes in an increasingly conservative and pessimistic American psyche.

There is a measure of feeling pervading the country that inequalities in class and race are, indeed, acceptable and are part of the deficiencies of a society that is less than perfect. This kind of mentality, unfortunately, may serve as a convenient rationalization for those increasing number of citizens who respond to social and economic inequities with a knee-jerk, short-sighted self-interest.

It is clear that we need a President who will bring Americans together on a note of shared responsibility for both the blessings and the banes of a democracy which continues to strive to become a just and equitable society.

Dr. Alvin F. Poussaint is Associate Professor of Psychiatry and Associate Dean for Student Affairs at the Harvard Medical School, and the co-author of Black Child Care.

Ralph S. Schoenstein '53:

What troubles me most in American society, Mr. President, is that part of it is about to disappear, a part I am sentimental about because I've been clinging to it for twenty-five years. The American middle class is going the way of the passenger pigeon. We have, of course, been the biggest pigeons of all.

By the time that you read this, Mr. President, I may have filed for bankruptcy — that is, if I can put the filing fee on my Master Charge. I've been trying to pay off Master Charge, but I can't find a way to make my car run on apple juice, so I have to continue helping the oil companies qualify for the windfall profits tax that is going to be such a boon to me.

My portfolio, which is currently bearish on IOUs, has been further weakened because I can't seem to hide any of my income; and so, once again, I've had to give a quarter of it to the federal government for such experimental projects as the U.S. Postal Service, which can deliver in snow and sleet but is constantly defeated by sun.

Unfortunately, Mr. President, when the middle class goes under, it will be less noticeable than the failure of Chrysler and may not capture your attention. Of course, my problems are smaller than Chrysler's. Right now, for example, I simply must decide whether to pay my daughter's college tuition or buy food for the next six months.

How I miss the days when the biggest problem of my class (Columbia '53) was whether grass should be planted in Van Am Quad. I wonder if any grass will be planted on a memorial to the fallen bourgeoisie, a Tomb of the Unknown Debtor, perhaps.

Author and columnist Ralph S. Schoenstein lives in Princeton, N.J.

Lester Tanzer '51:

What concerns me most about American society is the loss of a sense of common purpose. The rise of single-issue groups — abortion, gun control and so on — reflect that loss, but the divisions run far deeper as the nation splinters into ethnic, social, religious, racial and other groups — often organized for political purposes — with their own axes to grind. As John Gardner, the educator and foundation executive puts it, "The war of the parts against the whole is the central problem of pluralism today."

Conflict among various groups in American life is nothing new. Most of these groups have legitimate concerns. But the tremendous expansion of such groups and their capacity, in a media age, to organize, to attract adherents and to intimidate lawmakers has turned what once was healthy competition into destructive competition. It has contributed to a loss of trust in one another. And it is a significant contributing factor to the paralysis of government.

I wish there was a simple solution that a President could impose. But the problem is an intangible and, therefore, cannot be dealt with by law. I suppose if we had a President who inspired deep confidence and trust and could make Americans aware of the dangers of uninhibited group self-interest, that would help. But the problem, in what many regard as a self-indulgent society, may be too pervasive for even a perfect President to solve alone.

Lester Tanzer is Managing Editor of U.S. News & World Report.

Priorities for the 80's:

A survey of recent and prospective trends affecting Columbia College in the next decade

by Arnold Collery Dean of Columbia College

[Editor's note: With this issue of CCT, the administration begins a series of reports assaying the progress and problems of the College in key areas. Further reports will look more deeply into College admissions, academic affairs, financial aid, alumni affairs, and student life.

Dean Collery invites readers to submit questions concerning the College's programs and policies; questions of general interest, along with Dean Collery's replies, will be published in upcoming issues of CCT — an extension of the traditional "open-door" policy to the pages of this magazine.]

NICK ROMANENKO

As we consider the well-being of Columbia College at the current juncture, it is clear that this institution faces the very serious problems of the next decade with strength in its most critical areas. The danger is that sheer complacency — so often the result of past success — will cause us to ignore the opportunity we now have to fortify the College beyond the next decade and into the 21st century.

The excellence of any liberal arts college depends most crucially on its curriculum and the quality of its faculty and students. In all three respects, Columbia College remains one of the outstanding colleges in the nation.

The core curriculum:

We hold firm in the insistence on the traditional requirements of a Columbia College degree. Each student in the College must still take a year of Contemporary Civilization and of Humanities, at least one semester of English Composition, a semester of Art Humanities and of Music Humanities; all of which are still taught in small sections. In addition, he must study a foreign language for two years and take one year of science. The faculties of many other colleges that abandoned their programs of general education in the turmoil of the late 1960's are now struggling with little success to re-establish them in some form.

No matter how well a curriculum has served a college in the past and no matter how popular it is with its faculty, students and alumni, it is essential that it continually be re-examined to remain vital and alive. The need for review extends beyond the core curriculum to the entire academic offering. Curricular self-criticism is pursued vigorously each Wednesday, when the Committee on Instruction meets. A formal analysis of the curriculum was completed not long ago by a committee chaired by Professor of Art History David Rosand '59, which reaffirmed the focus and rigor of the College's degree requirements.

The College faculty:

The College faculty consists of those members of arts and sciences departments who teach in the College, most of whom are voting members of other faculties within the University. They are an outstanding group of teaching scholars, and many are deeply committed to undergraduate education. Alumni recall the brilliant teachers who are no longer with us; time does take its toll. But, collectively, the faculty of the College has never been better. The period after World War II was one of great expansion in higher education, and the academic career attracted an unusual number of brilliant people into college teaching. Columbia has its share of them.

However, the real incomes of professors have been substantially eroded over the past decade. Beginning salaries for some lawyers and doctors are now higher than the incomes of full professors in the middle or near the end of their professional careers. The extent of the national depression in higher education can be measured by the paucity of entering positions in our colleges and universities for new Ph.D.'s. The near-term prospects for permanent positions at institutions of the quality of Columbia remain poor, obliging talented young men and women to choose other careers. The depressed state of the market today will mean trouble in the mid-1990's: when academic positions become available once again in large number, replacements of the quality of our present faculty will not be readily available.

The student body:

Of more immediate concern is the quality of the students Columbia will teach in the next decade. The demographics are well-known: the number of people of college age will decrease each year for many years to come, although a rise is anticipated at the turn of the century. The resulting decline in total applications to liberal arts colleges as a whole may be exacerbated by other colleges attempting to alleviate their financial difficulties by admitting more students. The consequences, to an individual college, will depend largely on its present degree of selectivity.

The least selective or non-selective colleges will experience a drastic reduction in applicants and in the admissions yield (the percentage of admitted students actually enrolling). Some colleges will be forced to close. The most highly selective colleges will be affected least of all.

Columbia College remains highly selective, so it will not suffer the worst effects of the new demography, but it will be affected nonetheless. Unlike the mid-60's, when the College saw a substantial increase in both applications and admissions yield, the College could see a reduction in both areas.

We are not necessarily helpless to react to this demographic problem. While nothing can be done to increase the number of young men of college age, the applicant pool could be greatly expanded if the College began to admit women as well as men, and a Constitutional amendment guaranteeing equal rights might compel us to do just that. Our regional alumni program is already increasing the national reach of our admissions recruiting program, and should continue to grow. In addition, Columbia's location in New York City is becoming more of an advantage as the attitude toward city life continues to improve. But our ability to remain competitive depends, too, on the physical facilities of the campus.

The quality of campus life:

A major campaign is already being waged to improve conditions on campus: the construction of the Dodge Physical Fitness Center and the splendid Francis S. Levien Gymnasium; the renovation of Ferris Booth Hall now underway, thanks to the generous support of alumni Herbert M. Singer '26 and Ira D. Wallach '29, and a bequest from the late George Jonas '19; the ongoing construction of the East Campus complex, spear-headed by the late Jerome A. Newman '17 and the Board of Visitors of Columbia College, which was established by my vigorous predecessor, Dean Peter R. Pouncey; the reconstruction of Hartley and Livingston halls, made possible by magnificent gifts from Jerome L. Greene '26 and Ira D. Wallach '29; the renovation of the College Admissions Office, through the generosity of a member of the Board of Visitors, and a plan to improve the appearance of South Field—all contribute to our goal of a livable and attractive campus.

When the funding of the East Campus is completed, the campaign to improve the quality of life will by no means be over. John Jay, Furnald, and Hamilton Hall, the home of the College, must be refurbished. In addition, some of the undergraduate science laboratories are an acute embarrassment, as is the stadium at Baker Field. The improvement of each of them must become a part of a major capital drive. Until each of these tasks is completed, no one who cares deeply about the College can rest assured that all reasonable measures have been taken to protect and promote its excellence. Contributions now to the East Campus are urged, for the successful completion of the campaign will hasten the day when we can finally attend to these other pressing needs.

The College and the University:

The continued and increased identity of the College as a separate and special place within the University has been an issue to which I have given much thought and attention since becoming Dean. A strong College is an end in itself, but it is also vital to the reputation of the entire institution. Proposals have recently been advanced which address the problems relating to the structure of the arts and sciences divisions—the College, the Graduate School, International Affairs, and General Studies. In every proposal that I know of, the College would become submerged into a new construct called the Arts and Sciences. It is difficult to see how this could ever be acceptable. Any structural rearrangement must guarantee the integrity of the College, with a distinct faculty responsible for the standards of admission and the curriculum.

However, an irrational fear of structural change is not in the best interests of the College. For example, the belief that closer cooperation between Barnard and Columbia colleges must entail a substantial loss of Barnard's identity has sometimes resulted in policies that are not to the advantage of Barnard or Columbia students. Former College Dean David B. Truman once wrote, "Unless all of these units [in the arts and sciences] are operating under closely coordinated policies governing the size of enrollments, standards of admission, staffing, teaching loads, opportunities for research, and even to some degree curricular development, they are almost certain to be working at cross purposes. In the not so long run, neither they nor the University will benefit."

A brilliant solution to this old problem of structure and responsibility may well have come in the appointment of Fritz Stern '46, the Seth Low Professor of History, to the position of Provost of the University, with special responsibility for the arts and sciences. The new Provost may be able to develop a total vision of the interrelationships between the four schools, and then, working with the various administrations and faculties, produce the coherence of policies called for by Dean Truman.

It is paradoxical that at the same time proposals appear to centralize decision making in the arts and sciences, another program is being instituted to decentralize financial planning and control within the University. It is surely true that many problems faced by the various schools are best dealt with at the divisional level—admissions, curriculum, and alumni affairs are certainly examples. In these matters, the College should continue to retain its identity and responsibilities, while any conflicting policies are resolved collegially under the leadership of the Provost.

I would like to end with a few words of thanks. Also in this issue is the report of the 28th Columbia College Fund. The total results are impressive. I thank each of you who remembered the College last year and contributed to this record Fund, from the bottom of my heart.

Roar Lion Roar

Sports Bulletins

• The brainy bunch: Varsity athletes often make the Dean's List at Columbia, but it is highly unusual for a student athlete to both excel in his sport and finish at the top of his class scholastically. In 1980, George Yancopoulos accomplished this dual feat.

Co-captain of the lightweight crew and valedictorian of the Class of 1980, Mr. Yancopoulos earned two varsity letters and graduated summa cum laude, with a four-year grade-point average of 4.14 (4.0 being an "A"). For his accomplishments, the Bronx Science graduate was awarded his second consecutive Eisenhower Watch at this year's Varsity "C" dinner. Renato Mirollo, also a Bronx Science grad, was salutatorian of the Class of '80.

All-Ivy defensive end Mario Biaggi '80 also earned his share of academic glory, receiving an NCAA fellowship for outstanding scholar-athletes, a Frank Hogan Scholarship at Columbia Law School, and a second consecutive election to the Skoal/Happy Days Academic All-America football team.

• Lion All-Americans: Four Columbia athletes earned All-America designation in 1979-80. Honored were soccer stalwarts Barry Nix and Steve Charles (who later withdrew to turn pro in England); swimmer Tony Corbisiero; and Vladimir Zlobinsky, who became the 51st Columbia fencer to gain All-America honors.

• Dedication: Columbia has named its new eight-oared racing shell in honor of Rosalind P. Walter, the wife of Henry Walter, Jr. '31, who rowed bow on the Lions' legendary 1929 national champion crew, and now serves as chairman of International Flavors and Fragrances, Inc. The new shell was manufactured in England out of the same carbon fiber material used to build the Concorde. The all-white boat is over 100 pounds lighter than some of the team's other shells. In its maiden race on April 12, the Walter shell triumphed over M.I.T.

A note to readers

CCT will begin expanded sports coverage in the Winter 1980-81 edition.

All-America fullback Barry Nix '82

Bookshelf

How to Think About God by Mortimer Adler '23. Attempting to prove the existence of God to the "20th century pagan," (Macmillan, $9.95).

Late Antique, Early Christian and Medieval Art by Meyer Schapiro '24, University Professor Emeritus. The third volume of selected papers by the distinguished scholar, treating both religious and secular expressions of the period, (Braziller, $25).

The Letters of Gustave Flaubert, selected, edited, and translated by Francis Steegmuller '27. Varied selection of Flaubert's letters, chronicling his years at law school, his tumultuous affair with Louise Colet, and the formative compositional stages of Madame Bovary, (Harvard University Press, $12.50).

Richard Franko Goldman ('30): Selected Essays and Reviews, 1948-1968. Selections from the progressive and challenging critical writings of the late composer, conductor and educator, (Institute for Studies in American Music, Brooklyn College, $10, paper).

History, Religion and Spiritual Democracy: Essays in Honor of Joseph L. Blau ('31), Professor Emeritus of Religion, edited by Maurice Wohlgelehter. A collection of pieces reflecting the broad scholarly interests of the esteemed Columbia teacher, who retired in 1977. Included are remembrances by his teachers Salo W. Baron, James Gutmann '18, and Herbert Schneider '15, and by his colleagues Justus Buchler and Paul O. Kristeller, (Columbia University Press, $27.50).

Employing the Unemployed, edited by Eli Ginzberg '31, A. Barton Hepburn Professor of Economics. Eleven essays weigh the national effort to achieve a full-employment economy, (Basic Books, $15).

Fin-de-Siècle Vienna: Politics and Culture by Carl E. Schorske '36. The noted historian examines the social, political and intellectual ferment of "Ringstrasse" Vienna: the time of Freud, Schönberg, Herzl, Otto Wagner, and the young Hitler, (Knopf, $16.95).

Education's Lasting Influence on Values by Herbert H. Hyman '39 and Charles R. Wright '49. A study based on previous national surveys, showing a correlation between years spent in school and the development of progressive social values, (University of Chicago Press, $12.50).

The Best of Popular Photography, edited by Harvey V. Fondiller '40. Surveying over forty eventful years of photographic evolution, as chronicled in Popular Photography magazine since 1937—from the artisanship of Ansel Adams to the lensless, cameraless "Kirlian process," (Ziff-Davis, $29.95).

Principle and Practicality: Essays in Neo-Confucianism and Practical Learning, edited by Wm. Theodore de Bary '41, John Mitchell Mason Professor of the University, and Irene Bloom, Lecturer in East Asian Languages and Cultures. Essays exploring the continuities and discontinuities between the Neo-Confucian thought of Ming China and early Tokugawa Japan, and the so-called practical learning of the 17th and 18th centuries, (Columbia University Press, $27.50, cloth, $12, paper).

Italian Mass Emigration: The Exodus of a Latin People by Francesco Cordasco '42. A bibliographical guide to the Bolletino dell'emigrazione, which chronicled Italian emigration from 1907-1927, (Rowman and Littlefield, $47.50).

The Chains by Gerald Green '42. Fictional saga tracing the rise of the Chain family from obscure labor union origins to the zenith of corporate power over three generations, spanning the years 1910-1960, (Seaview Books, $11.95).

Blue Moon by Walter Wager '44. Alison B. Gordon, an expensive private eye from Beverly Hills, allies herself with Las Vegas racketeers in a race to save thousands of innocent lives, (Arbor House, $9.95).

How to Win Votes: The Politics of 1980 by Edward N. Costikyan '47. Having written a classic study of the "old" politics, Behind Closed Doors (1966), Mr. Costikyan now provides a guide to the "new" politics worthy of Machiavelli, (Harcourt Brace, $12.95).

He/She by Herbert Gold '48. A novel of modern marital discord, set in San Francisco, (Arbor House, $9.95).

In Rodin's Studio by Albert E. Elsen '49. From Rodin's personal photographic diary of his work in progress, a collection of 157 extraordinary photographs by Charles Bodmer, Eugene Druet, Edward Steichen, and others. Selected, annotated, and introduced by the eminent Rodin authority, (Cornell University Press, $24.95).

From In Rodin's Studio, by Albert Elsen '49

Law, Ethics and the Visual Arts: Cases and Methods by John H. Merryman and Albert Elsen '49. Legal, moral and philosophical precepts relating to the creation, distribution and exhibition of works of art. Issues considered include the proper relationship between government and art, and the history of plundered and smuggled masterpieces, (Matthew Bender, 2 vols., $29.50, paper).

The Dialectics of Social Life: Alarms and Excursions in Anthropological Theory by Robert Murphy '49, Professor of Anthropology. Incorporating such thinkers as Sigmund Freud and Claude Levi-Strauss into an original view of current anthropological theory, (Columbia University Press, $6, paper).

How Washington Really Works by Charles Peters '49. An insider lays bare America's permanent governmental power centers—the lobbies, the bureaucracy, legislative staffs, the press, the military, the courts, the foreign service, the regulatory agencies, Congress and the White House, (Addison-Wesley, $10.95, cloth, $5.95, paper).

Pablo Picasso: A Retrospective, edited by William S. Rubin '49. The most complete pictorial catalog of Picasso's work in a single volume, occasioned by the Museum of Modern Art's exhibition, and compiled by its director, (The Museum of Modern Art, $45, cloth, $19.95, paper).

Stairwell 7: Family Life in the Welfare State, by Neil C. Sandberg '49. A comprehensive study of the factors affecting the delivery of services to the marginal poor, based on the experiences of six Maryland families, (Sage Publications, $16.50).

The Present Danger by Norman Podhoretz '50. The editor of Commentary magazine warns that the American unwillingness to oppose Soviet expansion may leave the nation with the unacceptable alternatives of surrender or war, (Simon & Schuster, $7.95).

New Critical Essays by Roland Barthes, translated by Richard Howard '51. Collected literary essays by the influential French critic, who died earlier this year, (Hill and Wang, $10.95).

Life Beyond Earth by Gerald Feinberg '53, Professor of Physics, and Robert Shapiro. For "intelligent earthlings," an examination of the nature of life, its possible forms, and its possible distribution throughout the universe. (William Morrow, $14.95, cloth, $7.95, paper).

Sir Winston Churchill by Manfred Weidhorn '54. A synoptic study of Churchill's ideas, writing techniques, and style, (G.K. Hall, $10.95).

A Divorce Dictionary by Stuart M. Glass '56. Helping children and parents to understand the laws that influence them now and will affect them in the future, (Little, Brown, $7.95).

The Great Succession: Henry James and the Legacy of Hawthorne by Robert Emmet Long '56. Demonstration of James' adaptation of Hawthorne's basic themes—rural, moral, and romantic—into a more realistic social fiction, (University of Pittsburgh Press, $12.95).

The Achieving of 'The Great Gatsby': F. Scott Fitzgerald, 1920-1925 by Robert Emmet Long '56. In-depth look at the art and evolution of Fitzgerald's greatest novel, ranging from his use of Conrad's works and Greek and Christian mythology as antecedent forms, to his imaginative conception of 1920's American culture, (Bucknell University Press, $13.50).

When Calories Didn't Count: From The Promise and the Product, by Victor Margolin '63 et. al.

New Dimensions 10, edited by Robert Silverberg '56. Latest volume in this acclaimed series of new science fiction writing, assembled by the award-winning author, (Harper & Row, 10.95).

The Resonance of Dust: Essays on Holocaust Literature and Jewish Fate by Edward Alexander '57. The impact of the Holocaust upon the covenantal structure of Jewish religion, and the rival claims of Israeli and American Jewry to the inheritance of the culture destroyed in Europe, (Ohio State University Press, $15).

The Cubs and Other Stories by Mario Vargas Llosa, translated by Gregory Kolovakos and Ronald Christ '58. The first English translation of some of the early stories of the noted Peruvian author, (Harper & Row, $10).

A Guide to Post-Keynesian Economics edited by Alfred S. Eichner '58. Eleven economists criticize the prevailing orthodoxy and offer systematic public policy alternatives, (M.E. Sharpe, $15, cloth, $5.95, paper).

Big City Police by Robert M. Fogelson '58. Historical study of the relationship between urban police and their communities, with emphasis on the various reform movements of the 20th century, (Harvard University Press, $7.95, paper).

The Wild Boy of Burundi by Harlan Lane '58 and Richard Pillard. Psychological study of a modern-day feral child found in the Central African forests, (Random House, $10).

Conscience and Convenience: The Asylum and Its Alternatives in Progressive America by David J. Rothman '58, Professor of History. A study of the character of social order and disorder in the United States, exploring the origins and consequences of the programs and policies that have dominated criminal justice, juvenile justice and mental health, (Little, Brown, $17.50).

Brain Surgeon: An Intimate View of His World by Lawrence Shainberg '58. Paperback edition of the novelist's acclaimed non-fiction study of a leading neurosurgeon, (Fawcett/Crest, $2.50).

The Story of STORY Magazine by Martha Foley, with introduction and afterword by Jay Neugeboren '59. Memoir by the co-editor of the beloved literary magazine which published the first stories of such writers as Mailer, Salinger, Cheever, Saroyan and McCullers, (Norton, $12.95).

The French Veteran by Isser Woloch '59, Professor of History. Richly documented study of the evolving social, military, and political fate of French war veterans from the close of the Old Regime to the 1820's, (University of North Carolina Press, $27).

The Architect's Eye: American Architectural Drawings from 1799-1978 by Deborah Nevins and Robert A.M. Stern '60, Associate Professor of Architecture. A lavishly-printed portfolio of eighty drawings with text, amounting to an historical survey of American architectural drawing from Thomas Jefferson to Robert Venturi, (Pantheon, $35).

Street Games by Alan Lechner '61. An investment advisor investigates the volatile world of Wall Street finance in the 1970's and provides an introduction to the rules of the games investors play, (Harper and Row, $8.95).

David Garrick: A Reference Guide by Gerald M. Berkowitz '63. First full-length bibliography of secondary materials on the greatest actor of the 18th-century English stage, providing a comprehensive listing of all commentary on Garrick from 1741 to the present, (G.K. Hall, $34).

The Imperfect Diamond by Lee Lowenfish '63 and Tony Lupien. The story of baseball's reserve system and the men who fought to change it, (Stein and Day, $12.95).

The Promise and the Product: 200 Years of American Advertising Posters by Victor Margolin '63, Ira Brichta, and Vivian Brichta. Featuring over 375 posters, from the early broadsides of the Colonial era to Pop Art graphics of the 1970's, (Macmillan, $17.50).

Fair Science: Women in the Scientific Community by Jonathan R. Cole '64, Professor of Sociology. Comparative studies of the careers of men and women scientists, and the added difficulties women scientists face, (The Free Press, $17.95).

The People of the Plain by David D. Gilmore '65. Ethnographic study of rural Spain, focusing on the class relations and traditional culture of a lower Andalusian farming town, (Columbia University Press, $20).

Moneypower: How To Make Inflation Make You Rich by Ben Stein '66 with Herbert Stein. Investment strategies for today's economic world, by the former Wall Street Journal columnist and his father, the noted economist, (Harper & Row, $8.95).

Urban Society in an Age of War: Nördlingen, 1580-1720 by Christopher R. Friedrichs '68. An exploration in local history, examining the impact of warfare on the social and economic structure of a small German city during a turbulent period of early modern history, (Princeton University Press, $22).

Beyond Amazement: New Essays on John Ashbery, edited by David Lehman '70. Ten critical essays explore the rich, innovative work of America's most controversial and perhaps most significant contemporary poet, (Cornell University Press, $15, cloth, $7.95, paper).

Congress and Israel by Marvin C. Feuerwerker '71. Analysis of congressional decision-making in one key area during the Nixon and Ford administrations, (Greenwood Press, $23.95).

Soviet Dissidents: Their Struggle for Human Rights by Joshua Rubenstein '71. The New England coordinator of Amnesty International U.S.A. traces the history of the Soviet human rights movement through the personal stories of prominent dissidents, (Beacon Press, $12.95).

Regulatory Bureaucracy: The Federal Trade Commission and Antitrust Policy by Robert A. Katzmann '73. Mr. Katzmann, an editor at the Yale Law Journal, conducted over 100 interviews and utilized the Freedom of Information Act to analyze the decision-making process at a single controversial agency, (M.I.T. Press, $17.50).

Small Business in American Life edited by Stuart W. Bruchey, Allen Nevins Professor of Economic History. An extensive investigation of the economic, political and social role of American small business over the past two centuries, (Columbia University Press, $22.50).

In Quest: Journal of an Unquiet Pilgrimage by Sigmund Diamond, Giddings Professor of Sociology and Professor of History. Autobiographical approach to Jewish history based on the author's travels through Eastern and Western Europe and Israel, (Columbia University Press, $14.95).

Transitions: Four Rituals in Eight Cultures by Martha Nemes Fried and Morton H. Fried, Professor of Anthropology. Birth, puberty, marriage and death, in cultures from the Kalahari Desert to Southeastern Alaska, (Norton, $14.95).

The Interpretation of Medieval Lyric Poetry by W.T.H. Jackson, Villard Professor of German and Comparative Literature. Ten distinguished scholars examine the meaning and evolution of the lyric in terms of its prosody, genre, and varied continental origins, (Columbia University Press, $17.50).

The Heroine's Text by Nancy K. Miller, Assistant Professor of French. A critical approach to the personality and psyche of the heroine in the 18th-century European novel, (Columbia University Press, $18.50).

History of the Idea of Progress by Robert Nisbet, Albert Schweitzer Professor of Humanities Emeritus. Analysis of the belief in the idea that mankind has advanced in the past, is now advancing, and will continue to advance, (Basic Books, $16.95).

Pirandello: An Introduction to his Theatre by Olga Ragusa, Da Ponte Professor of Italian. The career and art of the original and influential playwright who anticipated much of later 20th century literature, (Edinburgh University Press, $16.50).

The Country Changes by Lee Rudolph, Assistant Professor of Mathematics. The second volume of songs and poetry by Mr. Rudolph, who doubles as an analytic geometric topologist. (Alice James Books, Cambridge, Mass., $4.95, paper.)

Six Modern British Novelists edited by George Stade, Professor of English. Revised essays from the acclaimed Columbia Essays on Modern Writers series. A concise introduction to Bennett, Waugh, Ford, Virginia Woolf, Conrad, and Forster, (Columbia University Press, paper, $7.50).

—John Sharp '79 and staff

Whitney Warren: Grand Central Terminal 1910, elevation study, from The Architect's Eye, by Deborah Nevins and Robert A.M. Stern '60

Talk of the Alumni

Alexander Hamilton Medal: Herman Wouk '34 to receive highest alumni tribute

"Any husband is forgiven for believing his wife is the finest woman in the world," author Herman Wouk '34 once wrote, "and any alumnus will probably be forgiven for thinking his alma mater is the best college in the world."

The College Alumni Association will certainly be forgiven for believing that Mr. Wouk is among its most distinguished members, when it awards him the 1980 Alexander Hamilton medal at a dinner ceremony in Low Rotunda on November 12. The internationally-acclaimed novelist joins such past Hamilton medalists as Mark Van Doren, George T. Delacorte '13, Lionel Trilling '25, Allan Nevins, and Joseph Wood Krutch.

Born in New York City, Herman Wouk was an editor at Jester and Spectator as a Columbia College student. He later wrote radio comedy for Fred Allen, earned four campaign stars and a unit citation as a naval officer in World War II, and won the 1952 Pulitzer Prize in fiction for The Caine Mutiny. Other works by Mr. Wouk include Aurora Dawn, City Boy, Marjorie Morningstar, Youngblood Hawke, and This is My God. More recently, he published a sweeping historical romance — The Winds of War and its sequel, War and Remembrance — which required 16 years of research and writing, and enjoyed tremendous popular acceptance.

Mr. Wouk lives with his wife, the former Betty Sarah Brown, in Washington, D.C. A son, Joseph Wouk '75, graduated from Columbia Law School last year.

[For information about the Hamilton dinner, contact Rose Brooks, 100 Hamilton Hall, N.Y. 10027 (212) 280-5537.]

Jerome A. Newman (1896-1980): A fiercely loyal and dedicated friend of the College

Jerome A. Newman '17, financier, business executive, philanthropist, and chairman of the Board of Visitors of Columbia College, died at the age of 83 on August 10 at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York.

One of the College's most dedicated and effective alumni leaders, Mr. Newman was a founder and co-chairman of the University's Quality-of-Life campaign to build and refurbish dormitories. In earlier stages of his involvement, he set an example by establishing the Jerome A. Newman scholarship fund, earmarked to aid college students; he served as general chairman of the Columbia College Fund in 1962 and 1969-70, and as a member of the Columbia College Council. In 1961, he founded the John Jay Associates, a group of concerned alumni whose donations continue to form the backbone of the College's financial support. For his efforts on Columbia's behalf, Mr. Newman was honored with a Presidential citation, the Alumni Federation's medal for conspicuous service, and a Lion award. "No one in the recent history of the College," remarked Dean Arnold Collery, "has cared more deeply about its welfare."

A 1919 graduate of Columbia Law School, Mr. Newman became a highly successful businessman in a variety of enterprises. In 1926, he joined with the late Benjamin Graham '14 to form the Graham-Newman Corporation, an investment concern which enjoyed legendary success. He served as director or president of the Government Employees Insurance Company (GEICO), the Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Steamship Lines, and Warner Brothers-Seven Arts Corporation, among other companies.

Mr. Newman devoted considerable energy to the many philanthropic and charitable organizations with which he was associated, among them the Jewish Guild for the Blind, whose New York headquarters is named for his first wife, Estelle, who died in 1964; Bennington College in Vermont, which he served as a trustee; the New York Shakespeare

GEORGE TAMES

Herman Wouk '34

Festival, of which Mr. Newman was also a former trustee and whose Lafayette Street theatre was also named for his first wife; the American Jewish Committee and the Joint Distribution Committee, in addition to Columbia.

"Jerry Newman was a fiercely loyal and dedicated friend," said Al Barabas '36, who headed the Columbia College Fund during the 1960's and worked closely with Mr. Newman. "He was a complex man of wide-ranging interests, equally at home in the art centers as he was at Baker Field, where his analysis of the game often amazed me.

"But as I reflect on what I perceive to be the core of this fine man's life, it was his family," Mr. Barabas added. "There was a quiet electricity of affection and tremendous mutual respect which seemed constantly to flow whenever members of the family gathered together."

Mr. Newman is survived by his wife, Elizabeth, of Palm Beach, Fla., a daughter, Patricia Woolner, a son, Howard, a brother, Douglass, and 12 grandchildren.

The College Fund: Senkier Sets Record Goals for 1980-81 Annual Fund

To follow the record-breaking 28th Annual Fund, during which a total of $2.6 million was raised for Columbia College, newly appointed Fund chairman Robert J. Senkier '39 is targeting a total fund of over $3 million in 1980-81.

Dr. Senkier emphasizes the need for unrestricted gifts to rise from the current level of $1.2 million to $2 million, and hopes to see alumni participation grow from 26 to 30 percent. "It will be quite a challenge," he concedes, "but one worthy of a great Ivy League college. I am optimistic that with increased support from the dedicated staff, our thousands of loyal alumni will respond."

Dr. Senkier, who retired as dean of Fordham University's Graduate School of Business in 1979, has served as fund chairman for the Class of 1939 for most of the past decade. He is hopeful that some of the ideas he used on the class level can be adapted for the general

Black alumni conference: Alarmed by a decline in minority applications to Columbia in recent years, the College administration and the Alumni Association invited a group of 61 black alumni to a weekend conference on campus in May, to rejuvenate recruiting efforts and analyze the current policies and programs. While pledging support, several alumni emphasized that the climate on campus—from administrative support and financial aid to student attitudes—is the key to a more successful strategy.

alumni body. "I'd hope especially to see enthusiasm generated by alumni themselves at the grassroots level — with people contacting the friends they made while at Columbia on varsity teams or in fraternities, for example," says Dr. Senkier.

Both Dr. Senkier and Director of Alumni Affairs William Oliver '64 feel that the concurrence of the Quality-of-Life campaign and the Annual Fund may be a positive factor in the long run, but may dampen the Fund's growth in the short term. "There's no question there has been an effect," comments Mr. Oliver. "We must make it clear to our alumni why it is important that they support the Quality-of-Life campaign and continue their annual giving to the College Fund. Without the Annual Fund, the College simply can't exist."

The President's Box:

The Day is Short, the Work is Great

by Joseph B. Russell '49
President, CCAA

While I am pleased and proud to have been elected president of the College Alumni Association, it is with a sense of humble perspective that I assume the office. My title has been held in prior years by some truly impressive men, and it would be hard to name a president who has been more effective than my immediate predecessor, Richard Friedlander '60. Fortunately, the Association is blessed with a splendid group of officers and directors, whose energy and imagination are hard to match. With their help — and yours — I shall try to carry out the duties of my new position effectively.

Columbia College's alumni body is indeed well-rounded — our occupations are as many and diverse as are our backgrounds and origins. We follow our own paths, each of us, confident in our ability to separate the significant from the trivial, the sounder argument from the weaker, the treasure from the trash. This ability, which we share, was fostered by Columbia. This dispassionate skepticism unites us today, whatever our views may be.

In serving the College through the Alumni Association, we repay in some measure what we received as students. This is the only way we pay our dues, and it is a serious obligation.

Let me remind you of the purpose of our Association: "To maintain, stimulate and increase the loyalty and interest of Columbia College alumni in, and to increase support for, all activities that further the welfare of Columbia College." Several of the Association's goals are worth repeating, too:

- To assure preservation of the College's high academic quality.
- To work hard to obtain maximum financial support for the College.
- To assist in recruiting and enrolling qualified students.
- To be concerned for the welfare of students and faculty and the quality of life at the College.

None of these goals is a finish line. Each goal is a process — a means rather than an end. All of them are ongoing efforts, all of them are of one seamless piece.

I look forward to working with Deans Collery and Rosenthal, with the Alumni Affairs Office, with President Sovern, but most of all with my fellow officers and directors and with you, my fellow alumni, in our common effort.

In closing, I offer you some words out of a tradition that was overlooked in our own Humanities and CC courses, but may yet find its proper place. I refer to the wise Rabbi Tarphon, whose words, uttered some 1900 years ago, are handed down in the Sayings of the Fathers:

"The day is short, the work is great and the workers are slow; the reward is generous and the Master of the House is impatient. While it is not for you to complete the work, neither are you free to shirk it."

2nd John Jay Awards:

A Tradition of Inquiry, Reflection, and Service

"When Columbia College sets out to field a team of achievers, the only problem is how you could ever possibly collect a mere six," quipped Max Frankel '52 in his remarks at the second annual John Jay Awards dinner on April 16, 1980 in Low Library Rotunda. Mr. Frankel, editorial page editor of The New York Times, was among last year's winners of the award, given for distinguished professional achievement.

"What we celebrate here," he continued, "is the breadth, the endurance, the survival of a human tradition of inquiry, of reflection, and of service, which cumulatively defines the Columbia graduate across the generations."

Honored for their achievements were Emanuel Ax '70, concert pianist; James R. Barker '57, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Moore, McCormack Resources, Inc.; Lester Bernstein '40, editor of Newsweek magazine; Harold Brown '45, Secretary of Defense; Horace E. Davenport '29, chairman of Northeast Petroleum Industries, Inc.; and Stanley R. Jacobs '19, investor and philanthropist.

Arriving guests were met by a group of demonstrators on the steps of Low Library, protesting the College's intention to honor Secretary of Defense Brown, even though he was unable to attend because of a Camp David conference. Following remarks by Professor Emeritus of Physics I. I. Rabi, who taught Dr. Brown at Columbia and accepted the award on his behalf, President McGill commented, "It is poignant to consider the protests against Harold Brown and to remember, as you listen to Rabi's tribute to his student, that it was Rabi's organization of the U.S. scientific community during World War II that saved us in the struggle against the Nazis and the Japanese. We need such people."

The John Jay Awards dinner is held for the benefit of the John Jay National Scholarship Program, which aids the most promising incoming freshmen in the College for their four years at Columbia.

Follow the bouncing paw: Alumni attending their reunions at the Rye Town Hilton in Port Chester, N.Y., on the weekend of May 31-June 1, were entertained with selections from "Fly With Me," the 1920 Varsity Show by Rodgers and Hart revived by the Columbia Center for Theater Studies and performed by a student cast. To cap the after-dinner performance, guests joined in for a musical reminder that, although they met in the suburbs, their academic roots were set in cement.

Alumni bulletins

- Alumni trustee: Ann Sulzberger Sand, a 1954 alumna of the School of Social Work, won a plurality of the 23,351 ballots returned by University alumni in this year's trustee nomination. Her appointment as alumni trustee will follow formal ratification by the board in October. 9,678 votes were cast for Mrs. Sand, 8,742 for William Golub '34, '37L, and 4,931 for Frank Karelsen III '47.

- Honored: Richard Friedlander '60, who served as President of the Columbia College Alumni Association from 1978-80, was awarded the University Alumni Federation's medal for conspicuous service at their annual Commencement Day luncheon. One of 10 alumni to receive the Federation's highest honor, Mr. Friedlander is vice president/investments with Shearson Loeb Rhoades in New York City.

- Named: Daniel P. Baker '76, as a Regional Affairs Officer, replacing Tom Ferguson '74. A native of Medford, Mass., Mr. Baker is now covering upstate New York, the District of Columbia, Ohio, Indiana, Colorado, Texas and the Pacific Northwest areas as part of the College alumni office's growing regional effort. He formerly taught English at New York's Harlem Prep, the alternative public high school which was considered a model of its type, before it was merged out of existence in 1979. Tom Ferguson, a founding father of the regional program, resigned in July in time to honeymoon and brush up on his calculus before entering the MBA program at Wharton.

- Hall of Fame: The late Edward Howard Armstrong '13, the former Columbia professor who invented FM radio, was named this year to the National Inventors Hall of Fame in Arlington, Va. Maj. Armstrong's "superhet" circuit and other inventions provided the basis of electronic communications.

Vive la différence?:

The Columbia-Barnard Class Notes Controversy

A recent exchange of letters in the Barnard alumnae magazine addressed the comparative subject matter of Columbia and Barnard class notes.

"The preponderance of entries under Barnard's 'Class Notes' still deal with marriage and babies," lamented Merri Rosenberg '78B in the winter issue. "Columbia's notes, with rare exceptions, focus on the public lives of its alumni, with business promotions occupying the most space."

The succeeding issue contained a differing opinion from Cherry White Carnell '59B, who viewed Columbia's class notes as "self-congratulatory professional/business items, as contrasted with the more balanced, whole-life experiences reported by Barnard women." She found herself "feeling sorry for the men," who "perceive that their male peers will only show interest in and give respect to statements that chronicle increasing acquisition of power and accumulation of money."

Any thoughts from the Columbia side of the street?

In Memoriam

Earlier this year, Columbia mourned the loss of two of its most distinguished and public-spirited alumni, Arthur Levitt and Arthur M. Okun.

Arthur Levitt '21, who served as New York State Comptroller for a record six consecutive terms, died in New York City on May 6. Over the years, Mr. Levitt's reputation for personal integrity and his strict supervision of the state's finances earned him the admiring epithet, "Guardian of the Public Purse."

Under Mr. Levitt, the comptroller's office became an aggressive auditor of government spending and management practices; he was especially zealous in protecting the state's multi-billion dollar pension funds from what he regarded as political encroachments or expedient uses. Not unlike his Columbia contemporary, Frank S. Hogan '24, the late Manhattan District Attorney, Mr. Levitt conceived his position as a non-partisan public trust, and was rewarded by the public with respect, affection, and ever-increasing election pluralities.

A veteran of both World Wars and a graduate of both Columbia College and the Law School, Mr. Levitt was serving as president of the New York City Board of Education when he was invited to join the Democratic gubernatorial ticket of W. Averell Harriman in 1954; he later served under governors Rockefeller, Wilson and Carey. After Mr. Levitt retired from public office in 1978, he became a senior investment officer of the Lincoln Savings Bank and counsel to the law firm of Phillips,

In their fathers' footsteps

It's been a good year for Columbia alumni fathers. Ellen Futter, daughter of Victor Futter '39, ascended to the acting presidency of Barnard College. James R. Russell '74, son of Alumni Association President Joseph B. Russell '49, began teaching in the Armenian Center of Columbia's Department of Middle Eastern Languages and Cultures. Jeffrey Sovern '77 earned his LL.B. in the same ceremony that his father, University President Michael I. Sovern '53, was awarded an honorary LL.D. (see photo). Well on their way to achieving similar distinction are the 47 sons of College alumni who will enter Columbia with the Class of 1984:

Father	Son
Leonard Alsop '51 Old Tappan, N.J.	Richard Alsop	Jerome Lombardi '61 Vandergrift, Pa.	Gregory Lombardi
Arthur Bank '56 Riverdale, N.Y.	David Bank	Vincent Madonia '47 Garden City, N.Y.	William Madonia
Gene Baraff '52 Berkeley Heights, N.J.	Andrew Baraff	Paul Marks '45 New York, N.Y.	Matthew Marks
Richard Beckman '53 Philadelphia, Pa.	Peregrine Beckman	Walter Murray '52 Apharetta, Ga.	Scot Murray
Benson Begun '54 New York, N.Y.	Matthew Begun	Neil Opdyke '55 Valley Cottage, N.Y.	Bradley Opdyke
James Berick '55 Shaker Heights, Ohio	Daniel Berick	Ian Nisonson '58 Miami, Fla.	Evan Nisonson
Stephen Bernstein '55 Woodmere, N.Y.	Kenneth Bernstein	Richard Pataki '58 McMurray, Pa.	Robert Pataki
George Betts '57 West Fulton, N.Y.	Christopher Betts	Robert Paul '54 Thornwood, N.Y.	Andrew Paul
Paul Buxbaum '57 Sudbury, Mass.	Mark Buxbaum	Roland Plottel '55 New York, N.Y.	Michael Plottel
Warren Cachion '49 Haverford, Pa.	Peter Cachion	Simeon Pollack '54 Hastings, N.Y.	Richard Pollack
Robert Clew '56 Satellite Beach, Fla.	Brian Clew	Donald Pugatch '55 Lexington, Mass.	David Pugatch
Stephen Gilbert '54 Brooklyn, N.Y.	Ira Gilbert	Donald Rapson '51 Deal, N.J.	Jeffrey Rapson
Bernard Goldman '46 Evergreen, Colo.	Michael Goldman	Eugene Rossides '49 Washington, D.C.	Michael Rossides
Richard Gristede '51 Katonah, N.Y.	George Gristede	Aaron Satloff '56 Pittsford, N.Y.	James Satloff
Edmund Hawxhurst '54 Monroe, N.Y.	Edmund Hawxhurst	Sherman Schaefer '56 Paris, France	William Schaefer
Kenneth Heyman '53 New York, N.Y.	Timothy Heyman	George Stackfleth '60 Piermont, N.Y.	John Stackfleth
Eugene Hoenig '53 Newton Square, Pa.	Andrew Hoenig	Jeffrey Stewart '60 Upper Montclair, N.J.	David Stewart
Richard Johnson '61 Glassboro, N.J.	Blake Johnson	Donald Taylor '53 Waltham, Mass.	Paul Taylor
Frank Kavalier '54 Philadelphia, Pa.	William Kavalier	Edwin Trayner '51 Tenafly, N.J.	Edwin Trayner
George Keller '51 Baltimore, Md.	Bayard Keller	Elliot Urdang '56 Providence, R.I.	Erik Urdang
Michael Lacopo '57 Closter, N.J.	Christopher Lacopo	Milton Viederman '51 Dobbs Ferry, N.Y.	Matthew Viederman
Arthur Leb '52 Canton, Ohio	Robert Leb	Edward Weinstein '57 South Orange, N.J.	James Weinstein
Alfred Lerner '55 Shaker Heights, Ohio	Randy Lerner	Frank Wilson '59 Walnut Creek, Calif.	Jeffrey Wilson
		David Wolfe '56 Detroit, Mich.	Alexander Wolfe

Nizer, Benjamin, Krim & Ballon.

Active in civic and charitable organizations, Mr. Levitt served on the board of directors of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and earned a variety of honors including the U.S. Army's Medal of the Legion of Merit, the Annual Award of the New York Urban League, and in 1979, the John Jay Award of Columbia College.

Mr. Levitt is survived by his wife

Dorothy and his son, Arthur Jr., the president of the American Stock Exchange.

Arthur M. Okun '49, one of the nation's most respected and influential economists, died in Washington, D.C. of a heart attack on March 23. A former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Johnson, Mr. Okun was known for his brilliant contributions to economic analysis, and for his sensitivity to the human and philosophical dimensions of economic policymaking.

Born in Jersey City, N.J. in 1928, Mr. Okun did both his undergraduate and graduate work at Columbia and taught at Yale for nearly a decade before joining the White House staff at the start of the Kennedy administration. In 1969 he was named a senior fellow of the

(continued on page 25)

28th Columbia College Fund Annual Report 1979-80

NICK ROMANENKO—CCT

Dear Alumni, Parents and Friends,

For the Twenty-Eighth Fund we established a goal of two million dollars. As you can see from the final results, the response from alumni, parents and friends to the College's increased needs was outstanding, and on behalf of the entire College and my staff, I wish to thank each of you who helped make that goal a reality.

The results point to the many important steps that were taken this year to ensure the future health and strength of Columbia College. Together with the success of our Annual Fund, we saw an expansion of the activities calendar, an overwhelmingly successful Dean's Day, the launching of many special class efforts and a wonderful reunion weekend. And these were just a few of the year's events that could serve as a measure of how far Columbia has come and can go in the years ahead.

I look back with tremendous satisfaction at our accomplishments. A great debt of thanks must go to Dick Priest '51 and Richard Friedlander '60 for their extraordinary work and tireless leadership in directing the Fund and the Board of the Alumni Association respectively. I think that on the solid foundation that they and so many of our friends have helped build in the last two years, that the challenges ahead, although difficult, will be easier to face. As much as I am sorry to see their term of office end, I know that I can count on them to continue to share their valuable experience with us.

My staff and I are determined to do whatever is necessary to support our alumni leaders in their goal of maintaining a strong and vibrant Columbia College, and we welcome all of you to join in our effort.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Arnold Collery".

Arnold Collery
Dean

The Highlights

- Largest Dollar Total Ever $2,648,639
- Largest Unrestricted Dollar Total Ever $1,234,782
- Largest 25th Anniversary Class Dollar Total In Gifts and Pledges (Class of 1955) $63,197
- Largest Number of John Jay Associates 1,779

The Results

	Donors	Dollars
Alumni & Friends of Classes	7,307	$1,814,789
Parents	401	$46,520
Friends	360	$783,980
Matching Gifts	457	$92,636

A Comparison with the 27th Fund

	1978-79 27th Fund	1979-80 28th Fund	Change
Total Dollars	$1,631,983	$2,648,639	+$1,016,656
Unrestricted Dollars	$1,223,932	$1,234,782	+$10,850
Donors	7,826	8,275	+ 449
Percentage of Giving	24	26	+ 2
Number of John Jay Associates	1,578	1,779	+ 201

JAMIE KATZ—CCT

Salute to the Leaders

Highest Total Dollars

Anniversary Class

Non-Anniversary Class

Highest Total General Purpose Dollars

Anniversary Class

Non-Anniversary Class

Largest Number of Alumni Donors

Anniversary Class

Non-Anniversary Class

Largest Increase in Alumni Donors

Anniversary Class

Non-Anniversary Class

Largest Number of John Jay Associates

Anniversary Class

Non-Anniversary Class

Highest Percentage of Participation

Anniversary Class

Non-Anniversary Class

Class Chairmen

Waldemar J. Neumann '20

LeRoy P. Griffith '29

Paul R. Frank '55

Edwin Rickert '36

Paul R. Frank '55

Frederick C. Bremer '74

Paul R. Frank '55

Frederick C. Bremer '74

Paul R. Frank '55

Harvey Rubin '54

Joseph L. Keane '30

Paul R. Frank '55

Theodore Garfiel '24

Beril Edelman '24

The 1979-80 Honor Roll

The Annual Fund involves many alumni, parents and friends of the College. They are all an integral and important part of the organization, and all of them have given unselfishly of their time to make the 28th Fund an overwhelming success. The Honor Roll recognizes just a few of our many friends who deserve special recognition for their outstanding effort on behalf of the College.

Shepard L. Alexander '21
Adolf C. Robison '24
Arthur Jansen '25
Julius P. Witmark '25
Samuel M. Goldman '26
Kaleb E. Wiberg '26
William B. Sanford '30
Joseph E. Moukad '31
Arthur Lautkin '32
Robert J. Senkier '39
Ellis B. Gardner, Jr. '40
Robert B. Brown '55

William R. Host '60
Dean C. Gamanos '65
Stephen Jacobs '75
Phyllis & Donald Sharp P'79
Sheila & Ted Dahl P'80
Christin & William James P'81
Rosemarie & Lou Cornacchia P'82
Barbara & Steven Wadyka P'83
Beverly & Sam Rosenstein
Alumni Parents
Doris Reilly
Director, Columbia College Thrift Shop

Gifts in Memory of Alumni and Friends

Charles O'Connor Sloane '06

Elizabeth S. Colie
Mrs. Theodore M. Edison
The Emerson Consultants,
Inc.
Alice Mary Hufstader
Barclay A. Kingman
William H. Knudsen
Helen F. March
Charles O. Sloane
Claude H. Trotter
Emily R. Williams

Walter G. Buckisch '10

Robert L. Buckisch

V. Victor Zipris '10

Norman H. Angell '10

James T. Kemp '12

Mrs. Mally G. Lork Kemp

Harold B. Bernstein '16

Froma B. Lippmann

Barth DeGraff '17

Dr. Thelma DeGraff

Alexander C. Herman '18

Florence R. Herman
Joan Wendling

Gardner Hirons '18

Mrs. Gardner Hirons

Byron E. Van Raalte '18

Dr. & Mrs. Roland I.
Grausman
Alan H. Kempner '17
Mr. & Mrs. Sidney Rush
Mr. & Mrs. Robert L. Solender
Mr. & Mrs. Samuel L.
Sternberg

Marshall Bernstein '21

Shepard L. Alexander '21

Arthur Levitt '21

Shepard L. Alexander '21
Nathan L. Schwartz '21

George E. Weigl '21

Shepard L. Alexander '21

Daniel R. Harnett '22

Mrs. Harriet R. Harnett

Prof. Earl B. Lovell '23

Gordon P. Lovell Foundation

John T. Cahill '24

Joseph V. Heffernan

William T. Taylor '24

Mrs. Ethel L. Taylor

The Hon. Murray I. Gurfein '26

Nathan L. Schwartz '21

Prof. Dwight C. Miner '26

Mr. & Mrs. Bob P. Kellough
William G. Laub '26
Mr. & Mrs. Fred A. Manley
Mrs. Dorothy Marie Miner
Mr. & Mrs. Owen O'Leary
Margaret L. Sorensen

Leo E. Brown '27

Mrs. Leo Brown

Thomas M. Kerrigan '28

Mr. & Mrs. Louis H. Hall, Jr.
Joseph P. Nye
Mr. & Mrs. Richard S.
Reynolds

Leon Wehbring '29

Brenda Holman

Allen S. Andriette '30

Mr. & Mrs. Sam Ariew

Seymour Rosin '30

Mr. & Mrs. William T.
Mathews

Dr. Louis Rosenblum '31

Mrs. Louis Rosenblum

Vincent J. Rella '32

Vito D. Sinici

Ralph F. Hefferline '35

Mrs. Ralph F. Hefferline

Dr. Charles Frankel '37

Stanley L. Sklar, Esq. '53

Sanford Parker '37

Mrs. Joseph Ballinger
Evelyn Benjamin
Mrs. Vivian C. Brownstein
Lorraine Carson
Mrs. Claire M. Cutler
Mrs. Diana J. Dean
Hedley Donovan
Mrs. Corinne Friend
Alan Greenspan
Clifford Grum
Mary E. Johnston
The Kingsberg Foundation
Mrs. Dana S. Koplik
Edward P. Lenahan
Employees of Lindenbaum &
Young
J. A. Livingston
Carol J. Loomis
Robert Lubar '40
Todd May, Jr.
Lawrence A. Mayer
Perry Meyers, Inc.
Joseph Mindell
Chandley Ann Murphy
Dr. Scott R. Parker '64
Wyndham Robertson
Octave Romaine
Daniel Seligman
Mr. & Mrs. Jonathan Stern
Time, Inc.
Stephen J. Walden
Mr. & Mrs. Albert Wohlstetter

Mark E. Senigo '40

Mrs. Mark E. Senigo

Charles F. Hoelzer, Jr. '42

Amalgamated Casualty Insurance Co.
Amalgamated Insurance Agency
Astor Cab Corp.
Donald Colvin
James G. Colvin, II
John S. Colvin
Robert N. Gordon
The Guardian Insurance Co.
Melvin Hershkowitz, M.D. '42
Cecil H. London '41
Elizabeth A. Lusby
Ray Burnette Volkswagon,
Inc.
Frederick J. Schwartz
Arthur M. Okun '49
Academy for Educational Development

Dr. Arthur F. Burns '25

Vincent Carroza '49
Council For the Advancement and Support of Education
Otto Eckstein
Robert J. Eggert
Kathryn Eickhoff
Richard W. Everett
William Fellner
Max Frankel '52
Alan Greenspan
Greenwich Research Associates, Inc.
Prof. C. Lowell Harriss
Walter W. Heller
Henry & Elaine Kaufman
Foundation, Inc.
Robert E. Lewis '39
Paul W. McCracken
Dr. Robert A. Milch '49
Kenneth Militzer
Francis P. Murphy
Joseph A. Pechman
Eugene T. Rossides, Esq. '49
Mr. & Mrs. Hobart Rowen
John Silard '49
Stock Exchange (Montreal, Canada)
Lester Tanzer '51
Time, Inc.
Work In America Institute,
Inc.
Irving Zuckerman

Robert M. Friedberg '51

Sue Friedberg

Paul Buxbaum '57

Stephen S. Fybish '57

Richard Lewis Kohn '60

Mrs. Leo Heimerdinger

Peter F. Russell '62

Howard L. Freese '63

William D. Schwartz '64

Mr. & Mrs. Ernest R. Adler
Mr. & Mrs. Michael Adler
Mr. & Mrs. Merrill C. Berman
Mr. & Mrs. Wilson V. Binger
Joseph S. Blank
Mr. & Mrs. Leon J. Brady
Harold Burson
Mr. & Mrs. Frederick E.
Croxtan
Mr. & Mrs. Richard S. Dolins
Mr. & Mrs. Alan Ferris
Mr. & Mrs. Lester R. Frankel
Mr. & Mrs. Richard L. Garwin
Mr. & Mrs. Lewis Goldenheim
Mr. & Mrs. Irving Gordon
Margaret S. Gross
Mr. & Mrs. Irwin Grossman
Mr. & Mrs. William Grossman
Mr. & Mrs. Peter
Gruenberger '58
Mr. & Mrs. Philip J. Hirsch
Dr. & Mrs. Milton Ingerman
Mr. & Mrs. Stanley Kates
Mr. & Mrs. Robert J. Kaufman
Irving J. Kern
Robert C. Klodny, M.D. '65
Mr. & Mrs. Richard Landau
Sidney Lapidus
Dr. & Mrs. Jeffrey Lewis
Mr. & Mrs. Herbert W.
Libowitz
Dr. & Mrs. Marvin Lipman
Larry Lowenstein
Susan T. Melis
Mr. & Mrs. Isaac Michalovsky
Juliette M. Moran

Mr. & Mrs. Bradford Perkins

Charles I. Petschek
Pfizer, Inc.
Alan J. Preis '64
Mr. & Mrs. J. F. Rothenberg
Judith M. Rowland
Daniel Schwarz
Mr. & Mrs. Jess Stein
Mr. & Mrs. Matthew Taubin
Jay C. Thompson
Mr. & Mrs. Allen Weintraub
Mr. & Mrs. W. R. Weston
Patrick J. Zenner

Robert Herz '66

Mr. & Mrs. Fred Herz P'66
Mr. & Mrs. Rudolph Reider
Mr. & Mrs. Henry D. Schmidt

Mark Herman '69

Herbert Herman '25

Lawrence Gross Lane '70

Ira E. Goldberg '68
Norman L. Greene '70

Loren G. Lavine '70

Cecile H. Bond
Janna Smith
Mr. & Mrs. Leon Weinstein

William Gardner Croly, Jr. '72

Dorothy K. Croly

Scott Kaleko '73

Scotkal Diamond Corp.

John T. Lewis, '74

Robert M. Adler '74
George Bartos '74
Howard Blatt '75
Frederick Bremer '74
Mr. & Mrs. Brenner
Richard A. Briffault '74
Peter C. Budeiri '74
Bruce Chance '74
Richard Chen '74
Michael Curcio '74
Jonathan W. Cureo '74
Nicholas DeLancie '74
Pasquale DeNito '74
Daniel L. Dolgin '74
Patrick Dowd '74
Max Friedman '74
Ken Garay '74
Michael H. Handler '74
Tara M. Hansen '74
Robert Havely '74
Bradford R. Higgins '74
Victor Klymenko '74
Richard Koo '74
Mr. & Mrs. Edward Lewis
Suzanne Lewis P'74
Dr. Erwin Mermelstein '74
Annie Moldafsky
Gail N. Robinson
Dr. Bernard Rosenberg '74
Henry Rosenberg '73
Bruce Schaeffer '74
Stephen Schiff '74
George B. Smithy, Jr. '74
Charles Tiefer '74
L. Stanton Towne
Oliver P. T. Wen '74
Marshall Wilen '74
Kenneth Wright '74

Stephen Abbey '78

Student Accounting Division of Columbia University

Joachim Ax

Davidson Sommers

Arsene Bekaert

Shepard L. Alexander '21

Tyson Boyd

Shepard L. Alexander '21

James C. Caraley
 Helen P. Bailey
 Gregory Baldaccini &
 Mary Ann Epstein
 Bernard & Elinor Barber
 Barnard College
 Dr. Annette &
 Dr. James Baxter
 Sophie Berson
 Blythedale Teachers Group
 Vilma M. Bornemann
 Lila & Martin Braine
 Mr. & Mrs. James K. Brown
 Stella Caraley
 John Chambers
 Charles & Anne Chappell
 Julia Chase-Brand
 Susan Cohn
 Robert H. Connery
 William A. Corpe
 Gerald & Midori Curtis
 Aryeh & Flora Davidson
 Herbert A. Deane '42
 Rona Distenfeld
 Marjorie Dobkin
 Mr. & Mrs. John O. Doern
 Carl Dolmetsch
 Lewis & Hanni Edinger
 William T. R. &
 Annette Baker Fox

Renee & Stanley Geen
 Sandra Genter
 Jane S. Gould
 Tatiana Green
 Dorothy Gregory
 Charles V. Hamilton
 Sylvia Hewlett &
 Richard Weinert
 Robert & Mary Higdon
 Roger & Eleanor Hilsman
 Gedale B. Horowitz '53
 Jacob C. Hurewitz
 Rodney & Dawn Jones
 Peter Juviler
 Helene L. Kaplan
 Richard & Athena Kimball
 Ruth & Everette Kivette
 Stephanie & Veljko Krstulovic
 Maire Kurrick
 Les Lessinger
 Stuart & Judith Levine
 Darlene G. & Peter Levy
 Morton & Naomi Linzer
 Julie B. Marsteller
 Dora Martakis
 Jacquelyn A. Mattfeld
 C. Edward Midgley
 Deborah Duff Milenkovich
 Barbara Stoler Miller
 Frances G. Mosen

Andrew Nathan
 Mr. & Mrs. Roy Nicholas
 Charles Olton
 Richard M. Pious
 Edith & Bernard Ratshin
 Nina Ratshin
 Joseph & Ruth Rothschild '52
 Richard & Len Rubin
 Susan & Sanford Sacks
 Bernice G. Segal
 Virginia Shaw
 George & Doris Sherry
 Ellen Futter Shutkin
 James M. Spector
 Janice & Patrick Thaddeus
 Joann M. Thompson
 John & Theodora Vakas
 Helen & Homer Vanides
 Suzanne Fonay Wemple
 Naomi Williams
 Kathryn & Peter Yatrakis

Bertha Linder
 Shepard L. Alexander '21

Lou Little
 John H. Devlin '53
 Chad Ketchum '35
 J. Robert Kish '60
 Eugene T. Rossides '49
 Dr. Herbert W. Thompson '34

Jeffrey B. Wallace
 William B. Wallace, III '52
Max Marans
 Otto K. Rosahn '27
Dean J. H. Palfrey
 Howard L. Schneider '65
Leonard Pullman
 Robert E. Juceam '61
Robert Walmsley
 Mrs. Courtney Crawford

Gifts in Honor

Stanley R. Jacobs '19
 Dr. Harry F. Wechsler '19

Nathan L. Schwartz '21
 Jerome A. Newman '17
 Mrs. Manuel Lee Robbins

Louis H. Taxis '28
 Ross Kazer, M.D. '68

Bequests, Trusts, Life Income

Deferred giving to Columbia is encouraged by the government through favorable tax provisions and is of great benefit to the College. There are several forms by which a bequest can be made to the College or a trust established. For information, write or call the Office of Alumni Affairs and College Relations, 100 Hamilton Hall, New York, N.Y. 10027 (212) 280-5533.

BEQUESTS

Aaron W. Berg '24
 Arthur B. Brenner '12
 Anthony J. Brunse '38
 Lloyd Thomas Bryan '21
 Emily Buhler, Fr. '36
 Mark E. Cymrot '22
 Albert Ford Hinrichs '21
 Lester A. Landau '21
 Herbert M. Lippmann '09
 Louis L. Little, Fr.
 Ralph Mabie '20
 Robert J. Melish '23
 Mary B. Pell, Fr.
 Margaret Renton, Fr.
 Adeline Roberts, Fr.

Irwin S. Schulman '58
 Edward Solomon '34
 Susie D. Spingarn, Fr.
 Irving F. Strauss '26
 Maude F. Thornton, Fr.
 Cornell Woolrich '25
 V. Victor Zipris '10

LIFE INCOMES

Shepard L. Alexander '21
 Ralph Randles Stewart '11

CHARITABLE TRUSTS

Philip B. & Nelle L. Holmes '26
 Minnie Parker, Fr. '49

The John Jay Associates of Columbia College

The John Jay Associates are men and women who recognize the importance of Columbia College's role as a vigorous and creative force in the liberal arts, and are personally committed to promoting its welfare. This group of alumni, parents and friends provides the College not only with the indispensable material means of performing its task, but serves as living testimony, by the eminence they have individually achieved, of the fact that the College has historically fulfilled the mission of educating men for leadership in our society.

Membership Categories:

- BENEFACTOR— Contributing $10,000 or more annually.
- SPONSOR— Contributing $5,000 to $9,999 annually.
- PACESETTER— Contributing $2,500 to $4,999 annually.
- FELLOW— Contributing $1,000 to $2,499 annually.
- PATRON— Contributing $500 to $999 annually.
- MEMBER— Contributing $250 to $499 annually.
- RECENT GRADUATES— New graduates begin with a $50 contribution which increases by $25 every other year. Ten years after graduation, the regular John Jay Associates membership would apply.

John Jay Associates who have contributed to the 28th Fund:

Benefactor

Benjamin J. Bittenwieser '19
 Shepard L. Alexander '21
 Mrs. William P. Schweitzer, Fr. '21
 Earle J. Starkey '25
 Lawrence A. Wien '25
 Francis S. Levien '26
 Herbert M. Singer '26
 T. Embury Jones '27
 Otto K. Rosahn '27
 Ira D. Wallach '29
 Macrae Sykes '33
 Dorothy Hoelzer, Fr. '42*
 Connie S. Maniatty '43
 Henry J. Everett '47
 Minnie Parker Charitable Trust, Fr. '49
 Alfred Lerner '55
 Samuel Bronfman Fdn., Fr. Columbia College Alumni Association, Fr.
 Columbia University Club, Fr.
 Everybody's Thrift Shop, Inc., Fr.
 Herbert M. Singer Philanthropic Fund, Fr.

Sponsor

Albert G. Redpath '18
 Stanley R. Jacobs '19
 Louis E. Seley, Fr. '19
 Eleanor R. Shapiro, Fr. '20
 Harold F. Linder '21
 Nicholas M. McKnight '21
 Michael G. Mulinos '21
 Norman & Rosita Winston Fdn., Fr. '21*
 Wallace Gilroy, Fr. '25*
 William G. Laub '26
 Horace E. Davenport '29
 John V. vanPelt, III '29
 Charles Ballon '30
 Arthur B. Krim '30
 Robert D. Lilley '33
 George J. Ames '37
 Howard M. Pack '39
 Amalgamated Casualty Insurance Co., Fr. '42*
 Howard T. Kaneff, Fr. '43*
 Time Incorporated, Fr. '49*
 Harvey Rubin '54
 Donn T. Coffee '55
 James R. Barker '57
 Robert Berne '60*
 William R. Host '60
 Peter W. Schweitzer '60

Pacesetter

Simon & Annie Davis Fdn., Fr. '04
 Francis T. Armstrong '12
 Albert Parker '19
 Nathaniel Rose '19
 Jacob Weisman '23
 Frank A. Biba '24
 Dermot Ives '25
 Samuel M. Goldman '26
 Arthur H. Fribourg '28
 Ivan B. Veit '28
 Harold A. Rousselot '29
 Myron A. Coler '33
 Paul E. Kaunitz '33*
 Edwin McMahon Singer '34
 Edwin W. Rickert '36
 Randolph V. Zander '36
 Carl W. Desch '37
 Thomas M. Macioce '39
 Allied Chemical Fdn., Fr. '39
 Robert Lubar '40
 Richard Steinschneider, Jr. '43
 The New York Community Trust, Fr. '45
 Jesse S. Siegel '49
 Foundation for the Columbia College Fund, Fr. '49
 Lawrence K. Grossman '52
 James H. Berick '55
 Ezra G. Levin '55
 Moore McCormack Resources, Fr. '57
 Robert A. Machleder '60
 Peter Seng '63
 Jay Fleisher '70*
 Mr. & Mrs. Donald E. Sharp, P '79
 American Express Fdn., Fr.
 Cosmos Soccer Club, Fr.
 L. Jay Grossman, Jr., Fr.

(Continued on page 10a)

*New John Jay Associate Life Member †Recent Graduate
 P-Parent
 Fr-Friend

Class	Chairmen	Number in Class	Number of Donors		% of Alumni	No. of JJAs	General Purpose	Special Purpose	Endowed	Total Dollars	Endow- ment Income	East Campus	Grand Total 1900-
1909		65	8	12	12	8	4,520.00	1,050.00	10,000.00	15,570.00	9,946	205	25,721
1910		21	1	2	5	4	1,015.00			1,015.00			1,015
1911		19	1		5	1	50.00			50.00			50
1912		35	6	2	17	3	6,181.25	75.00		6,256.25		250	6,506
1913	Bobbe*	39	6		15	3	1,865.00	500.00		2,365.00			2,365
1914	van Buren*	54	15		28	5	2,990.00	325.00		3,315.00	4,854	10,553	18,722
1915	Spooner*	54	14		26	2	895.00	475.00		1,370.00	2,744	600	4,714
1916		49	20	1	41	4	1,830.00	775.00		2,605.00	6,352		8,957
1917	Hammarstrom*	83	16	2	19	8	2,780.00	9,475.00		12,255.00	2,184	64,200	76,455
1918	Redpath*	125	20	8	16	4	9,680.00	300.00		9,980.00	23,686	400	12,564
1919	Rose/Wechsler	112	37		32	17	16,358.00	718.00		17,076.00		316	41,078
Total		656	144	27	22%	59	$ 48,164.25	$ 13,693.00	$ 10,000.00	$ 71,857.25	$49,766	$76,524	$198,147
Decade-Jansen
1920	Neumann	141	37	4	26	7	28,825.02	75.00	55,919.18	84,819.20	11,201	600	96,620
1921	Alexander/McKnight	185	64	12	36	26	45,053.30	62,025.00	16,000.00	123,078.30	7,892	10,355	141,325
1922	Shiya	259	68	2	26	17	7,938.00	1,010.00		8,948.00	3,249	1,675	13,872
1923	Brennan	247	62	3	25	20	11,210.00	960.00		12,170.00		350	12,520
1924	Garfiel/Edelman	248	99	2	40	22	13,297.86	415.00	26,100.00	39,812.86	3,275	1,550	44,638
1925	Jansen	298	85	7	29	26	47,257.16	32,074.78		79,331.94	7,284	2,705	89,321
1926	Goldman/Wiberg	293	79	12	27	30	40,956.20	415.00	3,400.00	44,771.20	6,791	2,126	53,688
1927	Rosenberg	302	92	1	30	35	23,673.84	2,545.00		26,218.84	9,840	4,183	40,242
1928	Taxin	319	120	5	38	33	15,317.51	2,960.00	500.00	18,777.51	373	5,940	25,091
1929	Griffith	302	74	1	25	30	22,133.50	301,995.00		324,128.50		8,744	332,873
Total		2,594	780	49	30%	246	$255,662.39	$404,474.78	$101,919.18	$762,056.35	$49,905	$38,228	$850,190
Decade-Kornahrens
1930	Keane	286	121	2	42	21	28,257.32	1,270.00	5.00	29,532.32		25	29,557
1931	Moukad	361	132	1	37	23	10,149.00	1,470.00		11,619.00		1,700	13,319
1932	Goldschmidt/Lautkin	340	98	1	29	25	10,770.50	5,455.00		16,225.50		1,745	17,971
1933	Garbo	345	102		30	22	18,119.87	3,265.00		21,384.87		9,608	30,993
1934	Golde/Jacoby	373	116	1	31	35	19,734.65	2,470.00	25.00	22,229.65		3,773	26,003
1935	Toby*	309	82	1	27	18	7,820.00	1,640.00		9,460.00	151	2,115	11,726
1936	Rickert	356	113	2	32	39	46,841.17	28,900.00	950.00	76,691.17	2,291	5,561	84,633
1937	Schaap	358	92	1	26	19	17,330.00	706.00		18,036.00		2,438	20,474
1938	Freimarck	376	81	11	22	24	15,494.60	371.00		15,865.60	2,838	4,899	23,603
1939	Senkier	386	146	1	38	37	27,914.70	2,070.00		29,984.70		3,171	33,156
Total		3,490	1,083	21	31%	263	$202,431.81	$ 47,617.00	$ 980.00	$251,028.81	$ 5,280	$35,125	$291,435
Decade-Lemanski
1940	Bernstein	399	100	2	25	35	21,356.33	1,690.00	50.00	23,096.33		5,411	28,507
1941	Weinstock	390	99	1	25	27	14,055.00	1,361.00		15,416.00		4,110	19,526
1942	Dwyer	420	133	9	32	41	18,556.33	3,852.00	21,200.00	43,608.33	752	9,304	53,664
1943	Forlenza	420	140	4	33	55	33,452.44	21,580.00		55,032.44	2,123	5,985	63,140
1944	Kotcher	373	74	1	20	17	9,159.51	240.00		9,399.51		3,658	13,058
1945	Vasilas	396	91	1	23	17	11,050.00	665.00		11,715.00		2,290	14,005
1946	Summa	375	81		22	15	9,429.19	1,095.00		10,524.19		4,880	15,404
1947	Cooper	289	82		28	23	9,705.00	570.00		10,275.00		7,095	17,370
1948	Clayton	592	140		24	33	19,377.00	270.00		19,647.00		4,861	24,508
1949	Schlotterbeck	616	193	26	31	47	26,878.00	38,322.60	100.00	65,300.60		5,991	71,292
Total		4,270	1,133	44	27%	310	$173,018.80	$ 69,645.60	$ 21,350.00	$264,014.40	$ 2,876	$53,585	$320,474

Decade-Lacopo
1950	Garofalo/Palmieri	507	104		21	17	9,687.00	1,597.00	11,284.00	3,244	14,528
1951	Young	473	110	2	23	17	12,056.01	990.00	13,046.01	2,247	15,293
1952	Whitley	508	157	3	31	46	23,125.44	6,925.00	30,400.44	4,475	34,875
1953	Pellett*	513	138		27	29	13,618.00	2,435.00	16,078.00	4,919	20,997
1954	Rubin	568	197	1	35	81	29,574.59	2,740.00	34,814.59	3,056	37,906
1955	Frank	522	218		42	46	54,133.00	1,645.00	55,778.00	3,250	59,028
1956	Modell	595	192		32	26	17,449.50	1,160.00	18,609.50	4,664	23,274
1957	Swergold	608	190	1	31	38	23,600.03	1,395.00	24,995.03	4,066	29,061
1958	Front/Dickman/Nussbaum	556	208		37	48	26,671.19	840.00	27,511.19	7,692	35,203
1959	Buchman/Mangiaracina	532	165		31	28	15,874.50	1,093.00	16,967.50	6,032	23,000
Total		5,382	1,688	7	31%	376	$ 225,789.26	$ 20,820.00	$ 249,484.26	$ 43,645	$ 293,165

Decade-Witkin
1960	Host	604	115	1	19	31	16,810.82	935.00	150.00	17,895.82	17,896
1961	Binderman	553	146		26	23	17,328.16	1,255.00		18,583.16	25,738
1962	Stone	567	205		36	32	17,814.00	3,480.00		21,294.00	24,894
1963	Kwarta	574	184	1	32	20	17,325.21	1,390.00		18,715.21	25,345
1964	Etra	666	182	44	27	30	19,640.00	1,690.00		21,330.00	24,493
1965	Barnert/Gamanos	556	152	1	27	23	12,356.00	1,115.00		13,471.00	18,166
1966	Gordon	600	146	1	24	12	8,736.75	970.00	120.00	9,826.75	13,203
1967	Costa/Radon/Schlang	650	138		21	19	10,825.00	1,820.29		12,645.29	17,712
1968	Welt	573	135	1	24	11	7,429.76	936.00	250.00	8,615.76	11,410
1969	Giusti	609	125	2	21	19	12,550.00	995.00		13,545.00	16,301
Total		5,952	1,528	51	26%	220	$ 140,815.70	$ 14,586.29	$ 520.00	$ 155,921.99	$ 39,236
											$ 195,158

Decade-Williams
1970	Kokot	630	122	1	19	10	8,499.43	1,520.00	10,019.43	1,825	11,844
1971	Selinger*	705	116		16	14	5,115.90	1,640.00	6,755.90	2,402	9,158
1972	Levitan	613	76	2	12	14	4,483.00	1,300.00	5,783.00	1,340	7,123
1973	Minter*	551	54	1	10	5	2,055.63	241.00	2,346.63	1,363	3,710
1974	Bremer	594	227	7	38	38	10,662.17	7,481.00	18,228.17	2,557	20,785
1975	Lipari	603	64		11	8	2,676.00	695.00	3,371.00	1,402	4,773
1976	Czekanski	638	65		10	8	1,528.00	1,505.00	3,033.00	689	3,722
1977	Remez	571	66		11	14	2,482.70	405.00	2,887.70	398	3,286
1978	Chang/Nemerson	560	62	1	11	35	2,313.00	270.00	2,658.25	343	3,001
1979	Gilfoyle/Greenman		91	1		61	2,933.00	195.00	3,128.00	23	3,151
Total		5,465	943	13	16%	207	$ 42,748.83	$ 15,252.00	$ 58,211.08	$ 12,342	$ 70,553
1980			6			4	2,215.00		2,215.00		2,215
Totals 1900-1980		27,810	7,295	212	26%	1,685	$1,090,846.04	$586,088.67	$1,814,789.14	$298,687	$2,221,339

Parents-Sharp
P'80	Dahl	59	11	6,865.00	95.00		6,960.00		6,960
P'81	James	58	12	5,300.00	55.00	50.00	5,405.00		5,405
P'82	Cornacchia	58	10	5,390.00	3,450.00		8,840.00		8,840
P'83	Wadyka	65	11	6,960.00	20.00		6,980.00		6,980
Past	Sharp	161	22	18,139.86	195.00		18,334.86		18,335
	Parent Total	401	66	$ 42,654.86	$ 3,815.00	$ 50.00	$ 46,519.86		$	$ 46,520
Friends Corporation/Foundations
		360	22	97,930.75	35,079.40	650,970.19	783,980.34		783,980
		7	6	3,350.00			3,350.00		3,350
	GRAND TOTALS	27,810	7,295	980	26%	1,779	$1,234,781.65	$624,983.07	$788,874.62	$2,648,639.34	$298,687
									$107,863		$3,055,189

* Class President

(Continued from page 7a)

Fellow

Jewish Communal Fund, Fr. '13
 Douglass Newman '14
 Alan H. Kempner '17
 Armand Hammer '19
 Hubert G. Larson '19
 Charles E. Roach '19
 Victor Roudin '19
 Elk Transportation Co., Fr. '19
 Solon E. Summerfield Fdn., Inc., Fr. '19
 Nathan L. Schwartz '21
 Frank Greenwall, Fr. '21
 Dr. Helen P. Monell, Fr. '21
 Ethel L. Taylor, Fr. '21
 Benjamin D. Wood '22
 George Zellar '22
 Alan J. Altheimer '23
 Robert M. Lovell '23
 Morris A. Schapiro '23
 The Gordon P. Lovell Fdn., Fr. '23
 William E. Collin '24
 George M. Jaffin '24
 Donald Lewis '24
 Seymour J. Phillips '24
 Charles A. Flood '25
 Mortimer S. Gordon '25
 Martin D. Jacobs '25
 William A. Kaufmann '25
 Julius P. Witmark '25
 Gertrude Friedberg, Fr. '25
 C. K. & G. Friedberg Fdn., Fr. '25
 Calmon J. Ginsberg '26
 Hyman N. Glickstein '26
 Joseph C. Nugent '26
 Charles F. Detmar, Jr. '27
 Samuel Gruber '27
 William E. Petersen '27
 William F. Treiber, III '27
 Ambrose Doskow '28
 Nathan S. Ancell '29
 Howard A. Van Vleck '29*
 Eduard Baruch '30
 William B. Sanford '30*
 Henry G. Walter, Jr. '31
 Henry J. Goldschmidt '32
 Lawrence R. Eno '33
 John J. Morrisroe '33
 Henry P. de Vries '34
 Robert D. L. Gardiner '34
 William W. Golub '34
 Howard L. Klein '34
 Hickman Price, Jr. '34*
 Herman Wouk '34
 Fred M. Davenport '36

Raymond J. Horowitz '36
 Arnold A. Saltzman '36
 William B. Weisell '36
 Jerome Z. Lorber '38
 Donald G. Schenk '38
 David B. Hertz '39
 Trygve H. Tonnessen '39
 James B. Welles, Jr. '39
 Richard T. Baum '40
 Daniel J. Edelman '40
 Stanley L. Temko '40
 George P. Lutjen '41
 Robert T. Quittmeyer '41
 William P. Brosge '42
 George A. Hyman '42
 William J. Scharffenberger '42*

Sidney J. Silberman '42
 Robert L. Swiggett '42
 Thornley B. Wood, Jr. '42
 Victor J. Zaro '42
 Melvin Hershkowitz, Fr. '42*
 Ray Burnette Volkswagen, Inc., Fr. '42

Joseph T. Carty '43
 William R. Loweth '43
 Edwin W. Macrae '43
 David Norr '43
 Sherwin A. Rodin '43
 John M. Walsh '43
 Stanley L. Cohen, Fr. '43
 Edwin M. Zimmerman '44
 William R. MacClarence '45
 Henry S. Coleman '46
 Herman H. Kremer '46
 Don J. Summa '46
 Robert L. Bonaparte '47
 Harry E. Ekblom '48
 William J. Meehan '48
 Harold Obstler '48
 John C. Thomas, Jr. '48
 Vincent A. Carrozza '49
 Eugene T. Rossides '49
 Thomas N. Schassberger '49*
 Walter A. Schlotterbeck '49
 Norman M. Segal '49
 Row Steinschneider '49
 Gene F. Straube '49
 Robert J. Vellve '49
 Michael A. Loeb '50
 Joseph Brouillard '51
 Mark N. Kaplan '51
 Richard N. Priest '51
 Roone Arledge '52*
 Attilio Bisio '52
 David A. Braun '52
 Robert D. Rhodes, III '52
 Sidney Milwe, Fr. '52*
 Charles N. Goldman '53
 Gedale B. Horowitz '53
 Edwin Robbins '53
 Kamel S. Bahary '54
 Thomas J. O'Grady '54
 Thomas L. Chrystie '55
 Walter J. Croll '55
 James J. Hardcastle '55*
 Abbott A. Leban '55
 Jules Leni '55
 Donald P. McDonough '55
 James J. Phelan '55
 Richard Ravitch '55*
 Ferdinand J. Setaro '55
 Max D. Eliason '56
 Franklin A. Thomas '56
 Saul S. Cohen '57
 Bertram M. Kantor '57
 Carlos R. Munoz '57
 Bernard W. Nussbaum '58
 Boyd H. Seidenberg '58
 Ronald L. Neschis '59
 Richard D. Friedlander '60
 James J. Ammeen '61
 John J. Klikna '61*
 Harvey J. Goldschmid '62
 Ronald B. Haave '62
 E. Peter Krulewitch '62
 Kenneth Lipper '62
 Jerry I. Speyer '62
 William M. Guttman '63
 John J. Cirigliano '64

Joseph O'Donnell '64
 Mr. & Mrs. Willard E. Oliver, P '64
 Margaret S. Gross, Fr. '64*
 Channing Blake '69
 Arthur L. Rose '69
 Eric D. Witkin '69
 Morris S. Stone, P '71
 Gregory Vanderheiden '72*
 Stephen L. Silberman '74
 Stephen Jacobs '75
 Michael W. Huber, P '77
 Arnold Byer, P '79
 Robert S. Gottsegen, P '80*
 Mr. & Mrs. T. E. Beck, Jr., P '83*
 Kil Bong Kim, P '83*
 Bankers Trust Co.
 Robert Carp, Fr.
 Columbia Committee for Community Services, Fr.
 Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity, Fr.

Patron

George G. Moore, Jr. '06
 Norman H. Angell '10
 Mrs. James T. Kemp, Fr. '12*
 George Delacorte Fund, Fr. '13
 Stephen G. Stone '15
 Ward R. Clark '16
 Percy Klingenstein '17
 Harry F. Wechsler '19
 Charles B. Straus, Fr. '19
 Herbert M. Schwartz '20*
 Labori A. Krass '21
 James DeCamp Wise '21
 David L. Lieb, Fr. '21
 Albert E. Meder '22
 Malcolm C. Spence '22
 Sidney J. Bernstein '24
 Theodore C. Garfiel '24
 Howard G. Bruenn '25
 Arthur Jansen '25
 Howard M. Sonn '25
 Richmond B. Williams '25
 David Koch '26
 Charles H. Mueller '26
 Robert W. Rowen '26
 Arthur P. Davis '27
 C. Herbert Grover '27
 J. Daniel Hanley '27
 Herbert J. Jacobi '27
 Rudolph C. Kopf '27
 Harold F. McGuire '27
 Leon Littman '28
 Bernhard L. Molde '28
 Frank R. Pitt '28
 Leonard Price '28
 Samuel J. Silverman '28
 Randolph I. Thornton '28
 Milton B. Basson '29
 Edward R. Schreckenberger '29
 Samuel R. Walker '29
 John Adriani '30
 James L. Campbell '30
 Alexander W. Tomei '30
 Felix H. Vann '30
 Sidney B. Becker '31
 James Lambert '31
 Charles M. Metzner '31
 Albert L. Morrison '31
 Arnold M. Auerbach '32
 Milton N. Scofield '32
 Leonard T. Scully '32
 Richard S. Clarke '33
 William K. Love, Jr. '33
 Fred W. Wilson '33
 Frederick Blumers '34
 Stanley I. Fishel '34
 Robert McCormack '34
 John E. Dumaresq '35
 Alan L. Gornick '35
 Theodore Ley '35
 Allen H. Toby '35
 William G. Budington '36

James S. Coles '36
 Daniel F. Crowley '36
 William V. P. Sitterley '36
 Howard M. Strobel '36*
 John W. Wheeler '36
 Edwin R. Fischer '37
 Stanley I. Glickman '37
 Lawrence Gussman '37
 Alfred B. Hailparn '37
 John Leslie '37
 Alan Greenspan, Fr. '37*
 Laurence A. Brewer '38
 John F. Crymble '38
 George S. A. Freimarck '38
 Edward W. Kloth '38
 William D. Ross '38
 Albert M. Silver '38
 Frederick D. Thompson '38
 Edward C. Biele '39
 Robert W. Browning '39
 Richard C. Fremon '39
 Michael A. Pappas '39
 Robert L. Pelz '39
 Gerhard E. Seidel '39
 Albert T. Sommers '39
 Lester Bernstein '40*
 Hugh M. Bower '40
 Harold R. F. Dietz '40
 Adam F. Downar '40
 J. Robert Loy '40
 Eugene F. O'Neill '40
 Herbert H. Segerman '40
 Hugh R. Barber '41
 John T. Beaudouin '41
 R. Semmes Clarke '41
 Robert G. Dettmer '41
 Robert L. Fegley '41
 James J. Finnerty '41
 J. Emery Long '41
 Edward H. Weinberg '41
 Harold C. Whittemore, Jr. '41
 The Hazeltine Corp., Fr. '41
 Edwin W. Bright '42
 Donald J. Fennelly '42
 Gerald Green '42
 Marshall J. Hanley '42
 Edward C. Kalaidjian '42
 Robert J. Kaufman '42
 Solomon Papper '42
 Kenneth M. Robinson '42
 John J. Salm '42
 Benjamin H. Bruckner '43
 Alfred T. Felsberg '43
 Clifton C. Field, Jr. '43
 Gerard A. Forlenza '43
 H. George Greim '43
 Joseph L. Kelly, Jr. '43
 D. Henne McLean '43
 Warren C. Meeker '43
 Donald J. Rosenthal '43
 George E. Scheffler '43
 Robert W. Schubert '43
 Joseph N. Leff '44
 George W. Michalec '44
 David G. Sacks '44
 Jay H. Topkis '44
 William J. Harrington '45
 Martin Kurtz '45
 Alfred Tanz '45
 Michael J. Ucci '45
 Breckenridge Campbell '46*
 S. Irving Sherr '46
 Marvin W. Sinkoff '46
 Hugo J. Gruendel '47
 Frank E. Karsen, III '47
 Joseph Kraft '47
 Vincent V. Madonia '47*
 Lewis R. Townsend '47
 Kenneth D. Weiser '47
 Frank J. Amabile '48
 Ethan I. Davis '48
 Gabriel M. Frayne '48
 Marshall D. Mascott '48
 George J. Poris '48
 Thomas N. Beadie '49
 Richard B. Chodosh '49
 Dale D. Glover '49
 William J. Lubic '49
 Robert Austin Milch '49
 Joseph B. Russell '49

Greenwich Research Assoc.,
Inc., Fr. '49
Richard M. Briggs '50
George C. Finch '50
Ralph Italie '50
Glenn D. Lubash '50*
Richard D. Gristede '51
Donald J. Rapson '51
Warren R. Wilson '51
Euval Barrekette '52
Donald A. Crowley '52*
Max Frankel '52
George I. Gordon '52
Robert N. Landes '52
Roy A. Lutter '52
George I. Nakamura '52
Stanley I. Rubinfeld '52
William Smith '52
Alan L. Stein '52
Peter V. Norden, Fr. '52*
Arnold D. Burk '53
Lee J. Guittar '53*
Michael I. Sovern '53
Donald A. Taylor '53
Michael V. Tepedino '53
Robert F. Ambrose '54
Walter A. Bossert, Jr. '54
Robert J. Braverman '54*
Bernd Brecher '54
Joshua F. Greenberg '54
Robert E. Paul '54
William W. Scales '54
Thomas E. Sinton, Jr. '54
Peter P. Skomorowsky '54
Ronald H. Sugarman '54*
Arnold R. Tolkin '54
Robert P. Viarengo '54
John B. Armstrong '55*
Theodore S. Baker '55*
Laurence E. Balfus '55
Robert D. Banz '55
Robert A. Belfer '55
Guy G. Freeman '55
Warren A. Kossowsky '55*
Donald M. Kresge '55*
Robert E. Kushner '55
John J. La Rosa '55*
William G. Langston '55
Elliott Manning '55
Robert I. Pearlman '55
I. Stephen Rabin '55*
Edwin L. Rodgers '55*
Harvey Shwed '55*
David A. Stevens '55*
Anthony Viscusi '55*
Marvin Winell '55
Alan S. Brody '56
Martin W. Cohen '56
Ronald A. Kapon '56
Gerald Modell '56
Peter Anker '57
John H. Norton, III '57
Stephen J. Pollack '57
David L. Schwartz '57
Donald A. Sugar '57
Edward A. Weinstein '57
Henry F. Barbour '58
Walter D. Berkowitz '58
N. Barry Dickman '58
Marshall B. Front '58
Peter Gruenberger '58
Stephen Klatsky '58
Peter Millones, Jr. '58
Salvatore J. Pagliaro '58
Sheldon Raab '58
Sidney S. Rosdeitcher '58
William J. Rosenthal '58
Theodore H. Story '58
Dudley A. Ferrari '59
Ira Friedman '59
Carl E. Kaplan '59
Richard T. Lacoss '59
Raymond D. LaRaja '59
Anthony J. Mangiaracina '59
Joseph J. Migliore '59
Robert S. Stone '59
Victor Chang '60
Paul E. Chevalier '60
William L. Dixon '60
Robert M. Fischbein '60

Philip T. Suraci '60*
Mr. & Mrs. Leo R. Bernson,
P '60
James F. Brymer '61
James J. Collins '61
Myron P. Curzan '61
John A. Kirik, Jr. '61*
Stephen D. Shappell '61
Warren N. Weir '61
Stephen Bell '62
Charles F. Bowers, Jr. '62
Charles F. Lyons '62
Joseph McLaughlin '62
John F. O'Brien '62
Harvey I. Rosen '62
Michael A. Stone '62
David T. Tucker '62
John N. Ake '63*
David M. Alpern '63
Saul Katz '63
Francis J. Partel, Jr. '63*
Steven Rinner '63
Mark H. Willes '63
Stephen H. Case '64
Allen H. Collins '64
Lionel Etra '64
Peter Fraser '64*
Donald R. Mintz '64
Miguel A. Ramirez '64
Mr. & Mrs. William J. Hummer,
Fr., P '64*
Pfizer Incorporated, Fr. '64
Dean C. Gamanos '65
Stephen D. Hoffman '65
Alan Kanzer '65
Kenneth Wolf '65
Elliot R. Wolff '65
Jonathan H. Davis '66*
Marc Bernstein '67
Robert R. Costa '67
Leigh C. Dolin '67
Kenneth L. Haydock '67
L. David Hillis '67*
Jonathan E. Kranz '67
Stephen G. Rice '67
John Van D. Lewis '69
Gershon Y. Locker '69
Arthur Kokot '70
Charles I. Silberman '70
George B. Smithy, Jr. '74*
Yuan-Hua Yang '77*
Mr. & Mrs. Alvin D. Dick, P '79
Mr. & Mrs. Robert M.
Pennoyer, P '79
David E. Place, P '79*
Sol Seltzer, P '79
Mr. & Mrs. Mario Biaggi, P '80
Mr. & Mrs. Theodore Dahl, '49
& P '80
Melvin Moore, P '80
Charles Scribner, Jr., P '80
Yoshito Hakeda, P '81
Dr. & Mrs. Solomon N.
Rosenstein, P '81
James M. Walton, P '81
William D. Arnold, P '82*
Mr. & Mrs. Dan I. Rather, P '82
Mr. & Mrs. Samuel Storey,
P '83*
St. Anthony Educational
Fdn., Fr.
Mr. & Mrs. Murray Benjamin,
Fr.
James L. Bittenwieser, Fr.
Sidney Cannold Charitable
Fdn., Fr.
Susan E. Linder, Fr.
The Ridgewood Newspapers,
Fr.*
Metropolitan Life Fdn.
Frank R. & Emilie E. Stamer
Fdn.*

Member

Louis J. Wolff '08
Emil N. Baar '13
Lester D. Egbert '14
Adolph Harvitt '14
Joseph Lintz '14

H. James Stern '14
Bayard T. Haskins '16
Wendell G. Randolph '16
Harry H. Schwartz '16
Russell M. Oram '17
John Fairfield '18
Sidney Mattison '18
Lloyd I. Volckening '18
S. Marshall Kempner '19
Joseph Lang '19
Wilbur J. Moore '19
Sidney R. Diamond '20
Henry I. Goodman '20
Gordon W. Phelps '20
Norman H. Sibley '20
Robert N. West '20
Alfred R. Bachrach '21
George B. Biggs '21
Addison B. Bingham '21
J. Howard Carlson '21
J. Mitchell Fain '21
Henry N. Herndon '21
George J. Hossfeld '21
Richard Lief '21
Joseph E. Milgram '21
Edmund C. Morton '21*

Maurice Tibbett '21
Saul J. Zucker '21
Abram J. Abeloff '22
Gustave M. Berne '22
Walter M. Eberhart '22
Ameil Glass '22
George Goldstein '22
George Greenspan '22
Solomon Lautman '22
Louis Nizer '22
Samuel M. Peck '22
Albert Preisman '22
Frederic E. Schluter '22
George G. Shiya '22
Harriet R. Harnett, Fr. '22
Frank W. Devlin '23
Aaron A. Farbman '23
Maurice B. Goodman '23
Henry S. Miller '23
Leo M. Rogers '23*
Arthur H. Schwartz '23
Henry E. Sharpe '23
Augustus A. Slater, Jr. '23*
The Richard Rodgers Fdn.,
Fr. '23
Ambrose Day '24

Beril Edelman '24
 Edwin A. Farlow '24
 Henry I. Fineberg '24
 Joseph L. Goldman '24
 Walter V. Irving '24
 Benjamin Miller '24
 Al Robison '24*
 Meyer Schapiro '24
 Victor Whitehorn '24
 John W. Balet '25
 Arthur F. Burns '25
 Harold Korzenik '25
 Harry R. Lea '25
 Willard C. Steinkamp '25
 Edward B. Wallace '25
 Lincoln A. Werden '25
 Richard Wilde '25
 Jeanette Witmark, Fr. '25
 Anthony V. Barber '26
 Douglas E. Brown '26
 Arnold I. Dumey '26
 E. Alvin Fidanque '26
 Eugene P. Gartner '26
 S. Aubrey Gittens '26
 Jerome L. Greene '26
 Philip S. Harburger '26
 William M. Hitzig '26
 Hugh J. Kelly '26
 Harold H. Snyder '26
 Robert P. Thomas '26
 Winthrop A. Toan '26
 Samuel W. Zerman '26
 Taylor F. Affelder '27
 Jacques Barzun '27
 Lester Blum '27
 Charles K. Bullard '27
 Robert S. Curtiss '27
 Benjamin Esterman '27
 George Geisel '27
 William Helfer '27
 Milton Krinsky '27
 Stanley A. Kroll '27
 Charles Looker '27
 Percy R. Peck '27
 Abraham Penner '27
 Milton Pollack '27
 Robert E. Rosenberg '27
 Richard F. Rowden '27*
 Myron F. Sesit '27
 Howard S. Spingarn '27
 J. Edward Stern '27*
 Frederick H. Theodore '27
 Sidney Deschamps '28
 Joseph H. Donnelly '28*
 Henry E. Gillette '28
 Maximilian I. Greenberg '28
 George Hammond '28
 Herbert L. Hutner '28
 Frederick E. Lane '28
 James W. Loughlin '28

Joseph L. Mankiewicz '28*
 Mark S. Matthews '28
 Duncan Merriwether '28
 Raymond D. Mindlin '28
 Royal M. Montgomery '28
 Maurice Mound '28
 C. F. Stewart Sharpe '28*
 Louis H. Taxin '28
 Hillery C. Thorne, Sr. '28
 Wayne Van Orman '28
 Robert W. Watson '28
 Alexander Wolf '28
 Marjorie N. Boyer, Fr. '28
 Reuben Abel '29
 Edward Ross Aranow '29
 Arthur A. Arsham '29
 Theodore P. Atsalas '29
 Sherman B. Barnes '29
 Stanley Boriss '29
 Joseph W. Burns '29
 Robert Lee Coshland '29
 Harry R. Doremus, Jr. '29
 Moses Friedman '29
 Edmund B. Fritz '29
 Walter Gutmann '29
 Edwin A. Hill '29
 Monroe I. Katcher, II '29
 Robert J. Kelly '29
 Jacob N. Kliegman '29
 Arthur E. Lynch '29
 George McKinley '29
 Daniel J. Reidy '29
 Alexander P. Waugh, Sr. '29
 Robert F. Blumofe '30
 Henry F. Bruning, Jr. '30*
 William C. French '30
 Matthew H. Imrie '30
 Frank E. Kilroe '30*
 Theodore Lidz '30*
 Werner A. Lutz '30
 Samuel R. Rosen '30
 L. Gard Wiggins '30
 Stanley H. Brams '31
 Leo A. Flexser '31
 Milo H. Fritz '31
 Eli Ginzberg '31
 Myron P. Gordon '31
 Seymour Graubard '31
 John F. Holzinger '31*
 Benedict Levin '31
 Daniel H. Manfredi '31
 John H. Mathis '31
 Leslie Mills '31
 Arthur V. Smith '31
 M. Rollo Steenland '31
 Leslie D. Taggart '31
 Bronson Trevor '31
 John B. Trevor, Jr. '31
 Howard L. Walker '31
 Beatrice Rosenblum, Fr. '31
 Leonard S. Bases '32
 Louis Bender '32*
 Jeremiah Courtney '32
 Benito Gaguine '32*
 Frederick C. Gardner '32
 William A. Greenfield '32
 Alva K. Gregory '32
 Benne S. Herbert '32
 Howard E. Houston '32
 Ernest F. Kish '32
 Arthur Lautkin '32
 Irving Moskovitz '32
 Bernard R. Queneau '32
 Abe Rosenberg '32*
 Mortimer A. Rosenfeld '32
 Donald D. Ross '32
 Saul D. Rotter '32
 Clarence S. Barasch '33
 Robert B. Block '33
 Frederick H. Burkhardt '33*
 Vincent G. Connelly '33*
 Milton I. Elson '33
 George C. Escher '33
 James E. Hughes '33
 James J. Kearns '33
 John J. Keville '33*
 Benjamin L. Kwitman '33
 Forrest M. Lundstrom '33
 Arthur W. Seligmann '33
 Norman E. Alexander '34
 Hylan A. Bickerman '34

Ralph Friedlander '34*
 Herbert P. Jacoby '34
 Murray L. Jones '34
 Lester C. Leber '34
 Richard M. Link '34
 Leon Malman '34
 Stephen M. McCoy '34
 Millard L. Midonick '34
 Jack L. Migliore '34
 Howard D. Pack '34
 Harry Richards '34
 Philip R. Roen '34
 Ralph Sheffer '34
 Alfred G. Smith, Jr. '34
 John U. Sturdevant '34
 Jerome A. Urban '34
 William F. Bissett '35
 M. Harvey Gernsback '35
 Sidney Kahan '35
 Chadwick W. Ketchum '35
 John K. Lattimer '35
 Oscar Legault '35
 George E. Leonard '35
 Emanuel M. Papper '35
 Edward H. Reisner, Jr. '35
 Julius J. Rosen '35
 Walter Suydam '35
 Sidney H. Willner '35*
 Alfred J. Barabas '36
 Richard E. Bensen '36
 Freeman F. Brown, Jr. '36*
 Nelson Buhler '36
 Anthony Burton '36*
 Santo W. Crupe '36
 Fred H. Drane '36
 Edwin E. Dunaway '36
 Theodore R. Finder '36
 Leonard Friedman '36
 Robert Giroux '36
 Norman W. Gottlieb '36
 Alfred E. Gutman '36
 Meyer H. Halperin '36
 John W. Herz '36
 Albert S. Koenig, Jr. '36
 Paul J. MacCutcheon '36
 Herbert G. MacIntosh '36
 Robert A. Mainzer '36
 Henry Mezzatesta '36
 Paul V. Nyden '36
 Charles R. Stock '36
 Joshua H. Weiner '36
 Stephen B. Yohalem '36
 Dominic J. Bressi '37
 James J. Casey '37
 Harry J. Friedman '37
 Herman Gewirtz '37

Philip M. Green '37
 Sing-Jok Ju '37*
 Frederick J. Mackenthum '37
 J. David Markham '37
 Harold C. Mitchell '37
 Bertram Selverstone '37*
 Richard A. Davis '38
 Thomas M. De Stefano '38
 Wallace S. Jones '38
 Harry W. Kennedy '38
 Benjamin F. Levene, Jr. '38
 Alvin K. Link '38
 David B. Mautner '38
 Edward G. Menaker '38
 Robert V. Minervini '38
 Abraham A. Raizen '38
 David W. Rome '38
 Herbert C. Rosenthal '38
 Anthony M. Susinno '38
 Robert L. Banks '39
 Elihu Bond '39
 Thibaut M. de Saint-Phalle '39
 Revill Fox '39*
 Victor Futter '39
 Roy Glickenhau '39
 Werner F. Goepfert '39
 Herbert E. Klarman '39
 Howard K. Kornahrens '39
 Robert E. Lewis '39
 Raymond M. Marcus '39
 James M. McHaney '39
 Julian P. Muller '39
 Clifford H. Ramsdell '39*
 Saul Ricklin '39
 John R. Russo '39
 Robert J. Senkier '39
 Ralph C. Staiger '39
 George O. Von Frank '39*
 Irwin Weiner '39
 John C. Wright, Jr. '39*
 Lawson F. Bernstein '40
 Michael Bonfiglio '40
 Seymour Epstein '40
 Justin N. Feldman '40
 James A. Frost '40
 Ellis B. Gardner, Jr. '40
 Franklin N. Gould '40
 Seymour Hecht '40
 Donald Kursch '40
 Abbott L. Lambert '40
 John D. Riccardi '40
 Abraham Seldner '40
 Leon E. Seltzer '40
 Boaz M. Shattan '40
 Russell H. Tandy, Jr. '40

Lloyd Ulman '40*
 Harry E. Walker '40
 Charles A. Webster '40
 Mrs. Mark E. Senigo, Fr. '40
 John A. Andres '41
 William Batiuchok '41
 Quentin T. Brown '41*
 Wm. Theodore deBary '41
 John M. Freund '41
 Arnold J. Hoffman '41
 Harold E. May '41
 Raymond Robinson '41
 Arthur S. Weinstock '41
 David Westermann '41
 Robert C. Witten '41
 Alan E. Baum '42
 Franklin G. Bishop '42
 Herbert A. Deane '42
 Albert H. Dwyer '42
 Clarence C. Eich '42
 Gerald H. Klingon '42
 William A. Lange '42
 Kermit I. Lansner '42
 Edwin B. Lefferts '42
 Donald J. Lunghino '42
 Robert F. McMaster '42
 Martin Meyerson '42
 Gerald Silbert '42
 George B. Smithy '42
 Richard B. Bernstein '43
 Gordon K. Billipp '43
 Warren L. Broemel '43*
 Edward C. Broge '43*
 Michael S. Bruno '43
 James F. Burns, Jr. '43
 Daniel E. Chieco '43
 Arthur W. Feinberg '43
 Richard L. Fenton '43
 John E. Fitzgerald '43
 William C. Folsom, Jr. '43
 Kenneth G. Germann '43
 James J. Hagerty '43
 Samuel Higginbottom '43
 Anthony M. Imparato '43
 Henry F. Jacobius '43
 Thomas G. Kantor '43
 James W. Kerley '43
 Francis H. Laxar '43
 James J. Lennon '43
 Carroll G. Moore '43
 George Robinson '43
 Harry A. Russell '43
 Roger B. Sammon '43*
 William A. Sinton '43*
 Ralph F. Timm '43
 Bernard A. Weisberger '43
 Lucius E. Woods '43
 W. Stanley Wyatt '43*
 Herbert J. Zaslove '43*
 Panwy Foundation, Fr.
 '43 & '54
 Gordon Cotler '44
 Herbert A. Harris '44
 Robert Jastrow '44
 Richmond Kotcher '44
 Alfred E. Mamelok '44
 Harold W. Polton '44
 William T. Ramage, Jr. '44
 Warren S. Search, Jr. '44
 Maurice S. Spanbock '44
 Robert J. Suozzo '44
 Wm. C. L. Diefenbach, III
 '45
 Jack J. Falsone '45
 Julian B. Hyman '45
 Sheldon E. Isakoff '45
 Ernest H. Morgenstern '45
 Lawrence M. Ross '45
 Paul A. Stone '45*
 Anthony Vasilas '45
 Barnett Zumoff '45*
 Atherton Bristol '46
 Fred A. Escherich '46
 Stanley E. Gitlow '46
 Robert Greiff '46
 Charles G. Kiskaddon, Jr. '46
 Martin Silbersweig '46
 Fritz R. Stern '46
 Bernard Sunshine '46
 Eric T. Yuhl '46

Cyrus J. Bloom '47
 John G. Bonomi '47
 Edward N. Costikyan '47
 Byron M. Dobell '47
 Lawrence N. Friedland '47
 Don O. Gore '47*
 Frank E. Iaquina '47
 William M. Kahn '47*
 Joseph I. Kesselman '47
 Torleif Meloe '47
 Edwin M. Miller '47
 Meredith Montague, III '47
 Robert G. Stillwell '47
 Anthony S. Arace '48
 Jay Bernstein '48
 Robert C. Clayton '48
 Proctor M. Denno, Jr. '48
 Alvin N. Eden '48
 Fred A. Freund '48
 Arthur J. Galligan '48
 Herbert Goldman '48
 Cadvan O. Griffiths, Jr. '48
 Walter J. Henry '48
 Robert L. Herman '48
 Donald A. Holub '48
 Robert S. Kassriel '48
 Leon B. Keller '48
 Henry L. King '48
 George C. Lewnes '48
 George L. McKay, Jr. '48
 Michael Patestides '48
 Burton R. Sax '48
 Daniel R. Schimmel '48
 Raymond S. Shapiro '48
 Thomas J. Sinatra '48*
 Laurence A. Spelman '48
 Arthur Wittenstein '48
 Paul P. Woolard '48*
 Daniel S. Ahearn '49
 Ernest A. Bigelow '49*
 Sorrell Booke '49
 George M. Brunner '49*
 Bruce M. Burtan '49*
 Andrew Cheselka '49
 George V. Cook '49
 Robert A. Dietshe '49
 Joseph W. Farrell '49
 John J. Hill '49
 Henry R. Jordan '49
 Robert P. Kerker '49
 Robert C. Knapp '49
 Edwin J. Lemanski '49*
 George R. Lenz '49
 Marvin M. Lipman '49
 Frank J. Mackain '49
 Arthur W. Mehmehl, Jr. '49
 Paul R. Meyer '49*
 Richard H. Miller '49*
 Michael A. Paglia '49
 Robert M. Rosencrans '49
 James P. Shenton '49
 John H. Stukey '49
 Charles B. Tulevech, Jr. '49*
 Victor J. Weil '49
 S. A. Russell, Fr. '49
 Mrs. Robert Young, Jr., Fr. '49
 John C. Dimmick '50
 James L. Garofalo '50
 Franklin E. Gill '50
 John T. Kaemmerlen '50
 Leonard Kliegman '50
 Joseph A. Koerner '50
 Herbert L. Kraut '50
 John T. Nelson '50
 Raymond Scalettar '50
 William Warner '50
 Marvin S. Weinfeld '50
 Lowell Ackiron '51
 Willard Block '51*
 John V. Butkiewicz '51
 Gurston D. Goldin '51
 John C. Harms '51
 Anthony V. Porcelli '51
 Robert M. Reiss '51
 Mervin Ross '51
 Arthur O. Sulzberger '51
 Lester Tanzer '51*
 Edwin M. Trayner '51
 Robert P. Adelman '52
 Kenneth S. Alleyne-Chin '52

Philip Bloom '52
 N. David Clarke '52
 Alan N. Cohen '52
 Bard Cosman '52
 Nicholas Csonka, Jr. '52
 Thomas E. Federowicz '52
 Jack E. Goldstein '52
 Edgar Haber '52
 Ira R. Hoffman '52
 Charles N. Jacobs '52
 Eric M. Javits '52
 Kenneth Kriegel '52
 Leung Lee '52
 Charles J. McCann, Jr. '52*
 Richard M. Meyers '52*
 Walter A. Murray, Jr. '52
 Peter J. Notaro '52
 Saverio J. Panzarino '52*
 Stuart B. Pearce '52
 Frederic F. Primich '52
 John H. Ripperger '52
 Jerold Schwartz '52
 Richard C. Stein '52
 Robert J. Stinner '52
 Francis J. Toner '52*
 William B. Wallace, III '52
 Stanley A. Alt '53*
 William A. Altonin '53
 Arnold J. Benton '53*
 Elliot J. Brebner '53
 Peter N. Carbonara '53
 John J. Chiarenza '53
 James F. Crain '53
 Peter A. Fauci, Jr. '53
 Lawrence H. Jacobson '53
 Ronald Kwasman '53
 Jerry Landauer '53
 John H. Marchesi, Jr. '53
 Staats M. Pellett, Jr. '53
 Martin J. Rabinowitz '53
 Martin S. Saiman '53
 Bartlett M. Saunders '53
 Victor J. Spadafora '53
 Leonard M. Trosten '53
 Alan C. Weseley '53*
 Carl T. Witkovich '53*
 William W. T. Won '53
 Philip P. Bonanno '54*
 John W. Brackett, Jr. '54
 Charles Brecher '54
 Ian G. M. Brownlie '54*
 Bret A. Charipper '54*
 Reginald L. Duff '54*
 Peter E. Ehrenhaft '54*
 Enno W. Ercklentz, Jr. '54*
 Hugh E. Evans '54*
 Howard Falberg '54
 Robert A. Falise '54
 Robert H. Fauteux '54
 Alan B. Fendrick '54
 Michael Franck '54
 Clifford R. Franklin, Jr. '54
 Charles V. Freiman '54
 Leon H. Frey '54
 Lester H. Friedman '54
 Norman Friedman '54*
 Jerome A. Gristina '54
 Jerome R. Halperin '54
 Seymour Hertz '54
 Richard G. Hobart '54
 Melvin Hollander '54
 Dale E. Hopp '54
 Bert S. Horwitz '54
 George Hovanec '54*
 Mark W. Izard '54
 Norman Kahn '54
 Richard E. Kameron '54
 Walter Kirson '54*
 Lawrence A. Kobrin '54
 Rene F. Kress '54*
 Joseph Landy '54*
 Edward W. Luka '54
 Sol Merl '54*
 Leonard H. Moche '54
 George C. Muscillo, Jr. '54
 John J. Pepas '54
 Lawrence Peters '54
 Donald R. Pevney '54*
 Joseph Pomerantz '54
 Robert A. Reynolds '54
 Henry D. Rubenstein '54

Anthony P. Russell '54
 Alan C. Saiko '54
 Lawrence Scharer '54
 Alvin D. Schwartz '54*
 Charles E. Selinske '54*
 David Shainberg '54
 James M. Shatto '54
 Maxwell E. Siegel '54*
 Robert L. Simis '54*
 Clement R. Solieri '54*
 Harold B. Stevelman '54
 Stanley J. Swersky '54*
 Michael Tananbaum '54*
 Ronald F. Thompson '54*
 George M. Thomas '54
 Saul Turteltaub '54
 Vito R. Vincenti '54
 J. Stuart Warner '54*
 Robert A. Weber '54
 Lawrence Wilkov '54
 Herbert L. Wittow '54
 Stanley B. Blumberg '55*
 Robert B. Brown '55*
 Walter W. Burnstein '55
 Laurence A. Cove '55*
 Thomas M. Evans '55*
 Robert S. Fairbanks '55
 Paul R. Frank '55
 Allen I. Hyman '55
 Herbert A. Johnson '55*
 Stuart M. Kaback '55*
 Charles Krupin '55
 Harold L. Kundel '55*
 Donald L. Laufer '55
 Calvin B. T. Lee '55*
 Arthur L. Lieberman '55*
 Howard Lieberman '55*
 Richard I. Mazze '55
 Milton P. Merritt '55*
 William F. Mink '55
 Albert Momjian '55
 Stuart D. Perlman '55*
 Jerome S. Plasse '55*
 Aaron Preiser '55*
 Arthur J. Rossett '55*
 Herbert S. Rubinowitz '55*
 Albert E. Sacknoff '55
 Robert N. Schiff '55
 Arnold J. Schwartz '55*
 Gerald Sherwin '55*
 Michael Standard '55*
 Gerasim Tikoff '55*
 Ralph B. Wagner '55*
 Gerald Wehmer '55
 Albert V. Alhadeff '56
 Barry Beller '56
 Robert B. Erichson '56*
 Edward Gordon '56
 Joseph V. Governali '56
 Richard J. Hiegel '56
 Robert E. Horn '56
 Stanley Lipnick '56
 Alvin F. Poussaint '56*
 Richard S. Richards '56
 Roy R. Russo '56
 Lee J. Seidler '56
 Marvin Sirot '56
 Stanley Soren '56*
 Gerald M. Sturman '56
 Daniel M. Telep '56*
 E. Kirby Warren '56
 Albert J. Anton, Jr. '57*
 Donald Cohen '57*
 Richard J. Cohen '57*
 Wilfrid W. Csaplar '57*
 Daniel I. Davidson '57
 Edward M. Dwyer, Jr. '57
 Robert D. Ensor '57
 Chet Forte '57
 Alan M. Frommer '57
 Daniel Goldberg '57
 Lionel Grossbard '57
 C. Richard Guiton '57
 Louis L. Hoynes '57*
 David W. Kinne '57
 Michael Lacopo '57*
 George W. Lutz '57*
 Henry C. Marksby, Jr. '57*
 Jordan M. Newman '57
 Donald S. Simon '57
 Myron Stein '57

Nathaniel M. Swergold '57*
 Edward S. Wallach '57
 John Wellington '57
 Gerald M. Werksman '57
 Paul A. Zola '57*
 Morris J. Amitay '58*
 Stuart Bregman '58*
 Ernest Brod '58
 James H. Cohen '58
 Peter F. Cohn '58
 Richard H. Dreiwitz '58
 Fred Ehrman '58
 Charles A. Goldstein '58
 Paul A. Gomperz '58
 Ernest Holsendolph '58
 Steven Jonas '58
 Maurice J. Katz '58
 William R. Klein '58*
 Stephen F. Konigsberg '58
 Michael O. Lesch '58*
 Robert A. Levine '58
 David J. Londoner '58
 Theodore Lynn '58
 Lawrence N. Margolies '58
 Stanley Meyers '58
 Howard J. Orlin '58
 Richard S. Pataki '58
 Arthur J. Radin '58
 Kenneth D. Rapoport '58
 Stanley H. Schachne '58*
 William A. Schwartz '58
 Allan M. Shine '58
 Sanford A. Shukat '58
 Arthur H. Siegel '58
 Mark A. Sonnino '58
 George Stern '58
 Mark A. Weiss '58
 Howard Winell '58*
 Edward A. Zunz '58
 Michael L. Allen '59*
 George Asch '59
 Robert R. Brookhart '59
 Stephen L. Buchman '59
 Robert Burd '59
 Michael M. Cohen '59*
 James N. Cooper '59
 Herbert M. Dean '59
 Lewis D. Fineman '59
 William C. Frye '59
 Raymond Y. Fujii '59
 Jerry Goodisman '59
 Robert E. Haynie '59*
 Edward C. Mendrzycki '59
 Neil J. Norry '59
 Aaron M. Priest '59
 Barry S. Schifrin '59
 Howard L. Schwartz '59
 John A. Vassallo '59
 Jerry Wacks '59*
 Robert A. Beaselli '60*
 Richard L. Callaway '60*
 T. Irving Chang '60

Stephen H. Cooper '60
 Stephen Glaser '60*
 William Goodstein '60*
 Sidney H. Hart '60
 Alfred I. Kaplan '60
 Myron H. Lutz '60
 Harris E. Markhoff '60
 Alvin S. Michaelson '60*
 Stephen A. Ollendorff '60
 Robert J. Partlow '60
 Rene Plessner '60
 Arnold S. Ross '60
 Laurence H. Rubinstein '60
 Vincent J. Russo '60*
 David H. Sakuda '60
 Daniel S. Shapiro '60*
 Irwin D. Sollinger '60*
 George R. Stackfleth '60
 Thomas E. Bratter '61
 Douglas A. Chadwick, Jr. '61
 Philip S. Cottone '61
 Edward G. Fisher '61*
 Richard J. Johnson '61*
 Robert E. Juceam '61
 Joseph M. Lane '61
 Elliott Lebowitz '61
 Alexander T. Liebowitz '61
 Francisco A. Lorenzo '61
 Saul N. Schreiber '61*
 Arthur E. Schwimmer '61

Richard J. Skrenta '61
 Robert L. Trelstad '61*
 David Angstreich '62
 Peter C. Aslanides '62
 Paul H. Asofsky '62
 Bernard Balick '62
 Stephen L. Berkman '62
 Sylvain R. Fribourg '62
 Antonio Gebauer '62
 Herbert Gerstein '62*
 Philip S. Lebovitz '62
 Burton Lehman '62
 Ronald C. Meyer '62
 Frederick Modell '62
 Barton Nisonson '62
 Tobias D. Robison '62
 Loren D. Ross '62
 Robert Sansone '62
 Andrew Smith '62
 James L. Spingarn '62
 Leopold Swergold '62
 Philip S. Adelman '63*
 Henry R. Black '63
 Charles R. Braun '63
 S. Robert Contiguglia '63
 Richard Dickes '63
 Gerald P. Dwyer '63
 Robert M. Heller '63
 Richard Juro '63
 Sidney P. Kadish '63*

Bruce S. Kaplan '63
 Robert K. Kraft '63
 David Robinson '63
 Thomas C. Bolton '64
 Allison F. Butts '64
 Joseph H. Ellis '64*
 Richard Epstein '64
 Gerald M. Freedman '64
 Ian B. Fries '64
 Lawrence E. Goldschmidt '64
 David B. Levine '64
 William Oliver '64
 Daniel S. Press '64
 Henry S. Richter '64*
 Nicholas Rudd '64
 Brian H. Saffer '64
 Gary A. Schonwald '64
 Bernard Sobelsohn '64*
 Allan G. Sperling '64
 John R. Straub '64
 Edward M. Waller, Jr. '64
 Michael Willis '64
 Michael L. Cook '65
 Laurence J. Guido '65*
 Joel Heymsfeld '65
 Bruce G. Jackson '65*
 Morris A. Lebovitz '65*
 Barry A. Levine '65
 Sherman D. Levine '65*
 Edward C. Malmstrom '65

A. Howard Matz '65*
W. James Murdaugh, Jr. '65
Michael E. Newell '65*
Robert J. Reza '65*
Noah Robbins '65*
Arthur G. Rosen '65
Daniel F. Roses '65
Michael L. Tapper '65
Gregory P. Williams '65*
Jay N. Woodworth '65*
Mrs. Earl Marvin, P '65
Neill H. Brownstein '66
Eben I. Feinstein '66*
James E. George '66
Carl H. Hanzelik '66
Harvey Kurzwell '66
Lai-sung Leung '66*
David C. Lindeman '66*
Grant V. A. Roberts '66
Bruno M. Santonocito '66
Bruce D. Sargent '66
Michael D. Stephens '66
Jeremy G. Epstein '67
Roger Lehecka '67
Alan M. Meckler '67*
Jon R. Miller '67
Martin Nussbaum '67
Bruce Eben Pindyck '67
Jenik R. Radon '67
Dean I. Ringel '67*
Robert T. Rudy '67
M. Glenn Vinson, Jr. '67
Frank J. Voralik '67
Stephen L. Weiner '67
Mr. & Mrs. Bernard Anscher,
P '67
Philip Carl Cowan '68
Reid L. Feldman '68
Joseph L. Graf, Jr. '68
William C. Heffernan '68*
George Markowsky '68
W. Hollis Petersen '68
Russell J. Ricci '68
Derek E. Vanderlinde '68*
Henry Welt '68*
Jerry L. Wickham '68
Sandy L. Zabell '68
Erich Spiro, P '68
George W. Baker, Jr. '69
Charles D. Bethill '69
Jurrien Dean '69*
James R. Eller, Jr. '69
William R. Giusti '69
Robert L. Kahan '69
Lawrence W. Koblenz '69
John W. Lombardo '69
Richard G. Menaker '69
Michael S. Oberman '69
David E. Rosedahl '69
Donald P. Schenk '69*
William Stadiem '69*
Charles B. Temkin '69
Howard M. Weinman '69
Ronald H. Wender '69
Leo George Kailas '70
Howard A. Mergelkamp '70
Michael Onischenko '70†*
Edwin P. Rutan, II '70
Rex N. Smith '70†*
Jacob J. Worenklein '70
Dov S. Zakheim '70†
Andrew E. Arbenz '71†
Leo F. Calderella '71†
Lambert H. K. Chee '71†
Charles G. Currier '71†*
Mark L. Davies '71†
Neil C. Feinstein '71†*
Paul A. Freeman '71†
Rick Johnson '71†*
Terry S. Kogan '71†
Richard O. Levine '71
Eric A. Lindow '71†
Philip L. Milstein '71†
Louis M. Quirk '71†
Edward C. Wallace, Jr. '71†
Prof. & Mrs. J. Ritchie
Cowan, P '71
Albert J. Greenberg, P '71
Douglas S. Altabef '72†
Charles M. Birnbaum '72†*

Robert T. Guiterman '72†
Robert K. Hull '72
Charles W. Johnson '72†*
Gregg K. Le Duc '72†
James H. Lehmann '72†
Michael M. Meadvin '72†
Peter Milburn '72†
William K. Rivennburg '72
Charles Starkey '72†
David Marc Stern '72
Michael Weingarten '72
Edwynne F. Krumme, P '72
William W. Bratton, Jr. '73†
Marshall B. Etra '73†
Scott Gordon '73†
Joel J. Levine '73†
David A. Weisz '73*
Michael S. Alexander '74
Frederick C. Bremer '74†
Richard A. Briffault '74†
Karl David Buchberg '74†
Kent H. Cheng '74†*
Charles D. Cole, Jr. '74†
Robin L. Dahlberg, Jr. '74
Ralph Carl De Juliis '74
Nicolas De Lancie '74
Daniel L. Dolgin '74
Thomas F. Ferguson '74†
Donald Ferruggia '74†
Victor M. Fortuno '74†
Douglas S. Jarrell '74†*
Thomas H. King '74†
Howard Lim, Jr. '74†
Abbe David Lowell '74†
Stephen R. Lynch '74†
Vincent Marchewka '74†*
David J. Mark '74†
Theodore Markowitz '74†*
Paul E. McCormack '74†*
David Melnik '74†*
Tobias C. Nascimento '74†*
Stuart Offner '74†*
Mark W. Rantala '74†*
Michael A. Rozza '74†*
Jerome J. Sanchy '74†
Michael Sharpe '74†*
Mark A. Tessier '74
Charles Tiefer '74†*
George L. Van Amson '74*
Robert A. Weiss '74†
Oliver T. P. Wen '74†
William C. Willis, Jr. '74†*
Peter Zegarelli '74†
Thomas A. Campbell, Jr. '75†*
Robert C. Evans '75†*
David J. Goldberg '75†
Warren E. Goodell '75†
Robert A. Horrigan '75†*
Joseph A. Lipari '75†
Richard B. Slovak '75†*
Mark R. Baker '76
David S. Carroll '76†*
Robert B. Czekanski '76†
Richard W. Katz '76†*
J. Ezra Merkin '76†*
Stuart W. Miller '76†*
Jorge Romero '76†*
Allen Weingarten '76†*
Dennis S. Aye '77†
Robert P. Boatti '77†*
Robert F. Colby '77†
John P. King, Jr. '77†*
Mark L. Krueger '77†*
Neil R. Lubarsky '77†*
James J. O'Toole '77†
Adam F. Remez '77†
Anthony T. Saviano '77†*
David B. Stanton '77†
Christopher C. Sten '77†
Craig H. Weaver '77†
George Carroll Whipple, III
'77†
Sigmund A. Batruk '78†*
Thomas Bisdale '78†*
Robert Blank '78†*
David A. Brown '78†*
Eli Bryk '78†
Jim C. Chang '78†
Charles R. Dorso '78†
John R. Flores '78†

Robert C. Freeberg '78†*
Joseph Giovannelli '78†
Ismael Gonzalez, Jr. '78†
Brian Guillorn '78†
Ronald D. Hariri '78†
Glen Hopkins '78†*
Sigmund Hough '78†*
Douglas H. Israel '78†
David C. Jachimczyk '78†*
Allan Jalon '78†*
Howard B. Levi '78†*
David J. Margules '78†*
Peter C. McAlevey '78†
Michael C. Malignano '78†
Evan Miller '78†
Vincent J. Palumbo '78†
Daniel A. Pfeffer '78†
Gary R. Pickholz '78†
Paul F. Polatin '78†
Michael T. Porter '78†*
Jaime Rodriguez '78†
F. L. Rosenstein '78†
Nicholas J. Serwer '78†
Jay S. Soloway '78†
William M. Strauss '78†*
Richard H. Stukey '78†
Steven C. Werner '78†*
Samuel K. Wong '78†
Gerald Kaufman, P '78
Walid H. Azzo '79†*
R. David Bauer '79†*
David A. Brower '79†*
Albert Byer '79†*
John J. Callahan '79†*
Shane F. Cotner '79†*
John C. Czajkowski '79†*
Michael D. Daswick '79†*
Robert M. De Micco, Jr. '79†*
Robbie A. Dick '79†*
Walter J. Evans '79†*
David Fernandez '79†*
Charles H. Fiori '79†*
Mitchell Mark First '79†*
Jeffrey B. Freedman '79†*
Jared Fuss '79†*
Manuel R. Garcia '79†*
Timothy Gilfoyle '79†
Jeremy Gilman '79†*
Harlan T. Greenman '79†*
Craig R. Gurian '79†*
Roger W. Heighton '79†*
George Jirotko '79†*
Ralph Keen '79†*
Thomas M. Kelly '79†*
Robert Klapisch '79†*
Robert C. Klapper '79†*
Brooks J. Klimley '79†*
Mark Koerner '79*
Sam Leuchli '79†*
Benjamin O. Miller '79†*
Calvin A. Moffie '79†*
John M. Myers '79†*
Juan E. Naranjo '79†*
Daniel A. Nardello '79*
Eliot Nisenbaum '79†*
David L. Palladino '79†*
Richard Perl '79†*
Cristian F. Petrescu '79†*
Arthur F. Pulsinelli '79†*
Robert Riederman '79†*
Philip E. Sanders '79†*
Arthur F. Santiago '79†*
Roben A. Seltzer '79†*
Robert W. Shafer '79†*
Shaukat E. Shaikh '79†*
Steven Shapiro '79†*
John Stevens Sharp '79†*
Joseph J. Simone '79†*
Steven M. Sockin '79†*
Bohdan M. Sosiak '79†*
Seth T. Stark '79†*
Clarence L. Steele '79†*
Leslie F. Stern '79†*
Ramon C. Toca '79†*
Howard N. Wallick '79†*
Lance A. Warrick '79†*
Richard J. Wheatley '79†*
Philip J. Wilner '79†*
Jordan Wright '79†*
Dino G. Zachakaros '79†*

Agustin E. Don, P '79
Dr. & Mrs. Ricardo Dorado,
P '79
Dr. & Mrs. Allan Hall, P '79
James P. Gerkis '80†*
Henry Lowenstein '80†*
Marc G. Odrich '80†*
David M. Steiner '80†*
Mr. & Mrs. John A. Dickey,
P '80
Mr. & Mrs. Frank R. Dudis,
P '80
T. Corwin Fleming, P '80
Bernard Milch, P '80
R. James Seymour, P '80
Dr. & Mrs. Alan Simonson,
P '80
Mr. & Mrs. George T. Douris,
P '81
Mr. & Mrs. Simon Haberman,
P '81
Mr. & Mrs. Donald S. Kohtz,
P '81
Denis G. McNerney, P '81
Rudolph H. Nisi, P '81
Edgar E. Peltz, P '81
Mr. & Mrs. Jerome L. Stern,
P '81
William Styron, P '81
Bernard Wasserman, P '81*
Charles A. Cleveland, P '82*
Louis G. Cornacchia, P '82
Dr. & Mrs. Kevin Hill, P '82*
Ernest Lloyd Hopkins, P '82*
Dr. & Mrs. Irvin Lock, P '82*
Jacob Myron, P '82*
Frank F. Secchia, P '82
Daan Van Alderwerelt, P '82*
Martin G. Waldman, P '82*
Joseph T. Arenson, P '83*
John Calicchio, P '83*
Marvin Dicker, P '83*
Dr. & Mrs. Richard L. Doyle,
P '83*
Martin Gluck, P '83*
John L. Kidde, P '83*
Edward C. Kirby, P '83*
Mr. & Mrs. Paul J. McNulty,
P '83*
Lawrence Chamberlain, Fr.
Arnold Collery, Fr.
C. Lowell Harriss, Fr.
Doris DuFine Reilly, Fr.
Joseph O. Singer, Fr.
Burroughs Corporation
Campbell Soup Co.
Carle C. Conway Scholarship
Fdn.

In Memoriam

Melvine H. Cane '00
Peter Grimm '11
Simon H. Scheuer '13
Jerome A. Newman '17
Charles E. Springhorn '17
Byron E. Van Raalte '18
Arthur Levitt '21
Edwin E. Peterson '22
Richard Rodgers '23
David E. Ackermann '24
Harry S. Kantor '24
Henry F. English '25
Henry N. Rapaport '25
Murray I. Gurfein '26
Thomas F. O'Grady '26
John L. Olpp '29
Elwood L. Prestwood '29
Daniel Creamer '30
James P. Morrison '30
George E. Weigl '30
Jay-Ehret Mahoney '39
Jack Mills '41
William D. Schwartz '64

A Message from the Chairman:

When I became General Chairman of the Fund two years ago, I knew that the College faced a difficult challenge and that increases in giving and alumni participation were absolutely essential for the College's future. This has been accomplished, and I am grateful for the enthusiasm, devotion and hard work with which our many alumni and friends responded to our needs.

We have made some progress in our Annual Fund structure in the last two years. I was pleased and encouraged by the strengthened class volunteer organization this year and by the many special class efforts that were directed toward increasing alumni participation and giving in the coming years. I congratulate Joe Kelly '43 who, in his first year as Chairman of the John Jay Associates, continued the leadership role the John Jays play in our annual giving program. Under his direction and that of Steve Jacobs '75, the Recent Graduate John Jays increased their numbers and made significant advances in attracting more of our youngest graduates to join the Associates, a fact which speaks well for the future well-being of the Fund. Special thanks and praise go to our Parent's Chairmen, Phyllis and Don Sharp. They have spent long hours to make their Fund Committee an integral and vital force in the College's Fund efforts.

I would feel slightly remiss if I did not add that my satisfaction with our progress is mixed with mild disappointment that we did not reach our major goal of $1.5 million in General Purpose money, although we did experience a small increase over last year. I feel confident, however, that with a dedicated drive in the year ahead, the College Fund will be able to meet all its goals.

As my term as General Chairman ends, I wish to thank the Dean and members of his staff and all the alumni, parents and friends who helped me during the past two years. It has truly been both a pleasure and a great privilege for me to serve the College as Fund Chairman. My successor, Bob Senkier '39, is more than a loyal Columbia son. He is someone who brings to the leadership of the Fund many years of active service to his class as well as the experience of a professional educational fund raiser and consultant. I hope all of you will join Bob and give him the support and encouragement he needs in his new and exciting undertaking.

A handwritten signature in dark ink, reading "Richard N. Priest '51".

Richard N. Priest '51
Chairman, 28th Annual Fund

28th Annual Fund Committee

Richard N. Priest '51

General Chairman

Joseph L. Kelly, Jr. '43

John Jay Associates Chairman

Robert J. Senkier '39

Anniversary Class Chairman

Michael A. Stone '62

Regional Chairman

Bernd Brecher '54

Society of Class Presidents Chairman

Phyllis and Donald Sharp P'79

Parents Chairmen

Arthur Jansen '25

Howard Kornahrens '39

Edwin Lemanski '49

Michael Lacopo '57

Eric Witkin '69

Dudley Williams '77

Decade Chairmen

William Oliver '64

Director of Alumni Affairs

Bruno M. Santonocito '66

Director Annual Fund

Laura Denham

Assistant to the Director

(continued from page 24)

Brookings Institution, and became a frequent consultant to policymakers in both the public and private sectors.

One of Mr. Okun's best-known theoretical contributions was a simple quantitative model of the relationship between economic output and employment levels, which came to be called "Okun's Law." With the advent of stagflation in the 1970's—the simultaneous occurrence of inflation and economic stagnation—the assumptions underlying Okun's Law were disturbed; at the time of his death, Mr. Okun was putting the finishing touches on a new macroeconomic study which incorporated his analysis of stagflation.

Mr. Okun was acutely conscious of the inequities and contradictions inherent in the American pursuit of both economic efficiency and social equality. His 1975 Brookings publication, Equality and Efficiency: The Great Trade-Off, is an eloquent discussion of this central issue, and has become required reading for students of economic philosophy and public policy.

"Right or wrong, Arthur Okun was wrestling with the hardest problem," wrote The New York Times in a rare editorial eulogy on March 25. "It will be harder still without him."

Mr. Okun is survived by his wife, Suzanne, and three sons.

Coda

Early last June, it seemed all was lost. The annual Guggenheim Concerts by the 55-piece Goldman Band, which had entertained millions of New Yorkers with free outdoor concerts in the city's parks for 62 years, were doomed to extinction.

Richard Franko Goldman '30, conductor of the band for 23 years and son of its founder, had died in January, and his family had asked that his name be retired. But the musicians wanted to carry on the tradition. Ainslee Cox, the new director, began to prepare the band for a full concert season under a new name—the Guggenheim Concert Band.

But costs had skyrocketed in the last three years, and the band would have to come up with the additional $90,000 needed to finance its 8-week, 40-concert season. The appropriate government agencies were solicited; the answer was no.

In early June, the band was forced to announce that its summer concerts in the parks were finished.

The New York Times ran a post mortem. Instead of Bach, Berlioz and Gershwin wafting through the parks, there would be silence.

Then, five benefactors came to the rescue. The Music Performance Trust Fund, the Edna McConnell Clark Foundation, the Louis and Anne Abrons Foundation, Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb, Inc., and XOIL Energy Marketing Group, Inc., joined the Daniel and Florence Guggenheim Foundation, which had supported the concerts since they began in 1918, to come up with the necessary funds. The concerts were saved.

"We have had enough well informed people," Dr. Richard Franko Goldman once insisted, "stuffed with facts and statistics, who remain almost totally insensitive to their environment, surroundings and condition of living, who accept Muzak culture in a neon wilderness, tolerate shoddiness and dishonesty in public and private affairs, and shield themselves with voluntary deafness and blindness against encounters with reality. Education through art can be total education, for it concentrates on values that are felt as well as discerned, and anyone truly receptive to these values is at least on the way to becoming civilized."

The survival of the Guggenheim Concert Band marks at least a reprieve for the values Dr. Goldman espoused.

—B.K.M.

The Goldman Band in 1918

Obituaries

1910

Edward P. Smith, Buffalo, N.Y. on December 19, 1974.

Walter D. Wile, lawyer, New York, N.Y. on June 19, 1980. Mr. Wile was general counsel for Julius Wile Sons and Company, wine importers.

1912

Arthur B. Brenner, lawyer, New York, N.Y. on October 16, 1979. Mr. Brenner was a member of the firm of Barrett, Smith, Shapiro, Simon and Armstrong. He was active with the Brooklyn Association for Mental Health.

1914

Ray C. Beery, Dayton, Ohio on January 16, 1979. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ray C. Beery.

1915

Charles W. Bennett, retired business executive, New York, N.Y. on May 22, 1980. Survivors include his wife, Dorothy Bennett, and two children.

Carl R. Weidinger, retired accountant, St. Simons Island, Ga. in 1978. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Carl R. Weidinger.

1916

Alan F. Bierhoff, physician, on August 30, 1979.

Howard V. Miller, lawyer, New York, N.Y.

1917

Frederick J. Burghard, Dorset, Vt. on September 22, 1978. He is survived by his daughter, Dorothy B. Vister.

Jerome A. Newman, financier, business executive, philanthropist, Palm Beach, Fla., in New York, N.Y. on August 10, 1980. One of Columbia's most dedicated alumni leaders, Mr. Newman was Chairman of the Board of Visitors of Columbia College (see "Talk of the Alumni," p. 20). Survivors include his wife, Elizabeth Newman.

1918

Allen J. Cokefair, Yonkers, N.Y.

David Friedenberg, lawyer, New York, N.Y. on November 2, 1971. He is survived by his wife, Diane Friedenberg.

1920

Walter J. Archinal, Carrollton, Ky. He is survived by one son.

Frank A. Leers, property manager, Oradell, N.J. on March 24, 1980. Mr. Leers was president of Frank A. Leers, Inc., and chairman of the board of directors of the Bogota (N.J.) Savings and Loan Association. Survivors include his wife, Marion C. Leers, and a daughter.

John C. Newington, Greenwich, Conn. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. John C. Newington.

Herbert T. Staub, lawyer, Rumson, N.J. in 1974. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Herbert T. Staub.

1921

Marshall M. Bernstein, lawyer, New York, N.Y. on June 6, 1980. He is survived by his wife, Beatrice W. Bernstein.

Harry Gabe, cardiologist, New York, N.Y. on November 6, 1979.

Arthur Levitt, attorney, government official, New York, N.Y. on May 6, 1980. Mr. Levitt served as Comptroller of the State of New York from 1954 to 1978. (see "Talk of the Alumni," p. 23). He is survived by his wife Dorothy and a son.

1922

Mark Elmer Cymrot, lawyer, Brooklyn, N.Y. He is survived by his son, Martin Cymrot.

Ormond deKay, investment broker, East Hampton, N.Y. Mr. deKay was with Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. for over twenty years.

William W. Muir, lawyer, Miami, Fla. on April 28, 1980. Mr. Muir was co-author of The Army Way (1944). He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen Muir.

Harold G. Wacker, New York, N.Y. on January 26, 1980. He is survived by his son, Harold G. Wacker, Jr. '69.

Lester R. Watson, retired university official, New York, N.Y. on April 14, 1980. Mr. Watson was manager of Columbia University's government contracts division from 1942 to 1965.

Carlos G. Webster, Jr., retired brigadier general, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Siebert Wenerd, lawyer and teacher, Phoenix, Ariz.

1923

Michael Gottlieb, bridge champion, real estate investor, Hillsborough, Calif., on April 8, 1980. Mr. Gottlieb was one of Ely Culbertson's partners in the celebrated Culbertson-Lenz match of 1931. A winner of nine national titles, he was a member of the Four Aces team and won the first official world title in 1936. Survivors include his wife, Grayce M. Gottlieb, and two daughters.

Charles M. Scholz, Bricktown, N.J. on May 6, 1980.

1924

I. Cyrus Gordon, lawyer, New York, N.Y. on April 14, 1980. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. I. Cyrus Gordon.

William C. Kopper, independent research genealogist, Ridgefield, Conn. on March 30, 1980. Survivors include his wife, Serena Kopper, and three children.

Allen A. Pearson, judge, on December 11, 1978 in La Jolla, Cal. Judge Pearson served in the 1st Judicial District of Wyoming in Cheyenne. Survivors include his nephew, Bob Pearson, Torrington, Wyo.

Henry W. Raudenbush, Jr., Floral Park, N.Y. on April 14, 1978.

1925

Angelo A. Acampora, physician specializing in industrial medicine, East Rockaway, N.Y. on July 14, 1979. Survivors include his wife, Anne Acampora.

Alfred Baruth, teacher, New York, N.Y. on April 24, 1980. Mr. Baruth taught English and creative writing at the Horace Mann school for 55 years. Among his students were the authors E. J. Kahn, Jr. and Jack Kerouac and newspaper correspondents Cyrus L. Sulzberger and Anthony Lewis. He was the founder of the Baruth Student Tours. Survivors include his wife, Charlotte Baruth, and a daughter.

Bruno C. Drucklieb, Southbury, Conn. on April 1, 1980.

Henry F. English, retired building contractor, Newburgh, N.Y. on March 24, 1980.

Henry N. Rapaport, lawyer, Scarsdale, N.Y. on April 14, 1980. During World War II, Mr. Rapaport was chief attorney for rationing in the Office of Price Administration and chief attorney for the New York City Rent Control Board. A senior partner in the Rapaport Brothers law firm, Mr. Rapaport was a leader in conservative Judaism; he was a past president of the United Synagogue of America, and a director of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America and the World Council of Synagogues. Mr. Rapaport was a fellow of the John Jay Associates. Survivors include his wife, Selma Rapaport, and three sons.

1926

Carlos Henriquez, Jr., sports promoter and collegiate coach, Birmingham, Ala. on June 16, 1980.

Mr. Henriquez, a former professional wrestler, served as commissioner of sport for Cuban President Miguel Gomez in 1936. He coached wrestling and tennis at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in the 40's and at N.Y.U. from 1950 to 1960. He is survived by his wife, Alyce Mae Henriquez, and his son, Carlos L. Henriquez, III. '60.

1927

Howard D. Higgins, retired bishop, Southampton, Pa. on April 13, 1980. Dr. Higgins was ordained a presbyter in 1925 and served from 1928 to 1954 as rector of the First Reformed Episcopal Church in Manhattan. He was named Bishop of the New York and Philadelphia Synod in 1942. He is survived by his adopted son, Charles Black, Philadelphia, Pa.

Harry B. Myers, attorney, publisher, New York, N.Y. In addition to his New York practice, Mr. Meyers edited the Commercial Law Journal and was the publisher of the American Lawyers Quarterly.

1928

Millen Brand, writer and editor, New York, N.Y. on March 19, 1980. Mr. Brand was an advertising copywriter when he achieved fame with his first novel, The Outward Room. He was co-author of the screenplay of "The Snake Pit," which won an award from the Screen Writers Guild and an academy award nomination. A senior editor at Crown Publishing Co., Mr. Brand won critical praise for his book of poems Local Lives, and wrote poetry for The New Yorker. Survivors include four children.

Philip P. Denning, Jr., physician, Hollidaysburg, Pa. on August 15, 1979. He is survived by one daughter.

Irvin L. Dyer, retired banker, Vero Beach, Fla. on May 30, 1980. Mr. Dyer was with Chase Manhattan Bank for 30 years, and was a past director of the National Child Labor Committee. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nellie H. Dyer.

Charles S. Glassman, lawyer and realtor, New York, N.Y. on July 12, 1980. A member of the executive board of his class, Mr. Glassman was an attorney for the Office of Price Administration in Washington, D.C. from 1944 to 1946. Survivors include his wife, Gwen Glassman.

1929

James C. Barron, Bethesda, Md. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. James C. Barron.

Abbott L. Baum, stockbroker, New York, N.Y. on February 8, 1980.

1930

Seymour Rosin, optical design consultant and physicist, Orlando, Fla. on April 27, 1980. Dr. Rosin taught physics at the College from 1931 to 1941. Survivors include his wife, Roberta Rosin.

Ralph D. Sprecher, accountant, New York, N.Y. on August 6, 1979.

Hall Steen-Johnson, mechanical engineer, East Hampton, N.Y. on April 2, 1980. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Hall Steen-Johnson, and a son.

George E. Weigl, retired public relations executive, Chappaqua, N.Y., on June 27, 1980. In addition to his professional activities, Mr. Weigl was also very active in College alumni affairs. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lois Weigl, Chappaqua, N.Y.

1931

Harold L. Grafer, retired business executive, on March 17, 1980. He is survived by his wife, Helen S. Grafer.

Leo Kohn, physician, South Orange, N.J. on June 9, 1980. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Leo Kohn.

John Scott Mabon, retired editor, Greenwich, Conn. on May 5, 1980. Mr. Mabon's career in book and magazine publishing included positions with Alfred A. Knopf, the Atlantic Monthly Press, and the University of Michigan Press. Survivors include his wife, Ines Mabon, and a son.

Morton A. Shapiro, lawyer, Great Neck, N.Y. on April 29, 1980. He is survived by his wife, Marjorie Shapiro.

1932

J. Donald Albertson, former editor, president and co-publisher of the Peekskill Star Corporation, Peekskill, N.Y. on February 5, 1980. Survivors include his wife, Thelma D. Albertson and three daughters.

Alexander P. Chopin, retired government official, Greenvale, N.Y. on March 5, 1980. Mr. Chopin was a former commissioner of the New York City Department of Marine and Aviation and chairman of the New York Shipping Association. He is survived by his wife, Josephine O. Chopin.

1933

Stuart R. Stimmel, social worker, Portland, Ore. in 1978. Mr. Stimmel served for many years as state director of the Boys and Girls Aid Society of Oregon.

1934

Vincent J. De Nicola, Oyster Bay, N.Y. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Vincent De Nicola.

1935

Carl J. Johnson, executive secretary, Chicago Masonic Board of Relief, Chicago, Ill. on April 13, 1978.

1936

Paul E. Mattman, internist and associate professor of clinical medicine at Wayne State University, Detroit, Mich. on May 4, 1980. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Paul E. Mattman.

1938

Tucker P. E. Gougelmann, Peekskill, N.Y. Survivors include his brother, Henry G. Gougelmann.

Robert S. Malcomson, retired chemical engineer, Clearwater, Fla. on February 24, 1980. Survivors include his wife, Virginia, and two sons.

1940

Louis I. Berkowitz, social worker and psychologist, Roslyn Heights, N.Y. on May 19, 1980. For two decades, Dr. Berkowitz was Executive Director of the Educational Alliance, the Jewish settlement house on Manhattan's Lower East Side. Survivors include his wife, Anita S. Berkowitz, and three sons.

Vincent F. Gutendorf, public information officer for the city of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on August 22, 1979.

Joseph A. Sinopoli, lawyer, Yonkers, N.Y. on October 26, 1979. Survivors include his wife, Flavia M. Sinopoli and five children.

1941

Daniel I. Rosen, Silver Spring, Md. Mr. Rosen is survived by his wife, Mrs. Daniel Rosen.

Arthur P. Woodward, physician, Orangeburg, N.Y.

1942

Edward R. Larson, professor of geology at the University of Nevada, Virginia City, Nev. on February 1, 1979.

1944

John N. McKnight, psychiatrist, Port Washington, N.Y. on November 25, 1978. Survivors include his wife, Lori McKnight.

1949

Arthur Okun, economist, Washington, D.C. on March 23, 1980. One of America's foremost economists, Mr. Okun was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Johnson (see "Talk of the Alumni," p. 24). Survivors include his wife, Suzanne, and three children.

1950

George E. Fisher, retired teacher, Pebble Beach, Calif. in 1978. He is survived by his wife, Louise G. Fisher, Irvine, Calif.

David J. Maguire, film producer, Long Island City, N.Y. in 1977.

1951

George F. Schetterer, Jr., administrative manager, General Foods Corporation, Bedford Hills, N.Y.

1953

Robert E. Zegger, historian, Wilmette, Ill. in 1979. Professor Zegger was chairman of the history department at Northeastern Illinois University.

1954

Todd R. Gaulocher, broadcasting executive, Riverside, Conn. Mr. Gaulocher was vice-president for domestic sales of Viacom International.

1956

Robert A. Briggs, lawyer, Alexandria, Va. on May 27, 1980. Mr. Briggs was an appellate counsel with the office of the Navy Judge Advocate General. Survivors include his mother, Claudine Briggs.

Howard Tuckner, journalist, New York, N.Y., on June 4, 1980. A former bureau chief in Hong Kong for ABC News, Mr. Tuckner also reported from South Africa, Bangladesh and Vietnam. For nine years he wrote for The New York Times, and later worked for Newsweek, NBC News, and as anchorman for "The 51st State" on Channel 13 in New York. He is survived by his mother and two sisters.

1959

George R. Peterson, biochemist, Dayton, Ohio on December 15, 1979. The victim of an apparent robbery, Dr. Peterson was an associate professor of pharmacology and psychiatry at Wright State University School of Medicine, and was working on studies in drug abuse. Survivors include a brother, Leonard Peterson, of New York City.

1960

Herbert M. Einbinder, Nicholson, Pa. in November, 1976.

1962

Howard J. Bechefskey, judge, La Mesa, Calif., on May 12, 1980. A 1965 graduate of Columbia Law School, Mr. Bechefskey practiced law and served as deputy attorney general of the state of California. At the time of his death, he was a municipal court judge in San Diego's El Cajon Judicial District.

Hillel Hyman, clergyman, Rockville Centre, N.Y., on February 23, 1980. Rabbi Hyman was an instructor in rabbinics at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York City. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Hillel Hyman, Rockville Centre, N.Y.

1964

William Henry Franklin, III, magazine publishing executive, New York, N.Y. on February 17, 1980. Mr. Franklin was a circulation director for Ziff-Davis Publishing. He is survived by his wife, Olive E. Franklin, Ramsey, N.J.

William D. Schwartz, securities broker, Scarsdale, N.Y. on April 1, 1980. Mr. Schwartz, a vice-president of Prescott, Ball & Turben, was a specialist in energy-related securities. Survivors include his wife, Gloria K. Schwartz, two children, and his parents Ruth and Harry Schwartz '40.

1975

Robert G. Groh, congressional legislative assistant and press aide, Washington, D.C.

Corrections: Two alumni were incorrectly included in this column in our last edition:

George F. Thomas '69 has since been tracked down in Pennsylvania by a concerned classmate; Richard S. Downey '76 was in the midst of his honeymoon as we went to press. Dr. Downey graduated from Columbia P&S this spring.

CCT regrets the errors, and extends a collective thank-you to the many people whose friendship and concern have enabled us to correct the mistakes; we are also glad to report that the Alumni Records Center — our principal source for this column — has now instituted more stringent verification procedures, which should help us avoid future errors in this space.

Class Notes

00-

10

Norman H. Angell
108 Dumbarton Road
Baltimore, Md. 21212

A recent article in Time magazine reports that Robert K. Graham, a wealthy California businessman whose hobby is collecting sperm from Nobel prize-winning scientists, has named his repository after our late classmate Hermann J. Muller '10, the Nobel physiologist who died in 1967. The article states that Muller was a friend of Graham's, and converted him to his belief that man's genetic stock could be improved by matching the frozen sperm of exceptionally bright men with exceptionally bright but, unfortunately, childless women.

Classmate Muller was first inspired to pursue genetic research in our junior year. It seems that about this time, President Nicholas Murray Butler thought it would be a good thing if professors from the graduate schools taught classes in the College. Classmate William Langer '10 (later governor of North Dakota) lived next door to me in Hartley; together, we took a course with Professor John Dewey, which was a wonderful experience. If I remember correctly—it was a long time ago—I first met Hermann Muller in that class. He told me he was taking a course with the great biologist, Professor Thomas H. Morgan, which, in retrospect, must have changed his whole life. After graduation, Muller continued to work with Morgan, and by 1916 had received his Ph.D., signed by President Butler. Whatever was in that 1916 thesis of his would make interesting reading to some people at least, especially to his classmates.

Professor Morgan later received the Nobel Prize, and in 1946 Hermann did also, in medicine and physiology. I found a Baltimore Sun clipping of the time pasted on the last page of my 1910 class book. It says: "It is worth noting that Dr. Muller had been trained under Dr. Thomas H. Morgan, who won the same prize. The laureate tradition thus passes on from master to student. Dr. Muller is a geneticist who for twenty years has been conducting investigations in heredity. It is perhaps a sign of the times that he seems to be particularly interested in the effects upon the genes—the agents of transmission of hereditary characteristics—of certain rays which are of the kind produced by atomic fission."

Five Nobel Prize winners have contributed sperm to Mr. Graham's repository in Escondido, California, but the names were not given. I wonder if classmate Muller was one. Mr. Graham has hired a guard for his sperm vault. He refuses to talk with reporters.

11-

15

Sidney S. Bobbe
25 West 54th Street
N.Y., N.Y. 10019

Jun Ke Choy '15 was recently honored at a luncheon in San Francisco in recognition of his civic services as founder of the Chinese Culture Center. He was presented with a scroll, saying in Chinese: "The mountain is tall, and the river is long," as a symbol of the timelessness of his founding spirit. Choy, at 89, responded by relating some of the obstacles he had to overcome both in San Francisco and China before he could achieve his objectives. Choy is also president of Chinese Americans for Freedom and Human Rights.

16

Send news to
Columbia College Today
100 Hamilton Hall
N.Y., N.Y. 10027

Raymond L. Wise is the author of Wise, Legal Ethics (746 pp., Matthew Bender, N.Y., August 1979). It is his sixth book on the subject.

17

Charles Steiner
25 Sutton Place S.
N.Y., N.Y. 10022

18

Ralph E. Pickett
20 Fifth Avenue
N.Y., N.Y. 10011

We are trying to bring the records of our classmates up to date. A spot check has discovered several who have been dead for some years, but no notification had been sent to Columbia College Today. Others, like Dr. John P. Baker, could not be found by the Postal Service. If you receive this issue it is assumed that your name still belongs on the official list. Please help by sending any correction to me at the above address, or to CCT. Of course, we are always glad to learn of the current address, the professional or avocational pursuits, or other activities that engage your attention.

Since the last issue I have learned of the death of Ross A. Abel, Allen J. Cokefair, and David Friedenberg. This information is given here inasmuch as others of you may have missed the obituaries, just as I did.

On a more cheerful note, we learned that Dr. Eli Goldstein, professor of medicine at New York and Flower Hospitals before they closed recently, is still in active practice at his office, and making his daily rounds at Doctors' and Metropolitan Hospitals. He still goes to concerts and the ballet, and he continues to build up his collection of Hebrew books which he reads with great enjoyment.

We heard from Howard W. Courtney in June. He is still living in Clearwater, Florida, where he and his wife, Alma, expect to celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary this Fall. Congratulations to you both!

Monte Kandel, engineer, has retired and is no longer practicing, although he travels a good deal with his wife. He busies himself with charitable and foundation work, such as the Masonic Order's efforts in rehabilitation of veterans in various hospitals. Mrs. Kandel is also busy with help to the blind, especially with Braille.

Just received a fine long letter from John Ralph Boland, too late for inclusion here. We hope to have a further word about him later.

19

Stanley R. Jacobs
1130 Park Avenue
N.Y., N.Y. 10028

Having heard from no one in the class lately, I must risk seeming immodest in reporting a bit of news concerning myself. On April 16, 1980, I was very honored to receive a John Jay Award for Distinguished Professional Achievement at a banquet in the rotunda of Low Library. Receiving awards with me were Horace Davenport '29, Lester Bernstein '40, Emanuel Ax '70, James R. Barker '57, and Harold Brown '45, who received his in absentia.

No matter how "unnewsworthy" you may consider your current activities, I'm sure many classmates would be interested in hearing from you—so send it on.

20

Arthur A. Snyder
16 Court Street,
Rm. 2504
Brooklyn, N.Y. 11241

Our 60th reunion was joyfully celebrated on May 31/June 1 at the Rye Hilton Hotel, situated on a beautifully wooded 60-acre estate in Portchester, N.Y.

Attending this notable event were our 2nd vice-president, Dick Conant and his wife; Mr. & Mrs. Lewis E. Davis; Rabbi & Mrs. Isidor B. Hoffman; Leon F. Hoffman, Isidor's brother; The Hon. and Mrs. Ira J. Katchen; Mr. & Mrs. Lawrence L. Levy; Mr. & Mrs. Jules B. Singer; Dr. & Mrs. Jack Wechsler, and reunion chairman Arthur A. Snyder and wife.

Ten other anniversary classes joined with 1920 in celebrating their reunions; we had brunch in our private dining room both Saturday and Sunday, and a gala Saturday evening dinner-dance in the main ballroom. Dean Arnold Coltery gave us a welcome address. The evening's highlight was a medley of songs from the 1920 Varsity Show, "Fly With Me," sung by a group of current students.

This show was revived in April in tribute to Richard Rodgers '23, who wrote the music to the lyrics of Larry Hart '18. Three of our classmates who performed as show girls in the original production in March, 1920 (Eustace Taylor, Jules Singer and Arthur Snyder) attended the show on April 26th.

Through the cooperation of Andrew B. Harris, the show's producer, and Kate Cambridge of his staff, the students made it "an enchanted evening" for all.

Lewis E. Davis, retired vice-president of the Bank of America in the Far East, and now living in Palo Alto, California, attended the reunion with his wife Lillian.

George K. Small, a professional hypnotist, writes from Largo, Fla., that he has a most interesting, varied and satisfactory life, with much work planned. He is generally healthy, except "quite blind," unfortunately.

Wally Neumann had his 81st birthday on May 31st, but could not attend our 60th reunion. He was trustee of the Lincoln Savings Bank for 36 years and secretary for more than a decade. He has been class chairman of the College Fund for many years and still holds that position.

At the University's Commencement exercises on May 14, four classmates who attended marched at the head of the customary procession and were given front row seats in front of Alma Mater. They were Leon Hoffman, Carl Misch, Harry Goldman and Art Snyder.

Rev. Norman Sibley regretted his inability to attend our 60th, but attended another 60th reunion—that of his wife Peg, who graduated from Barnard 60 years ago. However, he sent his blessings and wished us all a swell time.

Ed Healy recently underwent surgery. We wish him well and a speedy recovery. He was our first class president.

21 Columbia College Today
100 Hamilton Hall
N.Y., N.Y. 10027

The Class of '21 column was prepared by Dean Nicholas M. McKnight, who has concluded his term as Class Correspondent with appreciation from CCT for a job well done. Please send future news to the above address until a permanent correspondent is named.

We were delighted to hear recently from Roger D. Prosser, a former vice president of our class, who wrote from his home in Englewood, N.J. Upon graduation, Roger worked in his family's business—Thomas Prosser and Son, importers and exporters of steel and machinery. His own son Robert is a specialist on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange; Roger has a daughter, too, Gertrude P. Fuller, as well as seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. After the death of his wife Julia about four years ago, Roger remarried. He and his bride, the former Barbara Conner, are doing a great deal of traveling, and are enjoying life. In his note, Roger asked to send "best regards to all my classmates," which I am pleased to do.

22 George Shiya
One World Trade Center
Suite 1345
N.Y., N.Y. 10048

23 Joseph P. Brennan
65 Central Park West
N.Y., N.Y. 10023

24 Joseph W. Spiselman
873 East 26th Street
Brooklyn, N.Y. 11210

On Dean's Day, March 22, 1980, the class was well represented by more than 25 persons. At our reserved luncheon table there were 21, the largest of any of the classes present. At the luncheon, George Jaffin, chairman of the 60th reunion committee, outlined our class commitment to the "Campaign to Assure the Quality of Life at Columbia." Our goal is $250,000 to be used for a suite of nine rooms, social hall and bathrooms on a floor in the to-be refurbished Hartley Hall. The suite will be named for the Class of 1924.

On May 3, 1980, Class President Al Robison and his gracious wife Ann hosted our 60th annual dinner (56th reunion) and meeting at their home in Teaneck, N.J. A heartwarming total of 58 classmates, wives and guests attended. The Robison's home was alive with the talk of prior years and present activities; dinner was delightful and president Al wisely kept the business to a minimum. Our honored guests, Dean Arnold Collery and University Deputy Provost Norman Mintz followed suit in their remarks. Al did, however, reaffirm the class commitment to the Quality of Life campaign, and a letter of details to the class will be forthcoming. From all classmates present, a sincere thank you to our host and hostess.

Henry Miller has been elected president of the Columbia Club in Atlanta, Ga. Now completely retired as Emeritus Professor from all his posts (Queens, Morehouse and Oglethorpe Colleges), he devotes much time to regional Columbia matters.

F. Rickford Meyers (The Reverend) had a heart attack and is now house-bound. Rick, at 85, is the oldest member of the class.

Julius Abeson is still active in his legal work. In his field he is affectionately known as "The Dean of Bankruptcy."

Arthur Ackerman is retired from the practice of medicine and is using his bundle of energy in community affairs.

For the saddest portion of a class correspondent's column, with sorrow I must report the following deaths:

I. Cyrus Gordon, on April 14, 1980.

William C. Kopper, in April, 1980.

Harry S. Kantor, on June 18, 1980. Our condolences to their families. They were staunch classmates, and we are thankful that they were at our 55th reunion and enjoyed it so much.

25 Julius P. Witmark
215 East 79th St.,
Apt. 9B
N.Y., N.Y. 10021

For our 55th Anniversary, the Class was involved in Commencement on May 16 followed by a banquet the next day, and a reunion weekend at the Interlaken Inn in Lakeville, Conn. Attending all or part of the festivities were:

Nassif & Marie Arida; John & Kathleen Balet; Austen & Luba Block; Harold & Pauline Brown; C. Bruner-Smith; Connie Burt; Bill Block; George & Geraldine Case; Hank Curtis; Howard Dockerill; Hallett Dolan; Irving & Evelyn Driesen; Charles & Esta Flood; Gertrude Friedberg; Mortimer & Sydnée Gordon; Glen Gunst; Hazen & Isabel Hardy; Alvina Huber; Dermot Ives; Arthur Jansen; Bob Klein; Harold & Lillian Korzenik; Madeleine Kroeplin; Harry & Leona Kurzorok; Bill Lieberman; Harry & Roz Lea; Milton & Ruth Levitt; Anoch & Rosalie Lewert; Joe & Marian Lillard; Milton & Isabel Mound; Charles & Katherine Mylod; Shafeak & Emma Nafash; Arden Post; Ruth Prager; George & Marian Reid; Harold Roegner; Alvin & Onita Schaye; Lee Sharp; Gerry Shevlin; Will & Marie Steinkamp; Raymond Strauss; Morris Saffron; Tom & Katharine Walker; Ed & Nancy Wallace; Mrs. Ford Watson; Dick & Ann Wilde; Richmond Williams; Lawrence & Mae Wien; Julie & Jeanette Witmark; Morris Woodrow; Jack Ware.

As a tribute to her dedication, enthusiasm and efficiency, Rose Brooks, associate director of College Alumni Affairs, was entertained by officers and past presidents of the Class at a luncheon at the Princeton Club on June 17. The group presented her with a handsome crystal bowl from Gorham so that she would have evidence in her home of the affection in which she is held. In the words on the card (and with a bow to Gertrude Stein) it was announced that "a rose is a rose is a rose."

Charlie and Kathleen Mylod, Julie and Jeannette Witmark, and Rich Williams were in the April 24th audience of "Fly With Me," the 1920 Varsity Show revived by the Columbia Center for Theater Studies as a tribute to the late Richard Rodgers. To their surprise, they were greeted with a red carnation, a souvenir program, and a salute from the stage at the end of the performance.

In May the New Jersey Academy of Medicine presented the First Annual Morris H. Saffron Lecture. Dr. Genevieve Miller, president of the American Association for the History of Medicine, was the speaker at this affair which honors our classmate.

Con Amore V. Burt writes that he retired from his surgical practice last January after more than 50 years of activity, for which he received a citation from the Medical Society of the State of New York. For many years he was on the faculty of P&S and was president of their Class of 1928. He is the author of many articles (his specialty being rectal and colonic surgery) and has been past president of the Medical Strollers, a society of the leading specialists of New York City.

Our classmate (because his father was an invalid and there were two small sisters to support) started to work at 12 years of age in a brickyard in Quitman, Miss., at 30 cents an hour. He went through high school in two years at night; while going to school from 6th grade through three years of college, he worked all day and attended class at night.

Dr. Burt not only likes to reproduce antique furniture, but collects old barbed wire and nails, an unusual hobby indeed.

26 Edward S. Lynch
30 Bedford Road
Pleasantville, N.Y. 10570

Sal Gambino, now retired in Florida, sent us an essay—"Remembrances of College Days, 1922-24"—from which we are pleased to present excerpts:

"If Dr. Butler had not persisted in his stand of nothing short of the presidency at the Republican Convention of 1924, he could have become President upon the death of President Harding.

"I recall the solar eclipse of 1925. The news media had announced Columbia was the best and nearest place in the city to view the total eclipse. Dr. Butler and the faculty and visiting dignitaries viewed from the roof of Low Library, and the Columbia campus was wall to wall people.

"The McMillin Art Theatre in the School of Business was the scene of many important events. I can still see Chief Justice Hughes delivering an address. Rear Admiral Byrd gave his illustrated slide talk about his flight over the North Pole. I saw my first opera there—Carmen—by the San Carlos Opera Company, and The Pied Piper of Hamelin by world famous Tony Sarg's Marionettes.

"My years at Columbia saw the construction of the School of Business, John Jay Hall, and the Casa Italiana.

"Security was handled by Blue Pete (our campus cop) in a light blue uniform. His Irish brogue and merry twinkle in his blue eyes endeared him to all the students.

"An outstanding facet of my Columbia years was the pleasure of being roommates with Arthur Burns, later to become Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and classmate of our beloved Dwight Miner, the late Moore Collegiate Professor of History."

Our sympathies to Walter Eberlin whose wife, Elizabeth Lam-brecht Eberlin, died December 11, 1979. Elizabeth was a Barnard graduate.

Eugene Sheffer is no longer teaching French diction at the Harlem School of the Arts. Eugene says, "I am preparing a monograph on the history of the Maison Francaise, where I occupied the post of director from 1941 to 1966."

Robert Rowen married Gertrude Perry of Bromont, Canada, and instantly inherited four children and thirteen grandchildren. Bob says he is enjoying life in Bromont and is looking forward to seeing his '26 classmates.

1981 will see our 55th Reunion! This will be held ON CAMPUS, where our class will be special guests at the Commencement exercises.

Make plans now!! You won't want to miss this one. Details will follow soon.

Classmates — keep writing! Thanks.

27 William Helfer
445 Park Avenue, 5th Fl.
N.Y., N.Y. 10022

Bill Petersen, retired chairman of the University Trustees and Trustee Emeritus, was on the dais at the 82nd Commencement Day luncheon of the Alumni Federation in Ferris Booth Hall last May 14. The luncheon preceded the Commencement exercises at which Bill was deservedly awarded the honorary Doctor of Laws. The New York Times excerpted Bill's citation as follows: "For nine years of service as chairman of the university's trustees, during which time your gentle guidance and unyielding determination held this university together during its most serious modern crisis." Bill's wife and son Hollis were present at the luncheon and the exercises; also present were Bob Curtiss, Bill Helfer, Cecil Hopkins (who flew in from his home in Arizona) and Bob Schnitzer.

Bob Curtiss added to his collection of trophies by being presented with the first Distinguished Service Award of the National Association of Realtors at their mid-winter meeting in Dallas, Texas. Bob is a long-time member of the N.Y.S. Association of Realtors; he was president of the N.Y.C. Board of Real Estate and of the American Society of Real Estate Counsellors. Right now Bob is hard at work with the Alumni Association, Dean Col- lery, Rose Brooks, Bill Oliver and others to re-activate the Columbia College Society of Class Presi- dents.

Booth Hubbell wrote some time ago from Tucson, Arizona, that although unable to get to N.Y. from 2600 miles away, he has not been idle in alumni affairs. There are over 70 College alumni in his area and Booth and others were organizing the Columbia University Club of Tucson. At their first dinner meeting in May of 1979, 62 alumni and guests attended, including classmate Cecil Hopkins. Guest speaker was Dr. Robert Jas- trow '44, Columbia astronomy prof and head of the Goddard Space Flight Center, who talked about Voyager and related topics. Says Booth, "Just wanted you to know that even though I am not in the Great Metropolis, I'm not just vegetating, but am doing my bit in bringing Columbia to the Great Southwest."

Henry Jaffe, movie and TV producer sub nomine Henry Jaffe Enterprises, Inc., writes that effective April 1, 1980, their new offices are located at Sunset/ Gower Studios, 1420 N. Beach- wood Drive, Los Angeles, Cali- fornia 90028. Visiting classmates can phone him at 213-466-3543.

28 Jerome Brody
39-48 47th Street
Long Island City,
N.Y. 11104

We had our final meeting of the year as a picnic get-together at the home of Phil & Selene Feldblum in Armonk, N.Y. Present with their wives and guests were Messrs. Veit, Glassman, Lane, Umans, Parsons, Barb, Siris, Druss, Taxin, Kolovsky, Brody, Mound, Mannix, Dorfman, Vischi, Price.

Re-elected were: Ivan Veit, President; Oswald Vischi, Recording Secretary; Jerome Brody, Corresponding Secretary; Leonard Price, Treasurer; Frank R. Pitt, Midwest Representative; Egbert H. Van Delden, West Coast Representative; Alexander Rubin, Southeast Representative; Louis H. Taxin, Fund Chairman; and an executive board consisting of Daniel Cohen, David Dorfman, Philip Feldblum, Charles Glass- man, Edward R. Holt, Henry Umans, Hon. Harold Kolovsky, Dr. F. E. Lane, James W. Loughlin, Howard S. Meighan, Dr. Royal M. Montgomery, Dr. Joseph Siris, and Hillery C. Thorne.

At our graduation, an honorary degree was awarded to Dr. Prez- ell R. Robinson, President of St. Augustine's College at Raleigh, N.C. He, in turn, awarded an honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Laws to Hillery C. Thorne, Sr. Hillery retired from the Board of Education in New York City in 1976, but you would never notice it, as Hillery is a consultant to the Chancellor of the N.Y.C. school system as a member of the Com- mittee of Appeals and Reviews, and a very active member of 100 Black Men, Inc.

Wilbur Friedman was elected a member of the advisory commit- tee of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Art Smith is recovering from open heart surgery and Charles Yankauer is also recuperating from his surgical experience.

Irving Langbein keeps himself busy on personal affairs while practicing law in West Palm Beach.

Those who read the Sentinel- Star newspaper in Orlando, Fla., will learn that Manly Duckworth has been the music critic for over 30 years. He majored in English and music at Columbia.

Rod Travis has been elected president of the State Magistrates Association. He served as chair- man of its Resolutions and Legis- lative Committees and was vice- president of the Association since 1977. In 1976 he was honored as Magistrate of the Year.

We are saddened to report the death of our loyal and hard- working classmate, Charles Glass- man, on July 12th. The Class extends heartfelt sympathy to his wife, Gwen.

Please remember our next event, Homecoming on October 11th.

29 E. Arthur Hill
50 West 67th Street
N.Y., N.Y. 10023

30 Columbia College Today
100 Hamilton Hall
N.Y., N.Y. 10027

Reunion report filed by Harrison Johnson

Bill Sanford asked me to write a few lines about the 50th Anniversary Reunion of our Class, un- aware that I barely passed English 101 with a C—, which I blamed on so much time riding shells in our beautiful Harlem River.

The celebrations started on May 13. It is a tradition for the gradu- ating class to invite the 50th Anni- versary class to their Class Day ceremonies in the Van Amringe quadrangle, presumably to show the new graduates what durable bodies Columbia College produces. Due to threatening clouds, the ceremony was held in the Levien Gym. Those of you who wandered afield from Morn- ingside since graduation and have not been back in years will be glad to learn that basketball games (and Thorndike tests) are no longer held in the Columnade hall that passed for a gym under the old Ferry Boat, but in a new facil- ity that seats over 3,000.

As we passed the 1980 young- sters, I remarked to one of them, "Take a look at this group. That's what you will look like fifty years from now." He smiled but the chap next to him exclaimed, "Oh my God!"

Later we joined Dean Arnold Collery for lunch. In my college days I frequently called on Dean Hawkes on matters concerning scholarship, so it has taken 50 years to sit with the Dean in more pleasant circumstances. The next day some of us attended the Com- mencement ceremonies, and again marched behind the faculty for seats in the front row of spectators section under the watchful eyes of Alma Mater.

But the big event was the reunion on the weekend of May 31 at the Rye Town Hilton Inn with 36 classmates present. Most brought their wives. I believe many of the ladies came to see what 50 years had done to the girls we dated to the Junior Prom or later married. From their danc- ing and gaiety it appeared that Father Time had done little damage.

The Rye Hilton is quite a place, hidden in the woods of West- chester, which some of us had some trouble finding. Once there it was all fun and joy meeting so many of our classmates. Introduc- tions were in order for those who had not seen each other since graduation. After all, a 72-year old chap looks quite different from those 22-year old youngsters we left behind. Some actually had most of their hair and many heads were still black or brown. But the prevailing hue was silver, and some wore Kojak haircuts. A spe- cial treat was provided for enter- tainment: the revival of the 1920 Varsity Show, "Fly With Me," music by Richard Rodgers '20, performed by current students of the University, which we all enjoyed very much.

Some had to travel from afar. Bill Norton and wife came from San Antonio, Texas, and Junius Bird recently returned from excavating in Tierra del Fuego. As usual the commuters were the majority. We would have enjoyed seeing more classmates and all agreed that we should get together more often by attending the Homecoming football games in the fall and Dean's Day in the spring.

Before adjourning we took a few minutes for the serious business of electing new officers. By unanimous vote, Bill Sanford was elected president with Eduard Baruch as vice president, and Harrison H. Johnson, secretary. No treasurer was elected, as the finances of the class are ably handled by the Alumni Association, so the position is just honorary. We are reserving that honor for the first classmate who donates $50,000 to the College Fund!

31 Arthur V. Smith
Curtis Morris & Safford
530 Fifth Avenue
N.Y., N.Y. 10036

Rabbi Emanuel Rackman, president of Bar-Ilan University in Israel, received an honorary Doctor of Letters degree from Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pa., at their commencement exercises in May. A prolific author on Judaic tradition, Rabbi Rackman has taught at Yeshiva University and CUNY, and is formerly Rabbi of the Fifth Avenue Synagogue in New York.

Ernest D. Preate is still engaged in the active practice of law in Scranton, Pa., and has no present intentions of retiring. Two of his four sons have followed him in his profession, one as a member of his firm and the other as District Attorney for Lackawanna County.

Charles J. Marro is practicing law in Rutland, Vt., and serves as U.S. Bankruptcy Judge for the District of Vermont.

Our 50th Anniversary year has already begun, so please respond to questionnaires and other letters as we prepare for the grand finale of a year's activity next spring.

32 Arthur Lautkin
1148 Fifth Avenue
N.Y., N.Y. 10028

Excerpts from three letters that speak far more eloquently than I ever could.

From Ernest F. Kish: "Much pleasure in meeting you at the Yale football game. Enjoyed soccer games at Baker Field and St. Petersburg — congratulations to the coach.

"Received mention in new book on Iwo Jima — called Iwo. Credits my efforts for B-29 program over Japan in '45.

"My Parkinson's disease has made me retire from practice of medicine."

From Lillian (Mrs. Erik) Linden: "Erik loved Columbia College and the Engineering School so deeply. I often laughed and said I was #3, for his schools came before me." I'm sure all remember Erik, who passed away in 1975. We are glad that Mrs. Linden continues to keep in touch.

Finally, we received a press release on Leonard Scully:

"The Federation of Protestant Welfare Agencies gave its distinguished Keystone Award for outstanding service in Protestant welfare to Leonard T. Scully on April 30, 1980.

"Mr. Scully is president of Morningside House Nursing Home and its division, the Academy for Gerontological Education and Development. Formerly senior VP of U.S. Trust Co., N.Y., and now president of Excelsior Income Shares, N.Y., Mr. Scully was elected to the board of directors of the F.P.W.A. in 1968 and serves on seven of its committees."

33 Alfred Beaujean
40 Claire Avenue
New Rochelle, N.Y. 10804

Hear and attend all of you Class of 1933, this is your new Alumni Correspondent addressing you. I have taken over the job from Mac Sykes who has done yeoman service for these past two years and to him we extend our heartfelt thanks. I hope to be able to keep you informed about our class members, and for this I will need notes and letters from you. My address is shown above.

Jack Keville (you remember — one of our great track stars) organized and promoted a "Salute to the Plastics Industry" which ran from Jan. 7-Feb. 16, 1980. It highlighted the contributions of the plastics industry to the economy of North Worcester County, Mass. and was a big success. Jack says "Who says we're too old to go into something new?"

On June 7th two of your classmates joined the Crew Reunion at the Gould Boathouse at Baker Field for the annual rowing on the Harlem River (it's as dirty as ever) and the picnic that followed. They were your correspondent and Bill Kinderman. We filled up an "eight" which was stroked by Bill Sanford '30 and Davy (Horace) Davenport '29 was No. 7. We rowed to the 225th St. Bridge, back out to the Henry Hudson Bridge without suffering any cardiac disorders. The picnic that followed was lots of fun and our wives who accompanied us were all delighted with the outing. Al Paul (Director of Athletics) says that they plan to make this an annual affair. So, I hope to see any former oarsmen next year.

34 Fon W. Boardman, Jr.
16 West 16th St.,
Apt. PHGN
N.Y., N.Y. 10011

Ruth and Belmont Corn have moved from Ft. Lauderdale to Pompano Beach, Fla. Bud is a member of the board of the International Swimming Hall of Fame, a commissioner of the Broward County Historical Commission, and tapes literature for the blind. Bud reports that Ed Kennedy, former swimming coach, is in "great shape," and that he saw classmates Bob Gardiner and Hickman Price at a dinner for new President Sovorn.

Evald Gasstrom is business manager of a service of the Westchester Association for Retarded Citizens, having been a founder of the agency. Prior to his career in social work, in which he held a number of important posts, Evald was for 40 years associated with the Eagle Rule Mfg. Corp., which he sold in 1970. He is active in the Finnish-American community in New York and asserts he is the last charter member of a poker club that started in 1938.

Evald is also our energetic treasurer. His recent compelling letter brought in more than $1,000 in class dues. So 1934 is again in the black — but if you have not sent in your $10, don't let this stop you. Several class members took the dues paying occasion to send greetings. Allen D. McCarthy of Long Beach, N.Y., noted that remembrance of the fact he attended the Rose Bowl game January 1, 1934, made him begin to feel old.

George E. Bucci reminded us that he lives in Mobile, Ala., having retired from the Stauffer Chemical Co., a few years ago.

Lawrence W. Golde is another lawyer still active — as a partner in Thacher, Proffitt and Wood in New York. Larry and his wife Josephine (Barnard '34), who live in Port Washington, L.I., have two sons, both lawyers and one a graduate of Columbia Law. Also two grandsons. Larry has been secretary of the Port Washington Yacht Club for about 20 years and plays tennis and golf.

Edgar V. Hobbie is still running the security business he established in 1949 in the Washington, D.C. area. Earlier, Ed had a varied career as a newspaper editor, assistant to several members of Congress, lobbyist for the dairy industry, and sales manager for one of the world's largest cemeteries. A resident of Springfield, Va., Ed has a son who is '70C.

Edna and Jud Hyatt are celebrating their second third-generation Columbian: son James who graduated from the Law School in May. Edna's father, Carl V. Vogt, was '99L, and her uncle, Edward LeC. Vogt, was '97L. Son Andrew J. is '69C and '71E.

Taking exception to some omissions in an article in the magazine Alaska about World War II in the Aleutians, Francis P. Organ (who spent 18 months there with the Seabees), wrote a corrective letter. As a result, he heard from other veterans all over the country and was asked by the University of Alaska to send more information. So Hank turned out a 5,500-word narrative which has been printed. Hank is retired and lives in Northampton, Mass.

George T. Paul, who earned a doctorate in chemical engineering in 1942, is a consultant to the Research-Cottrell Co. In past years, George has taught at Princeton and worked for International Nickel and the M. W. Kellogg Co. He and his wife Doris, who is a computer programmer at Rutgers, live in Middlesex, N.J. They have two sons (an ornithologist and an electrical engineer) and a daughter who is a librarian, plus two grandsons. George's main hobby is music; he has sung in church choirs for about 40 years.

Thirteen class members (including the host), mostly accompanied by wives, made the usual happy success of the Hyatts' pool party June 21. Classmates who came were: Norm Alexander, Hy Bickerman, Bob Breitbart, Ed Finn, Evald Gasstrom, Larry Golde, Bill Golub, Herb Jacoby, Howard Klein, John Leonardo, Harry Richards and Phil Roen.

Vincent G. Kling '38, architect of the new Atlanta subway system:

A lesson in dynamism

"When you fly a plane, it's like being in a fifth dimension," he told us in an interview in August. "It's a feeling you get in the pit of your stomach, of being one with the machine."

To Vincent G. Kling '38, the airplane is the finest example of total design in this century—aesthetically, technically, and functionally. "It's beautiful because it works, it's strong, it's not wasteful, it assembles many talents, and because it expresses the romance and fun of life."

Unlike many modern architects, Mr. Kling is not particularly interested in designing furniture or other "static infill," as he calls it, as an extension of an architectural philosophy.

"Movement," he proposed, "is more characteristic of our time."

Tanned, trim, and restlessly energetic at 64, Vincent Kling is no armchair theorist: movement is central to the life and the work of the former Columbia trustee, who heads a Philadelphia-based architectural and planning firm which has won dozens of professional awards and citations.

A graduate of the architecture programs at both Columbia and M.I.T. (where he studied with the Finnish master, Alvar Aalto), Mr. Kling's first commission was a private beach house on the Jersey shore, designed to accommodate the natural wind currents and the movement of the sand. It was included in a Museum of Modern Art exhibition of innovative architecture in the early 1940's, and Mr. Kling is still proud of it.

His latest project involves movement on the grand scale: a $3½ billion bus and subway system for Atlanta, Georgia, which should be finished by 1985. Mr. Kling lobbied hard to keep some of the hand-drilled natural granite exposed on the tunnel walls, "because it's beautiful, and because it represents a lot of human labor," he says.

Among his over 1,000 finished projects in architecture, urban planning and transportation are the designs for Washington National and Philadelphia International airports; a major role in the reconstruction of Philadelphia's core known as Penn Center; the International Monetary Fund headquarters in Washington, D.C.; the University of Connecticut Medical Center; the Altschul-McIntosh complex at Barnard College; and his personal favorite, the Lankenau Hospital complex in Overbrook, Pa. An ambitious project to combine residential, commercial, and transportation facilities atop Philadelphia's 30th Street Station was never realized because of the financial collapse of Penn Central. It was particularly frustrating to Mr. Kling, because he viewed the complex as a solution to profound social, logistical, and environmental problems caused by suburban sprawl.

"The destruction of our land by the pollution process is really a result of excessive and wasteful movement," he said. "Moving in a sailboat is fun. Three hours on the expressway is not." Mr. Kling's point was underlined by the fact that he had just been victimized by a monumental collapse of New York's traffic system, caused by a leaking gas tanker on the George Washington Bridge. We agreed to meet again at his home.

A visitor to his 18th-century farmhouse in Chester Springs, Pa. is quickly swept up by Mr. Kling's vigorous style, which plays gently off the tranquil and gracious sensibilities of his Virginia-born wife, the former Caperton Booth. Before an hour elapses, we have already ridden in vehicles ranging from a Honda Golden Wing motorcycle to a Ferrari 365, GTC-4 (whose engine won twice at Le Mans), to his twin-engine Queenair for a short flight over the farmland of eastern Pennsylvania. (A licensed pilot with thousands of flying hours and at least one very close call on the books, Mr. Kling logged five years in U.S. Navy aircraft during World War II, and is today chairman of the Chester County Airport Commission.) Before dinner we have time for a quick swim and a roaring jam session, with Mr. Kling playing a mean rhythm guitar.

An interview with Vincent Kling is accomplished on the run, like so many snapshots of a mind in motion, without the elaborate transitions that are uncharacteristic of the man or his architecture . . .

On architects:

"I don't sympathize with people who say, 'The best things I ever did are on paper.' The profession is short of guys who can conceive it and get it done."

On power:

"The biggest movers are the entrepreneurs, politicians, builders—they make the big decisions. But they never say to me, 'Give me the best office building you can design.' They say, 'I want it ready for occupancy in 1982, three stories, with a parking lot, for $40 a square foot. I don't want a monument.' If this had been the attitude for 2,000 years, who would have built the Uffizi Palace? Who would have built Parliament? Who would have built the Cathedral of Notre Dame? That's not a building—that's a symphony! The architect who gets his aesthetic vision accomplished has to understand the political reality. Brunelleschi and Michelangelo understood this. But there has never been a complete wedding of political leadership and the highest standards in planning and design."

On American architecture:

"I don't think Americans are willing to dedicate a sufficiently large proportion of their resources for great architectural statements to be enjoyed by future generations. Most of what's built today could be destroyed in fifty years and no one would protest on grounds of historic preservation. We build for the life of the mortgage, and then, who cares?"

On space:

"People keep talking about wasting space. Where's the space shortage that dictates 8-foot ceilings in American apartments? We live like pieces of candy squeezed into a box. Builders don't realize the value of space: think of places of worship—the vertical spaces absorb people's turmoil, as does nature's space. Think of Grand Central Station, with its high ceiling absorbing all that energy. Now think of [the new] Penn Station, where people scurry in and out of a great city like rats."

On Columbia:

"I used to get mad when I was on the Board of Trustees, because I'd recommend a lot of kids I thought should be here, and it didn't make a bit of difference. If this candidate didn't pass muster with admissions and the faculty, he didn't get in. And that's the way it ought to be: Columbia stands on granite, not plexiglas. First of all, you attract a big crosscut of very bright young people—and they influence each other. And then you have the windfall of an extremely devoted teaching staff. You study the past with the attitude that the why of events, not just the recording of them, is the real fun of it all. It sticks to your ribs."

"I just feel that Columbia's a solid, bulwark, bastion, foundation, motherpot of marvelous people and freedom of thought."

—J.C.K.

35 Allen H. Toby
122 East 42nd St.,
Rm 2800
N.Y., N.Y. 10017

Twelve '35ers showed up at our 45th Reunion which was held at the Rye Town Hilton on May 31 and June 1. Typical comments of those attending were that it was great to be with fellow classmates, renewing old friendships and bringing each other up to date, bemoaning the fact that there were so few from the class in attendance, and recalling the incredible good fortune of having gone to Columbia. Everyone agreed that it was a rewarding weekend.

Syd Barnes is living in Norristown, Pa. and represents two importers of novelties and giftware.

Jerry Fusco lives in Falls Church, Va. and is active in volunteer and community projects even though he has been retired since 1974.

John Goodner resides in Bronxville, N.Y. and is medical director of the American Stock Exchange's health facility on Trinity Street in downtown Manhattan. The service is an affiliate of the Life Extension Institute.

Walter J. Higgins, former chairman of the Hudson Valley National Bank of Yonkers, is retired and living in Palm Beach, Fla.

Chad Ketchum lives and practices law in Huntington, West Virginia.

Hunter Meighan lives in Mamaroneck, N.Y., and practices law there.

Oliver (Ollie) Neshamkin, probably our most faithful football rooter, is practicing medicine and living in New York City.

Charles O'Connor is now retired and living in Heritage Village, Southbury, Conn.

Julius J. Rosen lives in New York City and practices law. He is giving serious thoughts to retirement.

Joseph J. Ryan has retired from his nursing home business, spends winters in Florida and summers in South Yarmouth, Mass.

Murray Sylvester recently retired from the N.Y.S. Attorney General's office and is enjoying his leisure in N.Y.C.

I am still living in White Plains, N.Y. and enjoy being a practicing CPA in New York City.

All of the above were at the reunion and are looking forward to 1985 and the 50th. They all send their regards to the rest of the class and hope we have a much larger turnout then.

George Baumann of Chicago, Ill. is still active as the manager of Inland Metals Refining Co., a tin smelter.

36 Alfred J. Barabas
1000 Spring Hill Road
McLean, Va. 22102

37 Walter E. Schaap
86-63 Clio Street
Hollis, N.Y. 11423

38 John F. Crymble
22 Chestnut Street
Salem, N.J. 08079

Dean's Day in March attracted Ed Kloth, Don & Helen Schenk, Jim & Dot Stitt, Paul & Elsie Taub, John & Alenda Crymble, and Juan De Zengotita. The luncheon in Ferris Booth Hall provided a happy social time for all.

The 1920 Varsity Show "Fly With Me," by Rodgers and Hart, was enjoyed in April by the Schenks, the Taubs and the Crymbles. Don & Elsie graciously hosted the group for dinner at the Princeton-Columbia Club prior to the show.

"Pete" Guthorn sent an interesting letter early in the year on his busy career as a physician, surgeon, author, historian, cartographer, and father of eight talented children, Kay, Mrs. "Pete," is a teacher in special education in Neptune City, N.J., in addition to her family duties. "Pete" has published two books on Revolutionary War maps, nine monographs on historical cartography, a book published by Rutgers University Press in 1971 on the Seabright skiff and other local boat types. How does "Pete" pursue all these interests in addition to being a full-time surgeon, serving on many committees and active in the American College of Surgeons? We wish "Pete" many years of pleasurable interests in family, profession, and association with archivists in pursuit of his hobbies.

Weldon "Bob" Booth has been in touch with our engineering classmates Rosco Guernsey, George Brown, Arthur Myers, Curt Weyers & Walter Maack. Roscoe traveled to California in June to his son Bill's wedding. George retired in the fall of 1979 and moved to Phoenix, Arizona to be near two of his children. Arthur and Curt plan retirement shortly from DuPont and Babcock & Wilcox, respectively. Walt is consulting during retirement.

Bob & Tod Booth had a family reunion in Aspen, Colorado at the end of March. Daughter Carol has been appointed director of finances for schools in Boulder, Colorado. She has two great, skiing, sons.

The Hon. Wilfred Feinberg '40 was recently named Chief Judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in New York City. A 1943 graduate of Columbia Law School, Judge Feinberg was appointed to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York by President Kennedy in 1961. A Court of Appeals justice since 1966, Judge Feinberg rose to his new post by being the active member under the age of 70 with the longest service on the Appeals Court.

Howie Westphal, practicing attorney in corporate law and estate planning in Mineola, L.I. and wife, "Chick," continue to throw lavish parties for Columbians and friends.

We rejoice at Jim Zullo's recovery from an accident which almost cost him his left foot. Golfing, skiing, tennis, and wood chopping are still on his agenda.

It was a delight to see Leon Warshaw and Murray Uris '37 at the St. Paul Chapel Choir Reunion in June. Leon has been serving on Mayor Koch's New York Hospital Task Force. Murray is retired from the practice of psychiatry in Scotsdale, Arizona.

"Bob" Shaw has retired from business here in South Jersey. His neighbors still hear his horn expertise acquired playing with Hal Marley's Blue Lions 40 years ago.

39 Joseph Loeb, Jr.
100 Hoyt Street
Stamford, Conn. 06905

Add to the List of Retired: Harry Roggenburg, formerly professor of marketing at Rutgers University, as of February 1st.

Herbert H. Hyman has collaborated with Columbian Charles R. Wright '49 in publishing Education's Lasting Influence on Values from the University of Chicago Press.

40 Harvey V. Fondiller
915 West End Avenue
N.Y., N.Y. 10025

Forty years . . . it's been a long time. World War II — the anvil on which our generation was shaped — scattered our classmates around the world . . . and 14 never returned. Then came Civvy Street, marriage (at least once for most of us), children . . . solid citizenry . . . professional achievement. Meanwhile, four decades took their toll. "We're the survivors," commented one of the 52 who gathered, with wives, at the Rye Town Hilton in Rye, N.Y., May 31-June 1.

Ellis Gardner, who was unanimously elected class president, noted that the Class of '40 includes 60 physicians, 3 dentists, 2 judges, 30 full-time professors, and 18 who are president or chairman of the board. A brainy lot, to be sure!

Those present were: Alexander, Ames, Barell, Bartolf, Beard, Lawson Bernstein, Beyer, Bower, Corcoran, Danish, Dietz, Dowd, Edelman, Elbow, Ethell, Farwell, Feinberg, Flynn, Fondiller, Frost, Gardner, Hall, Hiesiger, Holt, Impellizzeri, Keutgen, Kosovsky, Knight, Kolodny, Krapp, Kursch, Lambert, Robert Lee, Loehmann, Lubar, Minervini, Neugroschl, Pacent, Plotnick, Remmer, Rice, Romaine, Saxon, Schwartz, Shatttan, Shongut, Stevenson, Tandy, Temko, Turken, Wagner, and Wegman.

Among those who planned to come but couldn't make it: Bankoff, Cooper, Davis, Kayden, Kennedy, Loy, Marsh, Mladinov, Webster, and Stanton, who sent a telegram from Napa, Cal.: "... hope to make the next one." We all hope so, too — and we're not going to wait till our Fiftieth!

At the festivities, your correspondent (on crutches after breaking a hip playing tennis with 14-year-old son David) gleaned the following newsnotes:

Robert S. Ames, Executive VP — Aerospace, at Textron in Providence, R.I., is on the executive committee of the Aerospace Industries Association. He has three children — Mrs. Linda Cassady, David (working in TV production in New York), and Elizabeth (Yale '79), who is in the training program of the First National Bank of Boston.

Martin C. Barell has been re-elected to the N.Y.S. Board of Regents for a seven-year term. His six children have undergraduate degrees from Radcliffe, Villanova, Georgetown, University of Pennsylvania, and State University of New York, Albany, as well as graduate degrees from Adelphi, University of Pennsylvania, and Johns Hopkins. His youngest daughter is Naomi (Barnard '84). Marty lives at 10 Ballantine Lane, Kings Point, N.Y. 10024.

Prof. Matthew Elbow received the Chancellor's Award for Excellence in Teaching for the year 1979 from the State University of New York.

Chester G. Hall, Ph.D., is executive vice president of the National Institute for the Foodservice Industry, 20 North Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60606.

Julius Impellizzeri is chief executive officer of Elmendorf Research, Inc., Palo Alto, Calif., and president of Stranway Corp. and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Elmendorf Board Corp., Claremont, N.H. The companies are involved in the production of oriented strand board. Julius lives at 5 Peter Cooper Road, New York, N.Y. 10010.

Bill Keutgen retired two years ago from Union Carbide, where he was in plastics research and development. He lives in Fort Myers, Fla.

Saul Kolodny is vice president, economic research, at the American Sugar Division of Amstar Corp., 1251 Ave. of Americas, New York, N.Y. 10020.

Dr. Harry Kosovsky is a psychiatrist with offices in Englewood, N.J. and New York. His daughter Karen (Columbia P&S '79) is interning in general medicine at St. Luke's Hospital, New York, and son Peter is a fourth-year student at New York Medical College.

Lou Pacent owns A&C Electronics, Inc., Northridge, Calif. He lives in Palm Springs.

Hank Remmer was manager of field engineering when he retired six years ago from Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Engine Division of United Technologies, East Hartford, Conn. He owns Ecological Design (landscaping designers and constructors), Glastonbury, Conn.

We were saddened to learn that Dr. Louis Berkowitz died May 19, 1980, at his home in Roslyn Heights, Long Island. A social worker and psychologist, he had been executive director for two decades of the Educational Alliance, a settlement house on Manhattan's Lower East Side. After graduating from Columbia, Lou received a master's degree in social work from the University of Pennsylvania (1945) and his doctorate from the human relations department of New York University in 1972. Surviving are his wife and three sons.

41 Mrs. Fred Abdoo
779 Schaefer Avenue
Oradell, N.J. 07649

Plaudits again to two of the many outstanding members of the class:

To Joseph Peters, consultant in planning and administration of hospitals and health care services in Coyle, Oklahoma, who was honored in Atlanta, Georgia on May 5 as the first recipient of the Corning Award for Exceptional Contributions in Hospital Planning by the Society for Hospital Planning of the American Hospital Association.

To Joe Coffee, who has been appointed to the newly-created position of Chancellor of Eisenhower College, now part of the Rochester Institute of Technology as a result of their recent merger. As Chancellor, Joe will be responsible for future development of Eisenhower's educational resources within the framework of R.I.T.

In April, a large contingent from the class attended the revival of Richard Rodgers' 1920 Columbia Varsity Show, "Fly With Me." It was a splendid performance by all involved and brought back many memories of the Varsity Shows. Next year, another revival is planned—perhaps one of our own I.A.L. Diamond's—so let's make it a gala night for '41.

Good news about our reunion this year. Thanks to our President, we are once again able to have our weekend at Arden House. Dates: December 5 through December 7. Promises to be a delightful weekend, as usual, so please get reservations in early. Come and enjoy!

Please keep news coming in to your Class Correspondent so I can keep '41ers up to date on your activities.

42 Victor J. Zaro
563 Walker Road
Wayne, Pa. 19087

Sy Ethan reports that he has just graduated from the Training Institute of the National Psychological Association for Psychoanalysis after ten years' work, and is now in private practice as a psychoanalyst and psychotherapist. For the past four years, Sy has been assistant director of the group therapy department at the Washington Square Institute of Psychotherapy in New York City.

From Oceanside, California, William A. Mazzarella writes that he has retired from a long career with IRS, and is now enjoying the golden years with his wife, the former Rita Detrano, formerly of the University Press. Bill and Rita are especially proud of their four children and six grandchildren. Bill says he is looking forward to attending the class reunion in 1982 and seeing all his old classmates.

John E. Smith's most recent book, Purpose and Thought: The Meaning of Pragmatism was published by Hutchinson in London and Yale University Press. John is serving as president-elect of the American Philosophical Association, Eastern Division, and is Clark Professor of Philosophy at Yale University.

Royale R. Crabtree '43 writes from Winter Park, Fla., that he and wife (the former Eleanor Voorhees, who did graduate work at Columbia and P&S) are thoroughly enjoying retired life. Their youngest son is in the Peace Corps in Nepal, son #2 is in Japan teaching English, and their oldest is working on a degree in architecture in Baltimore. Royale says he would be pleased to have any classmates in the area drop in for a visit.

It is a real delight to receive your letters and pass on your whereabouts and doings to our classmates. Please keep it up! Pick up that pen and write to me—Vic Zaro—at the above address. You and your classmates will be glad you did. Thanks!

43 John Pearson
6 Eileen Terrace
Ormond Beach, Fla. 32074

44 Walter Wager
200 West 79th Street
N.Y., N.Y. 10024

Known for their progressive planning and good looks, members of the distinguished Class of '44 are thinking ahead to the Homecoming Game with Princeton at Baker Field on October 11th. A small but fierce committee is being organized to guide this mini-reunion and picnic effort. Any dynamic tycoons, brilliant brain surgeons, master lawyers, famed academics, prize-winning poets or others who'd like to participate are invited to 1) get in touch with the class president 2) try to lose some weight before October 11th.

Those who cannot attend may send a note bringing this column up to date on their activities, a contribution to the Fund—or both. Your presence would be the best, of course. In light of the imminent federal election, funny hats will be permitted but no running shoes or boasting about alleged tennis prowess.

45 Alan S. Medoff
185 Cedar Lane
Teaneck, N.J. 07666

Dr. Larry Ross informs us that he is assistant professor of clinical radiology at SUNY—Stony Brook—but earns his living as a radiologist associated with the South Nassau Communities Hospital. Incidentally, his younger son, David Warren Ross, was graduated with the Class of 1980 and will be studying medicine at SUNY in Buffalo. Congratulations, Larry and David.

46 Fred Escherich
60 Siwanoy Boulevard
Eastchester, N.Y. 10709

Daniel Hoffman '47, poet in residence and Professor of English at the University of Pennsylvania, was honored recently with the Memorial Medal of the Magyar P.E.N. Club in Budapest, Hungary, for his work in translating and popularizing Hungarian literature. Professor Hoffman, who has published seven volumes of his own poetry, is the editor of the recently published Harvard Guide to Contemporary American Writing, and is one of the principal translators of the Modern Hungarian Poetry anthology. A chancellor of the American Academy of Contemporary Poets, Professor Hoffman was named the University of Pennsylvania's poet in residence and director of the writing program in 1978; he joined the Penn faculty in 1966, having previously taught at Columbia College and Swarthmore.

47 George W. Cooper
489 Fifth Avenue
(Suite 1501)
N.Y., N.Y. 10017

Ave atque vale! Hail to the new format; farewell to the old. And what do we have to inaugurate our space in the new CCT, but a single item (and of course, the captioned photo of Dan Hoffman that already caught your eye):

Pierre L. Sales, formerly with the State Department, has been appointed chief-of-mission of a "multi-million dollar" development project in Mauritania. Dare we say: "Lucky Pierre"!

The new format permits us a maximum of 65 lines at 38 characters (that's printing type, not alumni) per line. This issue, it was an effort to reach 20 lines, including spaces. Please help your correspondent to do better next time.

48 David L. Schraffenberger
500 Second Avenue,
L.B. #108
N.Y., N.Y. 10016

You heard it here first (maybe): John Steeves, New York's oldest living landmark, moves to Savannah, Georgia, at the end of August.

Elsewhere, classmates continue to report an impressive array of new appointments and elected positions.

Hal Broderick has been named director of market development for the Dictaphone Corp. (he was formerly their director of government sales). He and wife Cathy and their three children are residents of Staten Island.

Fred Messner, a vice-president of the New York ad agency Poppe Tyson (division of deGarmo Inc.) has been elected president of the Advertising Club of New York.

The amiable Dr. Sears Edwards (Garden City, N.Y.), having completed his term as president of the Nassau County Medical Society, is now a councilor of the New York State Medical Society, and on the Board of Directors of the Medical Liability Mutual Insurance Company.

Attorney Dan Hoffman (Santa Clara, Cal.), with a demonstrated interest in a wide variety of issues of the day, has recently been re-elected vice-president of the Northern California Coalition for Handgun Control.

Dr. Burton V. Dean, professor and chairman, department of operations research, Case Western Reserve University (Cleveland)

SHARON MCINTOSH

William Rubin '49, director of the Museum of Modern Art's Picasso retrospective:

An eruption of genius

"I want people to go out of here reeling, to have a sense of 'How could he do it?'" William Rubin told a Times reporter when New York's Museum of Modern Art (MoMA) opened its unprecedented Pablo Picasso exhibition in May.

"I want them to have the same feelings I had in seeing the forest of Picasso's own sculptures that he kept in a downstairs studio at his home—almost a sensation of vertigo, based on an impression of more range, more invention, more variety than the mind can cope with."

If people emerged from MoMA in awe of Picasso's vision and fecundity, they were necessarily impressed by Mr. Rubin's achievement in having organized the museum-wide display. Nearly 1,000 works, including many from the artist's private collection, were assembled for the four-month exhibition, which concluded on September 30. The museum's 41-gallery permanent collection was temporarily stored away, allowing more than one million visitors to confront the enormous, often terrifying force of Picasso's eight-decade career.

It was an idea of which Picasso himself approved. A year after Mr. Rubin's 1972 visit to Picasso's villa in the south of France, he approached the painter with the museum's proposal. Although he had never seen MoMA, Picasso reportedly chuckled and agreed to the exhibition.

The artist died a few months later and left no will, which effectively halted Mr. Rubin's plans until years of tangled litigation could be resolved. In lieu of estate taxes, the French government expropriated more than 3,000 of Picasso's works for the proposed Musée Picasso in Paris, whose future curator-in-charge, Dominique Bozo, became Mr. Rubin's co-director in the MoMA undertaking. Together, they set about the colossal task of choosing, procuring, and shipping their selections from 152 lenders around the world, including 56 other museums. (Of all the sources, only one eventually backed out: the Soviet Union cancelled its loan of 12 major works in the chilled atmosphere following the invasion of Afghanistan.)

The resulting retrospective was hailed as "possibly the most crushing and exhilarating exhibition of a 20th century artist ever held in the U.S.," by Time magazine art critic Robert Hughes. Upon completing the tour, visitors used such words as "inspired," "exhausted," "saturated," and "overwhelmed." The spate of articles, books, and press coverage generated by the exhibit amounted to a major reconsideration of both Picasso's work and his place in 20th century art. It was the desired effect.

Mr. Rubin explicitly wanted the show "to be confusing to people who think they have a grip on Picasso's career." He said, "They should come out thinking, 'It's a lot less clear than I thought.'"

Since even the more casual visitors were emerging exhausted, it is understandable that Mr. Rubin retreated to France shortly after the exhibit's opening to resume writing under quieter conditions and to enjoy a well-deserved vacation.

A native New Yorker, Mr. Rubin studied at Columbia College and the University of Paris, and earned an M.A. in history and a Ph.D. in art history at Columbia, working with Professors Meyer Schapiro '24 and Millard Meiss. The author of several publications on modern art and a former editor of Art International, Mr. Rubin has himself taught at Sarah Lawrence and at CUNY's graduate school; presently, he is an adjunct professor of art history at the Institute of Fine Arts at New York University, in addition to his duties at MoMA, where he is director of sculpture and painting.

In 1977, he mounted MoMA's highly-acclaimed exhibit, "Cezanne: The Late Work," which was considered to be something of a coup in itself. To have successfully undertaken an exhibit on the scale of the Picasso retrospective is a once-in-a-lifetime achievement. And yet, the enormity of Picasso's work is uncontainable, even by William Rubin's reckoning:

"In a way, you can't really jam this genius into one building," he said. "MoMA isn't large enough." —P.K.

ALEXANDER LIBERMAN

was elected president of Omega Rho, the international honorary society of operations research. The Society has 17 chapters, with approximately 600 members, and looks forward to substantial growth during Dr. Dean's two-year term.

Eric P. Schellin has been in private law practice since 1958, specializing in patents, trademarks, copyrights, and unfair competition causes. He is also a professor at George Mason University School of Law, a lecturer at Georgetown University, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the National Small Business Administration, and an officer and member of a number of Presidential and governmental committees and task forces, as well as a frequent contributor to magazines and journals (an article reviewing the problems of inventors and entrepreneurs recently appeared in both Newsweek and the Wall Street Journal). Eric and Mrs. Schellin (Dorothy) have seven children — the oldest, a daughter, now in law school.

Some people think Dick Hyman is the only piano player in the world. He is not. At least eight (by personal count) superb jazz pianists provided one of the Newport Jazz Festival's most outstanding programs on a summer Saturday at New Jersey's Waterloo Village. The entire production was under the direction of (you guessed it) Dick Hyman.

Horizons have broadened for Bob Clayton, now managing properties in Queens, Manhattan, and the Bronx in his new position with the real estate firm of Sulzberger-Rolfe, Inc.

49 Richard C. Kandel
523-B East 85th St.,
Apt. 1-C
N.Y., N.Y. 10028

50 Mario A. Palmieri
33 Lakeview Avenue, W.
Peekskill, N.Y. 10566

From information we have gathered from various sources, apparently 10 classmates put in an appearance — for at least part of the weekend — at the 30th reunion in Rye, N.Y. They were Budd Appleton, John Arents, George Evalenko, Jim Garofalo, Bill Hanigan, Carl Hovde, Jerry Kaye, Mario Palmieri, Tom Sebring, Arthur Thomas. If we've omitted anyone, please inform your correspondent.

Jay Lefer, M.D. is supervising and training analyst, Psychoanalytic Division, New York Medical College. Jay is also teaching at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine Hospital. His family includes two sons, ages 9 and 5, and his wife teaches political science at Cooper Union. Mrs. Lefer is soon to publish a book about Quebec.

51 Richard N. Priest
Kaye, Scholer, Fierman,
Hays & Handler
425 Park Avenue
N.Y., N.Y. 10022

Robert T. Snyder has been appointed an Administrative Law Judge for the National Labor Relations Board, and will serve in the N.Y.C. Office of the Division of Law Judges.

Mark N. Kaplan, a partner in the law firm of Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom, and former president and chief operating officer of Engelhard Minerals and Chemicals Corp., was recently elected to the board of Unishops, Inc. Mr. Kaplan is also a member of the board of directors of Elgin National Industries, Inc.; Grey Advertising, Inc.; REFAC Technology Development Corp.; and Crush International Ltd.

Richard N. Priest, formerly senior VP of the New York Stock Exchange, was recently appointed Executive Director of Kaye, Scholar, Fierman, Hays & Handler, located at 425 Park Avenue, N.Y.C. 10022.

1981 marks the thirtieth anniversary of our class. Many people remember the excellent reunion that we had five years ago. We anticipate another very good reunion for our thirtieth anniversary.

This year the Columbia College Fund exceeded $2 million for the first time in its history. Much of the improvement was directly related to the increased levels of giving of the anniversary classes. Five years ago, the class of 1951 set a record for a 25th anniversary class, which was subsequently exceeded by the classes of '52 and '54. It is essential, I believe, that we establish a record level of contribution to the Fund for our thirtieth anniversary. Both this effort and the activity involved in setting up our reunion will require as many volunteers as we can possibly get. I would greatly appreciate if anyone interested in working either on the reunion or in connection with the fund contact me promptly.

52 Robert N. Landes
McGraw-Hill
1221 Avenue of the Americas
N.Y., N.Y. 10020

Dr. John W. Rhinehart wrote in to correct some errors which crept into the last column. We mistakenly placed the good doctor in Newton, Mass., instead of Newtown, Connecticut. And to make sure of the rest, I shall refer to Dr. Rhinehart's note: "At this point," he writes, "we are very much involved in the Kelly non-specific metabolic program, which simply translated, means creating a new, healthy holistic life style through various holistic means and still living effectively in the world." For those sufficiently intrigued, contact Dr. Rhinehart at Deep Brook Associates, Newtown, Ct. 06470.

Wes Bomm, an electronics data processing consultant, was recently named partner-in-charge for Coopers & Lybrand's Consulting Services Group in Philadelphia. Wes, his wife Gloria, and their five children live in Cherry Hill, N.J.

Frank W. Walwer has left his post as Associate Dean at Columbia Law School to assume the deanship of the University of Tulsa College of Law. Saying that in his new position he sees a law faculty that is "young, eager, energetic and determined," with a "forward-looking policy," Frank added that the city of Tulsa — where he and his wife Mary Ann now live with their son Gregory — and its College of Law are "small enough to come to grips and make things happen." May we add our congratulations and best wishes.

53 Phil Wilson
150 Paradise Road
E. Amherst, N.Y. 14051

Your class and secretary are especially indebted to Dick Connington. First, for sponsoring the cocktail party/reception for Mike and Joan Sovern June 14, at the Connington's East 81st Street apartment, and for providing most of the tidbits for this column. Thanks also go to Pete and Doris Pellett, as co-sponsors of the Sovern sojourn. About sixty classmates, spouses and girlfriends were there, including but not limited to: Jay Kane, Warren Calwill, Herb Rosedale, Norm Marcus, Don Schacher, Al Worby, Burt Murdock, Stan Kieffer, Dick Gershon, Lou Soloway, Al Donati, Vic Creighton, Tim Sherwin, Dick Koomey, John Wuorinen, Bob Taylor, John Bacharach, Pete Carbonara, Al Thaler, Howie Pettebone, Art Hessinger and Ray Barile.

Heard between slurps, about those in attendance:

Want a loan, call Pettebone! Howard Pettebone is now chief loan officer of First National Bank of Central Jersey.

Opting for two basketball teams rather than one baseball assemblage, John Wuorinen and his wife await the birth of their tenth child sometime in September. Complete with luxuriant beard, John divides his time between the Bell labs (23 years) in Whippany, N.J., and a seven acre farm in Chester.

Norm Marcus makes good use of his experience working and living in the big city as counsel to the NYC Planning Commission.

Dick Koomey is assistant general counsel of Sperry and Hutchinson.

Dick Gershon's young ad agency, Lois, Pitts, Gershon, is growing rapidly.

Dick Connington has been named executive VP and director of Charter Group International, Inc., an international consulting group with offices in Boston, NYC and London, with which Dewey, Irwin and Co., his own consulting firm, is affiliated.

News about those unable to attend but there in spirit:

Gene Hoenig and Marius Valsamis at the American Association of Neuropathologists' convention in New Orleans; Rolan Reed performing his duties as "The Boy Major" of Dobbs Ferry, N.Y.; Stan Sklar, a NYC Civil Court Judge, on vacation trip; Don Taylor on his honeymoon (and taking time out from his duties as principal in Chestnut Hill Radiological Associates, Boston); Dave Richman now heading the staff division of "Program Integration Analysis" for the DOE; Jim Concra owning and running Colonial Advertising agency in Kingston, N.Y.; Pete Lewis practicing law in Baltimore and Barry Schweid busy as a news commentator for PBS.

Lest you think that all your classmates became physicians, attorneys or educators, (or chose an honest living at reasonable rates), Bill Owen was elected a trustee of the N.J. Society of Certified Public Accountants. Bill resides in Franklin, N.J. with his wife and three children.

Your class was magnificently represented at the College Alumni Association workshop at Arden House, May 24-25, by Dick Clew and Phil Wilson.

54 Bill Berry
1300 Midland Avenue
Yonkers, N.Y. 10704

You guys just don't seem to have the hang of this class-notes business yet. I can't believe that the 500-plus bright-and-aggressive-and intelligent darlings of destiny who departed from Morningside 28 (ugh) years ago have so little to report. Are you all sinking into quiet recession? male menopause? oblivion? 'Fess up now: Didn't something of interest happen recently? (If necessary, we'll keep the item Anon.) So let's proceed with the four, count'em, four, items I've got from the legal, medical and academic branches of the class:

Dave Bardin reports he's just joined the "prestigious" (noted in green ink inserted over typescript) Washington law firm of Arent, Fox, Kintner, Plotkin & Kahn, where he will "specialize in environmental and energy law." He adds, "Let's invite comments about synthetic fuels, solar energy, natural gas, coal and gasoline — as well as the price of home-heating oil." He also showed a lot of guts in admitting he held a ranking position in the Department of Energy when your class scribe covers the recreation/travel/leisure industry, which views DOE with less than approval. To put it mildly. (Not so fond of EPA, either.)

On the medical side, Mal Weiss reports that he's practicing in Reno and was just named president-elect of the Nevada Academy of Family Physicians (and not, I gather, Gamblers Anonymous). His letter reached me just after I returned from a convention in Vegas, where I studied the mathematical probabilities with some frequency. Mal was also the only one to respond to my request for intelligence about my forthcoming book about the leisure industry. (I'll be in touch soon.)

Falling into the academic/medical crack is Larry Gartner, who's been named chairman of the department of pediatrics at the University of Chicago. Alas, I learned about that two days after I turned in final galleys on my new book, Kids on Skis, which will be out in September or whenever Scribner's gets around to it, and you gotta admit that's one subtle plug.

Finally, Dave Williams reports he, too, has a new job: chairman of the music department at Memphis State University.

Incidentally, if you haven't read Home Free by Dan Wakefield, do so. A very subtle and disquieting book with a kicker ending and a good ear for the sounds of our times. I think he's opened ground and become the best writer in the class — and the last time I counted, that included a fair number of us.

55 Gerald Sherwin
181 East 73rd Street
N.Y., N.Y. 10021

For all those who attended the 25th anniversary reunion of our class at the Ryetown Hilton, May 30-June 1, it was a time enjoyed by all — a very fast, in fact, too fast two days.

For those who were unable to be there, to see how unchanging all our classmates were, there are plans for other "get-togethers" of the class in the near future.

It was the largest turnout ever for a Columbia College 25th Reunion. Our reunion chairman Bob Brown and the reunion committee working with the Alumni Office helped make this an unforgettable event.

Classmates came from all over the country — Stu Perlman from Chicago, Tom Evans and Judd Posner from Ohio, Wally Previ and Lew Mendelson, Washington, D.C., Sanford Autor, Walter Flanagan, Ralph Wagner, Don Pugatch, Bob Banz, from the New England area, Beryl Nussbaum from Rochester, Harold Kundel, Abbe Leban, Dave Stevens, Pennsylvania, Joe Vales and John LaRosa, Florida, Larry Hoffman from St. Louis and Stan Lubman from California, to mention a few travelers.

An old freshman yearbook was brought out at the gala Saturday evening dance festivities. Except for a few gray hairs we all seemed to look the same, and have also gotten a little wiser in the past 25 years.

Barry F. Sullivan '55 was recently named chairman and chief executive officer of the First Chicago Corporation and its subsidiary, The First National Bank of Chicago, the nation's ninth largest bank. Mr. Sullivan was for 23 years an officer of the Chase Manhattan Bank N.A. In 1957, Mr. Sullivan graduated first in his class from the University of Chicago's School of Business, where he majored in accounting and finance. A native of the Bronx, he still resides in Bronxville, N.Y., with his wife, Audrey, and their five children. Mr. Sullivan's second son, Gerry, is a junior in the College.

Herb Gardner, Bob Tuthill, Bob Kushner, and Ezra Levin, Herb Cohen, Bill Epstein, as easily recognizable as the day when we lost to the sophomores on South Field during the Soph-Frosh rush.

There was much reminiscing — Tom Chrystie, Donn Coffee, Al Martz — the Freshman beanies, Professor Stanfield's CC class, the West End Cafe, fraternities, V&T pizzeria, the greased pole, AF, ROTC, NROTC, Eisenhower . . .

Al Lerner and Jim Berick both couldn't make it at the last minute.

Where were Dick Ravitch, Joe Wishy, Al Ginepra, George Segal, Sid Sheinberg? Norm Goldstein sent his regrets from Honolulu at not being able to attend.

A special mailing will be sent out from the Alumni Office detailing everything that happened at the reunion (including pictures, naming names, etc.).

Other news: an item which was inadvertently overlooked in the previous class notes pertained to the Hazen Clinical Research award of $100,000, won recently by Dr. Jesse Roth, chief of the Diabetes Branch of the National Institutes of Health. Jesse is with HEW in Bethesda, Md.

This quarter's author is Henry Cohen, professor of history at Loyola University of Chicago, who has written two interesting books: Criminal Justice History and Brutal Justice: The Ordeal of an American City (a study of police misconduct in a typical city).

Plans for the next class happening are underway. Details (date, time, event) will be sent to everyone shortly.

56 Victor Levin
Hollenberg Levin
Marlow & Solomon
170 Old Country Road
Mineola, N.Y. 11501

Kenneth H. Keller, a chemical engineering professor, was named vice-president for academic affairs at the University of Minnesota.

On the medical front, Robert Markowitz continues to serve as senior VP for administration at the Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center in Queens. Edward Gordon is practicing psychiatry in North Salem, N.Y., and has been elected president of the Psychiatric Society of Westchester County.

Little, Brown & Co. has recently published A Divorce Dictionary written by Stuart M. Glass, who intends the book "as a map to help children and parents understand the laws that influence them now and that will affect how they will live in the future." Stuart is practicing law in Port Chester, N.Y.

Our man in the Pentagon is Jonathan Myer, who serves in the office of the assistant secretary of defense dealing with communications, command, control and intelligence.

Peter Mayer serves as chief executive with Penguin Books Ltd., 536 Kings Road, London, S.W. 10, England.

A profile on Gershon Vincow: our valedictorian, whose field of major interest was physics, has completed his first full year as Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences at Syracuse University. Though not a politician while in school, Gershon, who was Syracuse's acting Dean, commanded an 80% vote of the faculty to make him the permanent Dean.

A reminder: our 25th Anniversary year is already under way. Let's make it a memorable one.

Toot Your Own Horn

The Barnard-Columbia Philharmonia invites all Columbia alumni, students, faculty, parents and employees who play orchestral instruments to audition for the upcoming season.

Rehearsals will be held on Sunday evenings and auditions will take place throughout the fall semester.

For information, call (212) 666-7013, or obtain audition forms at 206 Ferris Booth Hall.

Franklin A. Thomas '56, president of the Ford Foundation, made a nostalgic return to Franklin K. Lane High School on the Brooklyn-Queens border in May to dedicate the school's new Franklin A. Thomas Guidance Center. A former Columbia trustee, Mr. Thomas graduated from Lane 28 years ago, and was praised for having helped lift his alma mater out of a disruptive period it underwent in the 60's and 70's. A Times report noted that Mr. Thomas, surrounded by students, took a tour of the building and pointed out a stairwell that had once been known as "the kissing stairs." "It still is," chorused the students.

57 Jerome Farber
414 Tearose Lane
Cherry Hill, N.J. 08003

I certainly was given honest information when I was told that obtaining news from members of our class is close to investigative reporting. Time being what it is, hard to find, I'll restrict my investigation to something subtle like:

Bob Boikiss, Marty Fisher, Joe Karp, Lou Leventhal, Ed Weinstein, Art Bobis, Milt Seewald, Dave Maze, Hy Sternlicht, Jerry Kern, Bob Cooperman, Kenny Bodenstein, Stan Barnett — where are you? What's been happening for these 23 years? We're anxious to hear from you!

I did hear from these classmates:

George M. Bellak tells us he's alive and well and still living in New York City. However, if anyone knows of an apartment, a loft or a brownstone that's available — please get in touch.

Congratulations to Robert Alter and David M. Bloom, two of our class authors: Robert Alter is living in Berkeley, Cal. His latest book, A Lion for Love: A Critical Biography of Stendhal, was published by Basic Books in the fall of '79. David M. Bloom resides in Levittown, N.Y. where he and his wife Mona are actively involved in the Israel Community Center. Mona is director of the pre-school program (100 children; nursery school), and David is both choir director and treasurer at the I.C.C. His book, Linear Algebra and Geometry, was published by Cambridge U. Press in June of 1979.

Ralph Brunori was recently promoted to manager, manufacturing project engineering, with Werton Components. Son Ralph A. is a junior at the College and a member of the varsity football team; son Bruce is a freshman member of the U. of Rochester's gridiron squad; daughter Altea is a high school freshman. The family resides in the Scranton area.

Paul S. Frommer retired from the U.S. Navy and is in the life insurance business in Washington, D.C.: he's vice president of Frank Ridge & Associates, Inc. Paul, Liz and family live in Alexandria, Va.

Alan Frommer, (Paul's brother), lives in Wellesley, Mass. He has two children (16 and 11) and is the comptroller for the Grossman's Division of the Evans Products Corp.

News from the medical front:

William F. Friedman, M.D. has been appointed professor and chairman of the pediatrics department at UCLA medical school.

George W. Lutz, M.D. has been appointed corporate medical director of Johnson & Johnson's Ethicon Inc., in Somerville, N.J., as well as medical director of the Somerset County Alcoholism Detoxification Unit.

David Muskat, M.D. was recently appointed medical director of Community Mental Health Services, a comprehensive mental health center serving a three-county area in eastern Ohio.

Stanley Raubas updated his news for us: Stan was elected assistant VP of Merrill Lynch, Garden City, N.Y. offices.

Please get in touch with me either by mail or just give me a call. My telephone number is (609) 429-8290. I look forward to hearing from you!

58 Barry Dickman
Esanu Katsky & Korins
500 Fifth Avenue
N.Y., N.Y. 10036

This spring, Roald Hoffman became the first (to our knowledge) '58 recipient of an honorary degree. Roald, a physical science professor at Cornell, was awarded a Doctor of Science degree for his theory of orbital symmetry that explains and predicts chemical reactions.

Congratulations also to Harold Grossman on becoming a vice-president, Loose-Leaf Services Division, of Prentice Hall, Inc.

Morton Schatzman, a psychiatrist who practices in London, has published his second book, The Story of Ruth, based on a patient's case history.

Stan Meyers is now a faculty member at the Advanced Institute for Analytic Psychotherapy, as well as staff educator and supervisor of group psychotherapy at St. Vincent's Hospital, both in N.Y.C.

Bernard Talbot, M.D., special assistant to the director of the National Institutes of Health, has voiced his approval of the U.S. Supreme Court decision that new life forms may be patented, to the extent that it may make scientists whose research is guarded by a patent application more willing to discuss their achievements with their colleagues.

Roger Sacks is a dentist at Rikers Island Prison, while his twin brother, Elliott, is also a dentist, practicing in Beer Sheva, Israel.

Norbert Hirschhorn, M.D., is now a consultant and researcher with the John Snow Public Health Group in Boston.

Dave Brown was recently promoted to assistant director of the Haverford School's Instructional Media Resource Center.

After completing a year of study at the U.S. Army War College in Carlisle, Pa., Lt. Col. Don Festa has been assigned to U.S. Marine Corps headquarters.

Another career military officer, Capt. Bob Rosen, is head of the Navy's Liaison Office to the House and Senate Appropriations Committees, and spends most of his time "on the Hill." Last year Bob received the American Society of Military Comptrollers' award for outstanding performance in budgeting.

George Stern, VP-Operations of Detroit, Toledo & Ironton RR, reports that his job "is like having my own set of electric trains — only bigger."

Sid Surrey is president of Darwood Management, Inc., which manages co-operative apartment buildings in New York City.

Albert Soletsky is a professor of Foreign Languages and Literatures at Fairleigh Dickinson U., and chaired the department until last May. Alfred Eichner has become professor of economics at Livingston College, Rutgers University.

Joe Dorinson reports that he lost his job as Assistant Dean at LIU for refusing to cross a faculty picket line, but has received a Danforth Associate Fellowship and a summer grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities "to study, if not to perpetuate," as he puts it, "The Radical Tradition in America."

59 Edward C. Mendrzycki
Simpson Thacher
& Bartlett
1 Battery Park Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10004

Congratulations to Allen Rosen-shine on his promotion to president of BBD&O.

Dr. Michael Tannenbaum has left Rockefeller University and is now at Brookhaven National Lab where he is head of planning & analysis for Project ISABELLE. Mike, his wife Barbara and daughter Nina, age 3, are living in Port Jefferson, N.Y.

Dr. Irwin Jacobs is assistant professor of pediatrics and neurology at Case Western Reserve in Cleveland. Irwin, his wife Mary Ann and their children — Peter, Aaron and Matthew — reside in Chagrin Falls, Ohio.

Robert Keating has been elected executive VP of Creamer Dickson Basford/New York, one of the largest public relations agencies in the U.S.

60 Stephen C. Lerner
752 Stelton Street
Teaneck, N.J. 07666

Our class was well represented at our twentieth reunion weekend at the Rye Town Hilton. We all had a chance to see old friends after a long spell and to meet classmates, some of whom we never knew at school, and we gathered enough news for a few columns to come.

Vincent Russo and his lovely wife, Sheila Kay, were our class's early arrivals, in time to enjoy the pre-reunion cocktail party. Talking to Vinny, I found that he was a fellow Bronxite who now lives in historic Newburyport on Massachusetts' North Shore, where he practices surgery. He and his wife have four children (and one golden retriever).

Among the physicians in residence over the weekend were: Marvin Gilbert, an orthopedic surgeon from Scarsdale; Sid Hart, a psychiatrist in Connecticut and lecturer at Yale Medical School; Peter Bogdan, an internist in Yorktown Heights, N.Y. — each escorted by his wife.

David Goldman was there as

Columbia College Regional Program

Columbia College now has active organizations in 33 regions. To get involved in your area, contact:

ARIZONA

Phoenix:

Mr. Frank Lewis '51
Suite 1400
111 West Monroe
Phoenix, Ariz. 85003
(602) 254-6071

Tucson:

Mr. Booth Hubbell '27
6200 N. Via Rancho
Tucson, Ariz. 85704
(602) 297-2466

CALIFORNIA

San Diego:

Mr. Peter Fraser '64
Suite 1800
600 "B" Street
San Diego, Calif. 92101
(714) 238-1010

San Francisco:

Mr. John Straub '64
4307 Irving Street
San Francisco, Calif. 94122
(415) 665-2423

Los Angeles:

Mr. Louis Rothman '57
219 S Westgate Avenue
Los Angeles, Calif. 90049
(213) 472-7180

COLORADO

Denver:

Mr. Bernard Goldman '46
Route 3, Box 99 AD
Evergreen, Colo. 80439
(303) 674-7816

CONNECTICUT

Fairfield County:

Mr. Harry Coleman '46
Coleman Associates
P.O. Box 1283
New Canaan, Conn. 06840
(203) 966-7517

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Mr. Edward Leavy '64
1640 Rhode Island Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20036
(202) 857-6660

FLORIDA

Miami:

Dr. Peter Millheiser '57
9000 Coral Reef Drive
Miami, Fla. 33157
(305) 251-2240

Palm Beach:

Mr. Richard Clew '53
Continental Interiors
222 U.S. 1
Tequesta, Fla. 33458
(305) 746-4565

Tampa:

Dr. Bruce Jackson '65
12506 Clendenning Drive
Tampa, Fla. 33624
(813) 885-1078

GEORGIA

Atlanta:

Mr. Maurice Bernard '74
3022 Slaton Drive
Atlanta, Ga. 30305
(404) 237-7873

ILLINOIS

Chicago:

Mr. Marshall B. Front '58
Stein, Roe & Farnham
150 S. Wacker Drive
Chicago, Ill. 60606
(312) 368-7612

INDIANA

Indianapolis:

Mr. Richard J. Kandrak '68
3113 N. Meridan, Apt. F
Indianapolis, Ind. 46208
(317) 283-7705

LOUISIANA

New Orleans:

Mr. Mark Tessier '74
Howard, Weil, Labouisse,
Friedrichs, Inc.
211 Corondelet Street
New Orleans, La. 70130
(504) 588-2780

MASSACHUSETTS

Boston:

Dr. George Smithy '42
5 Aston Road
Chestnut Hill, Mass. 02167
(617) 734-2174

MICHIGAN

Detroit:

Mr. Norman Bernstein '64L
Office of General Counsel
Ford Motor Company
The American Road
Dearborn, Mich. 48121
(313) 322-4892

MINNESOTA

Mr. Elliot J. Brebner '53
16315 Ninth Avenue
Plymouth, Minn. 55447
(612) 473-1772

MISSOURI

Kansas City:

Mr. Malcolm Barnett '63
6829 Locust
Kansas City, Mo. 64131
(816) 444-6123

St. Louis:

Mr. Mark Drucker '69
1075 Wilson
University City, Mo. 63130
(314) 725-1982

NEW JERSEY

North Central:

Mr. Paul A. Gomperz '58
Planned Equity Corporation
100 Evergreen Place
East Orange, N.J. 07018
(201) 676-5060

NEW YORK

Albany:

Rev. Richard Hunter '43
177 Main Street
Ravena, N.Y. 12143
(518) 751-2772

Buffalo:

Mr. Philip Wilson '53
150 Paradise Road
E. Amherst, N.Y. 14051
(716) 689-7917

Rochester:

Dr. Ron Kwasman '53
776 North Landing Road
Rochester, N.Y. 14625
(716) 385-1238

OHIO

Cincinnati:

Mr. Edmond DeGregorio '74
1005 Atlas Bank Building
524 Walnut Street
Cincinnati, Ohio 45202
(513) 621-8280

Cleveland:

Mr. William R. Joseph '68
Arter & Hadden
Union Commerce Building
Cleveland, Ohio 44115
(216) 696-1144

OREGON

Portland:

Mr. David Sweeney '71
3807 S.W. Jerald Court
Portland, Ore. 97221
(503) 223-8816

PENNSYLVANIA

Philadelphia:

Mr. Albert Momjian '55
1026 Carriage Lane
Huntingdon Valley, Pa. 19006
(215) 561-1030

Pittsburgh:

Mr. Bruce Nagle '70
c/o Allegheny Ludlum Steel
Two Oliver Plaza
Pittsburgh, Pa. 15222
(412) 562-5024

TEXAS

Dallas:

Dr. Milt Erman '71
6117 Meadow Road
Dallas, Texas 75230
(214) 691-6098

Houston:

Dr. James Keegan '45
882 Old Lake
Houston, Tex. 77050
(713) 757-1000, Ext. 1788

WASHINGTON

Seattle:

Dr. Stephen G. Rice '67
1113 1/2 Lake Washington Blvd.
Seattle, Wash. 98122
(206) 324-5116

WISCONSIN

Milwaukee:

Mr. Stephen Basson '59
2615 North Summit Avenue
Milwaukee, Wisc. 53211
(414) 964-8714

well. He is a clinical professor of psychiatry at NYU and a collaborating psychoanalyst at Columbia with professional interests in medical and residency teaching, nicotine addiction, and the psychoanalysis of human aggression. His outside interests involve politics, swimming, French and tennis (the last seemingly the major avocation of the Class of 1960, if one judges by the zeal with which our class rushed to reserve courts). David's wife Amy, who was back in the City, is associate professor of radiology at Cornell and a nationally recognized authority in bone radiology.

Bill Host, one of the pillars of alumni doings, and vice-chairman of the Board of Visitors of the College, was there with his wife Joan. Bill practices general surgery in Tunkhannock, Pa. Roberta, the oldest of his four children, will be at Barnard this fall.

Dr. Fred Gordon and his wife Natalie came from Short Hills, N.J., where they live with their two children and from which Fred commutes to his orthopedic practice in Livingston.

Obstetrician and gynecological oncologist Myron Lutz came up from Charleston, S.C., with his wife Judy. They have three children.

Finally, it was good to see Joseph Schwartz again, a friend from as far back as P.S. 70 days in the Bronx. Joe is a psychiatrist and serves on the Harvard Medical School faculty. He lives in Waban, Mass., and attended the reunion with wife Joanna and children Jimmy, Julie and Jennifer who had a chance to meet my wife, Ann, and our children

David and Rahel.

Class lawyers attending the reunion included our Kellett Fellow, Barry Augenbraun and wife Janet, who live in Philadelphia with their two children. Barry is general counsel for Laventhol and Horwath; Elliot Olstein is a partner in a Newark law firm and lives with wife Joan in Kinnelon, N.J. with their two children. Dan Shapiro was along for a while with wife Ellen. They live in Manhattan with their three children. Dan is a partner in Schulte and McGoldrick and a vice-president of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of N.Y. Harris Markhoff lives in Pound Ridge, N.Y. and practices law in White Plains. He and wife Cookie just celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary and have three children. Peter Schweitzer is with the N.Y. State Attorney General's office. He and his wife Susan have four children and live in Scarsdale. Bill Goodstein is in private law practice in N.Y.C.: he and Barbara, who teaches chemistry at Barnard, have two children and live along the Hudson in Upper Manhattan.

That does it from the doctors and lawyers; next time, we'll pick up with the businessmen!

Allen G. Rosenshine '59 was named president this year of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn (BBDO), the New York-based advertising agency. Having first joined the agency as a copywriter in 1965, Mr. Rosenshine was appointed creative director ten years later, and executive vice president in 1977. He is also a director of the parent company, BBDO International.

61 Brien J. Milesi
70 Sherwood Road
Ridgewood, N.J. 07450

James J. Ammeen has been elected an executive vice president of Burlington Industries, Inc., the nation's largest and most diversified manufacturer of textiles and related products for the home and industry. Jim formerly served as corporate group vice president, and as president of Burlington Menswear Division. He is an active fund raiser for Columbia College, and a trustee of the Philadelphia College of Textiles.

Dr. Arnold L. Klipstein is a chief surgeon at Manchester Memorial Hospital, Manchester, Conn.

Dr. Martin Merowitz is an associate professor at Tufts University and practices psychiatry privately; he lives in Wellesley, Mass.

Thomas Lippman, after four years in Cairo as a correspondent for the Washington Post, is returning to the nation's capital in July.

Dr. Allen Laub is practicing pediatrics in New York's Rockland County.

Plan now for our 20th!

62 Michael A. Stone
8 Seymour Place West
Armonk, N.Y. 10504

George Peppas is head of the social studies department at the American Community Schools in Athens, Greece.

Walter Hilse, who was our class valedictorian, is a professional organist and composer. Walter served on the Columbia faculty for eight years. In addition to performing and writing, he regularly publishes music reviews and has written a number of articles, with special focus on composer Paul Hindemith.

Sylvain Fribourg lives in the San Fernando Valley area of Los Angeles where he is in the private practice of obstetrics and gynecology.

Ron Meyer is a pediatrician in Lakewood, Colo. He is also assistant clinical professor of pediatrics at the University of Colorado Medical School.

Daniel Schweitzer is in the private practice of general and vascular surgery in the Bronx. Dan lives in Scarsdale where his wife has just opened a retail store, Parrot Jungle of Westchester, selling exotic birds.

Armand Favazza writes that he has been promoted to Professor of Psychiatry and Chief of the Section of General Psychiatry at the University of Missouri Medical School.

Bill Campbell has left football for a different game — advertising. Bill joined J. Walter Thompson Co. as an account executive on Kodak.

Unfortunately, I have to end this column with some very sad news. Hillel Hyman, who was a rabbi in Rockville Centre, L.I., died of cancer on February 23. Hillel had been an instructor in rabbinics at the Jewish Theological Seminary in Manhattan. Howard Bechefskey, a municipal court judge for the El Cajon Judicial District in San Diego County, died on May 12. The class extends deepest sympathy to the Hyman and Bechefskey families.

63 Robert Heller
Kramer, Levin, Nessen,
Kamin & Soll
919 Third Avenue
N.Y., N.Y. 10022

Notes from the locker room: maybe we derived something of value from the College's physical education requirement after all. That is at least one plausible explanation for my running — almost literally — into Bob Prener during the recent Manhasset Tri-Centennial five mile run. Bob, wife Susan and their children live in the adjacent town of Plandome, N.Y., as I do. The Prenners, both lawyers, are entrepreneurs as well. They are the proprietors of Ben Silver Creations, a jewelry shop in Manhasset.

Yes, both Bob and I finished — in times that were respectable given our fading youth. Bill Rodgers is still safe, however.

Jerry Kessler writes from that other physical education center, Los Angeles, to report that he married Andrea Comsky of L.A. on December 30, 1979. Both are members of the Los Angeles Cello Quartet as well as Jerry's octet, I. Cellisti, and the Hollywood Chamber Orchestra. They live in the Hollywood foothills, "just a golf shot away from Universal Studios." Jerry was recently appointed music director of the American Federation of Musicians' Congress of Strings held in Seattle during the summer. His other activities include studio recording sessions, practicing law in L.A., and acquisition and management of apartment properties in Arizona.

Also reporting in from the west is John Brewer, who describes a significant career change. After ten and a half years as an insurance salesman with the State Mutual Life Assurance Company of America in Denver, John became the Lay Minister for the First Divine Science Church of Denver in September, 1979, and expects to be ordained later this year after completing his studies.

Three medical notes to report: Gary Toback, associate professor of medicine at the U. of Chicago, is spending this year as scholar in cancer research of the American Cancer Society at San Diego's Salk Institute. He has also received an Established Investigatorship Award from the American Heart Association for the years 1980-85.

The U. of Rochester reports that Dr. J. Richard Ciccone was recently certified a diplomate of the American Board of Forensic Psychiatry, making him one of only 70 board-certified forensic psychiatrists. He is also a member of the U. of Rochester faculty, clinical director of the Monroe County Mental Health Clinic for Socio-legal Services, and chairman of the Education Committee of the American Academy of Psychiatry and the Law.

George S. Novalis is a vitreo-retinal surgeon in private practice in Tucson, and teaches at the U. of Arizona Medical Center.

Gerald Berkowitz, associate professor of English at Northern Illinois University, is the author of a new book entitled David Garrick: A Reference Guide. He has edited a soon-to-be-published facsimile edition of Garrick's plays, and reports that his latest work in process is a book on American theatre since 1950.

Moving from American theatre to a more ancient home of the arts, Sam Fromowitz writes that he is in Athens, Greece, as the commercial counselor of the U.S. Embassy. Not a bad place to be assigned: birthplace of theatre and the marathon, obviously a suitable site for whole men.

64 Gary Schonwald
919 Third Ave., 11th Fl.
N.Y., N.Y. 10022

Philip Aronson and his wife Jean gave birth to an 8 lb., 5½ oz. girl on May 2, 1980. They have another, two-year-old, daughter.

Bruce W. Lefkon, M.D. opened a new office in Livingston, N.J. for the practice of urology, on April 1, 1980.

Alan J. Preis, CPA, a resident
(continued on page 42)

Sitting Pretty...

A finely-crafted captain's chair with the Columbia insignia, now available by mail order.

Choose all black, or black with cherry arms. Only $125, less 10% discount with this ad. Shipping charges extra, based on zone.

Each chair is custom made, so please allow 8-10 weeks for delivery. Order now for the holiday season.

The Columbia University Bookstore
2960 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10027

I enclose $_____ for _____ Columbia chair(s) at $112.50 each. ($125 less 10%)

_____ All black _____ Black with cherry arms

I expect to be notified by phone of exact shipping charges, due on delivery.

I prefer to use my VISA card: a/c # _____ Expiration date _____

Signature: _____

Name: _____

(Please type or print)

Address: _____

City, state, zip: _____

Phone: _____

(Home)

(Business)

Make check or money order payable to Columbia University Bookstore. N.Y.C. Residents, please add 8% sales tax.

Please write for information on other Columbia items, attention: Rose Costales.

This offer expires on January 31, 1981.

of Jersey City, has been elected secretary of the N.J. Society of CPA's, with a membership over 6,000. Mr. Preis is a manager for Touche Ross & Co., in Newark.

Arthur Goldberg is the president and owner of Dateline, the world's largest singles introduction service. Dateline was founded by Mr. Goldberg in 1972 and has already had 300 resulting marriages and thousands of introductions.

David L. Levin is an assistant VP at Mackay Shields Financial, pension managers, and is involved in application of quantitative methods of portfolio management.

Jorge Batista, former First Ass't. State Attorney General for ten years, is joining the N.Y. law firm of Golenbock and Barell, of counsel. Mr. Batista is also president of Misericordia Hospital & Medical Center in the Bronx.

James Osborn is capital projects development officer (loan officer) in the Asia Bureau of the U.S. Agency for International Development, Washington, and travels extensively in the likes of Delhi, Katmandu, Colombo and Singapore.

65 Robert J. Reza
120 So. Gillette Avenue
Bayport, N.Y. 11705

Richard J. Haber received the Kaiser Award for Excellence in Teaching at the University of California San Francisco School of Medicine's graduation on May 24. Richard is an assistant professor of medicine and director of educational programs, and assistant chief of medical services at the San Francisco General Hospital. Richard was also voted one of the top ten faculty members by this year's senior medical students.

Peter Wallenstein writes that he is teaching American history in Japan and Korea with the U. of Maryland's Far East Division. I presume he is traveling in the East and Southast Asia also. Good luck!

Leonard Zwerling let us know that he is enjoying life in Coral Gables, Fla., where he is in private cardiovascular practice and is a clinical assistant professor of medicine at the University of Miami School of Medicine.

Harvey Zarren is also working as a cardiologist and racing sailboats in Swampscott, Mass.

Finally, Jay Kuris is a psychiatrist in the Princeton/Flemington, N.J. area.

We are enjoying this new format. We hope to get more information from all of you.

66 Bruce LaCarrubba
LaCarrubba, Mattia
& Meltzer
42 Trinity Street
Newton, N.J. 07860

Tony Fragola writes: "I will again be teaching at the U. of North Carolina at Greensboro where I have a joint appointment in the departments of Communications/Theatre and Romance Languages.

Gary Foulks is assistant professor at Duke Medical School, specializing in corneal transplants and engaging in research, teaching and practice. He and his wife "Sims" have three children, Guy, 8, Beverly, 4, and Heather, 2. They can be reached at (919) 493-2151.

Mike Gengler is a partner in the Boston law firm of Rich, May, Bilodeau and Flaherty. He lives in Boston because "It's the perfect place for cycling." He has taken cycling trips to France, Holland, Austria, Quebec and Kentucky and once a year rides up (and down) Mount Washington.

Pete Kocmalski wants concerned classmates (if there are any) to know that he is alive and as well as can be expected in Jackson Township, N.J. He talks to computers for a living and his hobbies are sailboat racing and watching Wall Street Week on PBS. He thinks Louis Rukeyser is "the funniest guy on television."

Bill Roach reports: "On May 1, 1980, I left the position of vice president for legal affairs at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center where I had been for four years, and accepted a partnership in Gardner, Carton & Douglas, a leading corporate, securities and hospital law firm in Chicago. I will continue to concentrate in my specialty of hospital law, but look forward to working with many institutions rather than one large medical complex. My wife, Deborah (Barnard '66) now runs her own interior design firm and is happily designing commercial and residential spaces in Chicago."

Michael D. Stevens is chief executive officer of Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach, California, where he resides (714-640-7727) with his wife Diane (Columbia Dental School '66) their son Christopher, 7, and daughter Cara, 4.

Hard to believe, but our 15th Anniversary is already upon us. Watch the mails for upcoming celebrations.

67 Ken Haydock
32 Lakewood Gardens La.
Madison, Wisc. 53704

Jeff Rostler reports from Paris that (after Columbia Law School) he is now general counsel to Banque de la Société Financière Européenne, or as he puts it, "the bank with the unpronounceable name." A permanent expatriate, but still a U.S. citizen, Jeff remains a bachelor in deference to world overpopulation. Father of two (Scott and newly-arrived Joshua), Harvey Lieberman lives with wife Teri in Montvale, N.J.; his new "educational and training design" consulting firm, Innovative Learning, Inc., already boasts an impressive roster of corporate clients.

Ken Haydock, class correspondent, departs Citibank as an AVP to enter the University of Wisconsin Law School this August; classmates Tom Jones (Cahill, Gordon), Jenik Radon (Shearman & Sterling) and Marty Nussbaum (Shereff, Friedman) afforded advice. "Jones and Radon held that 'On, Wisconsin' is at least the equal of 'Roar, Lion, Roar' as a fight song; Nussbaum felt this wasn't the central issue, citing an aversion on my part to cheddar cheese as evidence I won't like Wisconsin living," I am reporting myself to have said. Word from any Cleverest Class members who went to Wisconsin Law is welcome.

And from Billings, Montana, we learn that Kent Hall, and talented brothers Earl and Robert, are completing the score to a Broadway play, "Mark My Words," a musical revue based on the writings of St. Mark, Mark Twain, and Mark Rudd.

68 Edward Rosen
38 West 31st St., #1106
N.Y., N.Y. 10001

Hope you all had a pleasant summer. Recent news is that:

Cliff Andrew has just completed neurology residency at Johns Hopkins; is now a post-doctoral fellow in the neuro-muscular lab. Intern, a board game devised by Cliff and his doctor-wife Louise and put out by Avalon Hill, is now in a second printing and doing very well. The Andrews have a son, Galen.

Art Schmidt is a third year law student at the University of Chicago Law School.

Chun-Min Ko is a member of an architectural firm in Tokyo.

69 Michael Oberman
Kramer, Levin, Nessen,
Kamin & Soll
919 Third Ave., 40th Fl.
N.Y., N.Y. 10022

Believe it or not, fifteen years have passed since that exciting day in September 1965 when we ascended the "University Upon a Hill" and claimed our already legendary '69 freshman beanies. Fifteen years — and probably half the class has yet to complete Thucydides' The Peloponnesian War.

Thucydides undoubtedly would have envied the large readership of classmate Arthur Durbano, Jr. Arthur, you see, is "Close-up" editor of TV GUIDE, and is responsible for selecting shows for half-page treatments and editing the resulting copy. He also writes "The Screening Room" and movie columns for the magazine's cable editions. Arthur reports that he is "planning a TV pilot about why so many '69 grads of the College became lawyers." Sounds like a winner to me; if Arthur actually pursues the project, I'm sure many of us would be willing to "screen test."

Perhaps, for example, Mel Yost would. Mel is a partner in the law firm of Yost, Barberousse & Yost in Santa Fe, N.M. and is engaged in natural resources law and general practice. He writes that he is "enjoying the Santa Fe area, the mountains and the climate."

Tom Hazen has become a "teaching lawyer" — an interesting character idea for Arthur's pilot. Presently a professor at the University of North Carolina Law School, Tom teaches torts, corporations and securities regulation. He has published a number of law review articles and appeared on several continuing legal education programs; he is now preparing a co-authored revision of Ballentine on Corporations. In sum (as they say), Tom is "thoroughly enjoying academia."

Jonathan Adelman advises that he is currently an assistant professor in the Graduate School of International Studies, University of Denver, working primarily in the field of comparative communism. He has two books that will soon appear.

Alumni class president Joe Materna and wife, Dolores, announce the birth of daughter, Jennifer, on May 23, 1980.

Al Gross writes that after five years as a Naval officer, a year in a graduate psychiatry program at UCSD, and three years with the City of San Diego as an organization development specialist, he has become director of management and organization development for Foodmaker, Inc., which owns the Jack In The Box restaurants and several other chains. In his spare time, Al runs in marathons, rides his bicycle and works on rebuilding his house. I bet that leaves little time to finish Thucydides.

As you can see, some classmates have begun to send me news items — may the trend continue!

70 Peter N. Stevens
12 West 96th St.,
Apt. 13D
N.Y., N.Y. 10025

One of the joys of being our class correspondent is that when something of note happens in my life I can be assured that I will be able to read about it in CCT. With that in mind I am pleased to announce the birth of my son, Michael James, who joined this world last winter. Both Mike and I are looking forward to seeing the Lions soccer and football teams in action this fall at Baker Field. Others who have written in of late to announce their most recent arrivals are Bob Kidd, now an attorney in Oakland, whose daughter Allison was born this past fall, and Franklin Miller, a senior planner at the VERA Institute of Justice, whose daughter Lisa Rebecca was born last year. Those with future Lions include Bill Poppe and Phil Rus-sotti, "old" roommates at Beta. Their sons Bill Jr., and Mathew and Tommy, respectively, may well end up rooming together also. It remains to be seen whether they will be able to duplicate the undergraduate exploits of their fathers.

Phil Zegarelli writes that he was recently elected mayor of the village of North Tarrytown, N.Y. When not politicking, Phil is a "territorial assistant at Manufacturers Hanover Trust's international dept. for Israel."

Kim Rosston is an independent literary agent in N.Y.C.

Ralph Bradburd writes from Williams College where he is an assistant professor of economics that he is the recipient of a $500,000 grant from HEW related to the study of medicare expenditures. Also from academia are Sam Estreicher, in his second year on the faculty of NYU Law School specializing in labor and administrative law, and Leonard Levine who is teaching political science at the University of Saskatchewan, and Denis Jonnes who is an assistant professor of English at Bir Zeit University in Israel.

Now for the doctors: Joel Frader is teaching at Philadelphia's Children's Hospital. R. N. Smith is an assistant professor of medicine at Case Western Reserve. Fred Kushner has begun a "consulting practice of cardiology outside New Orleans." Fred Rapoport is in the hematology and oncology unit of Massachusetts General Hospital. Leon Rosenkranz is an internist in private practice in Staten Island. Roland Johnson, recently elected a member of the American College of Physicians, is practicing internal medicine in Newton, N.J. And Lester Blair is an assistant professor of clinical medicine at Columbia P&S.

Norman Greene, a lawyer with Guggenheimer and Untermeyer in N.Y., attended our class reunion and reports that while attendance by our class was meager, the weekend was an enjoyable one.

On a serious note, Julian Meltzer is seriously ill and would appreciate hearing from old friends. His address is 1580 East 13th Street, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11230. Please write him.

And please write us and let us know what you are doing. If you do, you'll be able to read about yourself in the next edition of CCT.

71 Jim Shaw
3611 "T" Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C.
20007

Authors, authors, authors . . . Marvin Feuerwerker recently completed a 20-month stint at the White House, and is assuming a position as a consultant in the Office of the Secretary of Defense. His book Congress and Israel was recently published by Greenwood Press. He and Debra are expecting a child in the fall.

Myron Gutmann, assistant professor of history and research associate at the Population Research Center of the University of Texas at Austin, has a book, War and Rural Life in the Early Modern Low Countries, hot off the press at Princeton University Press and at Van Gorcum, a Dutch publishing house.

Lawrence A. Swisher is in his fourth year with the Twin Falls, Idaho, Times-News, now covering state and local education, health and welfare.

Joshua Rubenstein, New England coordinator for Amnesty International, USA, had his first book, Soviet Dissidents, published by Beacon Press in August. Josh writes that it is the first narrative history of the Soviet Human Rights Movement, and that he traveled to Europe, Israel, the Soviet Union and archives to research it.

Alex Sachare works for Associated Press as pro basketball editor and received his MA in Media Studies from the New School in January.

Charles Jeffrey Calman's book, Mormon Tabernacle Choir, was published by Harper and Row in October 1979.

Leo Calderella wrote last fall: "This year I was elected an Active Member (the highest order) of the Mystery Writers of America. If you read Alfred Hitchcock's Mystery Magazine you've seen or will see my stories 'Hangfire' (Sept. 1979); 'The Gun Collector' (Nov. 1979); and 'Leo Browne's Arrest' (Jan. 1980). I just sold two stories to a Japanese publisher for translation and publication over there. I'm currently working on my second novel (first was in 1977). I expect it to be published in 1980. Tentative title: As Good as Dead."

Ron Rice writes in several letters that he is "maintaining with karate and monster vegetable garden" (godzilla squash?) and that "I just came back from a month-long trip to Mexico City, Acapulco (for a conference where I ran a workshop and presented a paper), Dallas and Austin. . . I'm just beginning the final plunge into my dissertation analysis, hoping to finish up this fall. Then I am managing a conference in October, and finishing up a book to be published by Sage Publishers next year, on mass communications campaigns."

David J. Menke writes simply: "Is anyone writing fiction?" The answer, apparently, is "Leo Calderella."

As for the rest of you, and Leo, too, please respond to the questionnaire which the Alumni Affairs office recently sent you. Our tenth reunion class directory and newsletter will be published in the fall, and we'd like you to be in them.

72 Paul S. Appelbaum
2580 Beechwood Blvd.
Pittsburgh, Pa. 15217

Doug Weiner joined us for dinner one Friday evening recently. Doug was just back from 7 months in the USSR, researching his thesis on aspects of Soviet science for a Columbia Ph.D. He reports that Matt Mizenko is in Japan, the recipient of a three-year fellowship for further studies in that country.

Alan Lipschitz, Doug says, has completed his residency in psychiatry at NYU.

"If the Bushmen had the hydrogen bomb, do you think they'd use it?" asks Tom Love, who is finishing up a Ph.D. in human ecology at UC-Davis, after two years of anthropological research in the southern highlands of Peru. Not until they have a first-strike capability, Tom.

From Milwaukee, Charles Laughinghouse writes that he has been appointed Asst. to the Dean for Community Development and Minority Affairs at the School of Architecture and Urban Planning of U. Wisconsin. His job entails supervision of the school's public services and expansion of minority participation.

As for us, little did we ever think we'd be living this close to California. An appointment as an asst. prof. of psychiatry in the Division of Law and Psychiatry at Pitt fills my days and our new son Yonatan keeps the nights lively, too. How about you?

73 Barry Etra
209 East 59th St.,
Apt. 2R
N.Y., N.Y. 10022

I finally heard from some of you, and 'twas indeed a pleasure. Keep those cards and letters coming!

Lots of academics — Stuart Charne received his Ph.D. in June from the University of Chicago Divinity School. Mike Amdurer is still a grad student at Lamont-Doherty — he expects his Ph.D. next year. Even closer to home is Peter Rudnytsky, who has completed his work at Cambridge and is now an assistant professor of English and comparative lit at a well-known Morningside Heights college campus. Michael Friedman is finishing his second year as an assistant professor of statistics at Rutgers (he also does consulting). In his leisure (?) time he is working on a project to make statistics accessible to students with a poor math background via computer, as well as translating a children's version of Greek mythology from Czech into English.

George Sands did his pre-clinical years of med school in Belgium, then transferred to Albert Einstein and graduated in 1978. He is finishing his first year of residency at Harlem Hospital (internal medicine), and will begin a 3-year residency at Einstein (neurology) this month. He hopes (somewhat wistfully) that, "someone finds this interesting."

On the business side, Julius

Gonzalez has recently been appointed manager of finance at Earle Palmer Brown and Assoc., the most extensive marketing and communications operation in the Washington, D.C. area. Steve Greenberg has moved back to NYC (he lives in Brooklyn) from Vermont, and is a stockbroker with Muller & Co.

Let me reiterate — write. Thanks.

74 Fred Bremer
532 West 111th Street
N.Y., N.Y. 10025

The second part of the class newsletter has been delayed due to the demands of completing the second draft of my dissertation (and the subsequent trip to Oregon), the marriage of Tom Ferguson in July, and other such events. With some luck it will be out in the near future. In the meantime, here's a selection of recent letters from our classmates.

Robin Dahlberg has left Japan to take up residence in London where he will be controller of the European division of Sanshoe Trading Inc. However, Doug Jarrell remains in Nagoya, Japan working as an English teacher and writes that he welcomes coercive letters on how he should vote in the coming U.S. elections.

Two classmates sent in marathon times in an attempt to claim the class record. Zev Stern, who recently passed orals in biology, racked up a 3 hour and 22 minute time in the Yonkers marathon. However, the time to beat may be Daniel Gonzalez's 2 hour and 35 minute Boston marathon time which put him in 221st place this year. When not running, Dan is the circulation director for Time magazine's Latin American edition.

Bill Rigby writes from Boston that he has completed his first year of internship, but adds, "I miss the poker game on 9 Jay and rowing on the ethereal waters of the Harlem River. More importantly, where the hell is Dan Angius?" Dan was among the missing classmates in the last newsletter.

The class is making two new contributions to the cultural scene. From out in the land of cornfields, Glenn Goldman writes that he produced a television documentary dealing with urban design issues affecting small towns in Iowa. This was aired on both public and commercial television. Steve Kaplan, now at the Univ. of Connecticut law school, has completed an "autobiography" of a quadraplegic mute woman and wants to know if anyone has contacts with a publisher. Drop me a line if you can help Steve out.

The continuing saga of Nick De Lancie and the People's Temple yields more incredible events that could only happen in California. You may recall that Nick became the court-appointed receiver following the Kool-aid communion. Nick now is attempting to deal with the 700 claims from relatives who are seeking $1.8 billion in damages. The church appears to suffer from more than moral bankruptcy.

Two classmates have now begun a career in pediatrics. David Mandelbaum, who recently received a MD-Ph.D. from Columbia, will be at the Yale-New Haven Medical Center and Steve Blumenthal will be working out at Long Island Jewish Hospital. Will Willis might need them both. Will is the proud father of the class' first set of twins.

I'll end the column with a true story which shows the benefits which accrue to those who send in letters. About a year ago, Paul Mondor wrote asking the whereabouts of Margie Brewer, an ex-girlfriend from Morningside Heights. Many months later I happened to meet Margie at the 1812 concert in Central Park, and put them in contact with each other. The Mondors are now happily married in Rhode Island. All in a day's work for a class correspondent.

75 Gene Hurley
1380 Riverside Dr.,
Apt. 5C
N.Y., N.Y. 10033

76 Dave Merzel
1974 Traver Road,
Apt. 107
Ann Arbor, Mich. 48105

Vinnie Briccetti is graduating Fordham Law and will begin a two-year clerkship with Judge John M. Cannella for the District Court of N.Y. He's doing fine and says hello to all the gang.

George Fulop has just finished his M.D. at Albert Einstein and is going to be "interred" at Montefiore Hospital in the Bronx. "Is there life after medical school?" he asks. Speaking from experience, probably not — D.M.

Incidentally this is our 5th Anniversary year. Rumor has it that reunion plans are under way.

77 Jeffrey Gross
5120 9th Avenue
Brooklyn, N.Y. 11220

From Michael Bornstein, paratrooper in the Israeli Defense Forces, comes the message that he spends his time in "the only heights in the world more volatile than those of Morningside, waiting for an invitation to tea at the Arafats'. So far only snubs." With atavistic expressiveness appropriate for a poet/soldier, Michael adds that he would "kill to see Columbia and eat a Mama's hero."

Mark Gauthier works as a member of the editorial staff of Foreign Affairs magazine. Bruce Levine, a Columbia law student, was elected an alternate to the Democratic National Convention.

Martin Gross, attending NY Medical College, announces plans to specialize in pediatrics. Martin Kutscher, a student at P&S, wrote to say that he is wed to Hanky Fuchs, B'77.

William Dorsey, working towards his master's in social work in San Diego, sends word that there is a profusion of New Yorkers in his community.

Doug Rivers is finishing a Ph.D. in political science at Harvard where he was recently appointed assistant professor of government. Jeff Sovern is now clerking for the Honorable Frank Kaufman, United States District Court in Baltimore.

Please take advantage of CCT's new format by sending information for our class notes section.

78 Matthew Nemerson
116 Peck Hill Road
Woodbridge, Conn. 06525

Having survived the summer of '80 in less than cool fashion, it's time to vent a little steam: only four letters were received over the last three months. So, no newsletter until the winter. Come on guys, we have to fill these new glossy pages.

Chris Dell is at Balliol College Oxford and relates that "don't let anyone kid you about the relaxed English student lifestyle — it's hellish." He's finishing his thesis.

From Berkeley "whose hypocrisy goes beyond the oft-ridiculed save-the-whale types" Chris Paul writes that he's had enough with "high pressure law firms" and wants a nice calm legal job when he graduates in a year. Chris notes that Joe Zablotski has had some medical problems, but is okay now.

Former class officer Ron Karp has nothing against saving whales. In fact, he met his wife, Joline, at a concert raising money to do just that. Ron's getting the first joint law/veterinary degree from Harvard and BU. He recently published a paper on the legal rights of animals — what else could it be about?

Enjoying the climate in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, and studying for a chemistry degree at LSU is Russell Frazer. Eric Granderson is downstate in New Orleans working at the US Commerce Department.

Lawyers I have seen: Stephen Gruhin, Joel Rosen, Nick Serwer, Ric Michel and Allan Rothman, all working at firms in the City. Mike Glanzer is keeping the capitalists honest working at the FTC. All are returning to school this fall.

In media: Jeff Klein writing for the Westsider, Peter Low now an executive at WNYC, Tom Marian writing and producing for the Dow Jones news service, and David Margules is leaving a local trade magazine to go to law school.

79 Peter O'Reilly
344 West 72nd St.,
Apt. 6K
N.Y., N.Y. 10023

80 Craig Lesser
4C1 Hogan Hall
Columbia University
N.Y., N.Y. 10027

A few months have passed since our graduation and it looks like quite a few of us have another Columbia degree in our futures. Keith Krasney, Mario Biaggi, and Mark Ripp will be attending Columbia Law while Steve McGrath will be doing graduate work in English here. Scott Gillespie and I will be attending the Business School while Caleb Solomon will be at the School of Journalism. Some of our classmates will continue their studies at the Health Science Campus. George Yancopoulos, whose valedictory address was excerpted in the Times' sports section, will be attending the Dental School at 168th Street.

After spending the summer working in Paris, Josh Stolow will be attending med school in Pittsburgh. Aron Wahrman will be going to Yale medical school while Steve Stein will be at Cornell med in the city. Ralph Schapira is headed for Texas and Southwestern Medical School, while John Blackman will be at Rutgers Med and Scott Capustin at New York Medical College.

Rick MacArthur '78,
who helped save Harper's magazine:

From yak-yak obits to The Front Page

[Editor's note: CCT originally assigned this story to staff writer Alan Lessoff, who was stonewalled in his research by the Spectator mafia. When he called various friends of Rick MacArthur, they either broke into gales of laughter, or hung up. Mr. MacArthur, a journalist who prefers to stay out of the limelight, acquiesced to an interview with his former Spectator colleague, Richard Hart '78, who has since fled New York to work for The Capital Reporter, a political weekly in Jackson, Mississippi.]

It is not true, as Dan Janison (circa '78) has scurrilously suggested, that a T-shirt clad Rick MacArthur ran scowling into his parents' suburban Chicago bedroom and exclaimed after reading of the impending demise of Harper's magazine, "Dad, we've GOT to save Harper's."

Well not quite. "I was in the Field News Service Office (of the Chicago Sun-Times, where he is a reporter) and glanced at the day's budget," Rick recalled. "One of the stories was a Boston Globe special saying that Harper's was going to fold after 130 years."

"So I just stewed about it at my desk for about an hour, and I said, well, why not give it a try, see if the foundation could bail it out, keep it going. It would be a great statement for the foundation to make in favor of a high standard of excellence in writing that is rapidly disintegrating, disappearing."

"So I said to myself, said I, this is terrible... So I called my father up."

It is also not true that Rick MacArthur has any control over the $750 million John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, set up after the death of his eccentric, billionaire grandfather. (His granduncle was the late journalist and co-author of "The Front Page" Charles MacArthur, whom both Rick and his father have always idolized.)

"I'm just another general assignment reporter. Yak yak yak. Doing obits. You know, covering everything from the mayor to the heat wave to rapes and murders."

But it is true that Rick MacArthur almost singlehandedly saved Harper's magazine.

* * *

Hmm, better check this lead out with Rick. What if it sounds as if he really does have a mitt in all that loot? He's already started getting calls for money. Now all our scrounging, socio-economic-climbing classmates will be after him. Not to mention Columbia College itself. And all this nice guy stuff—what about his reputation? RUINED. Years of unwashed sneakers and overbleached T-shirts down the drain. Would I want to make all those small, sniveling freshmen he abused at Spectator think twice about the torment he gave them?

A quick call to the Sun-Times at Spec's expense. Bored man at his desk says Rick's out to lunch. Must proceed.

* * *

Rick and his father, J. Roderick MacArthur, who is a director of the foundation, began calling other directors to see if they were interested in having the MacArthur Foundation put up money to save the magazine. The Minneapolis Star and Tribune Company was looking for a buyer who could assume the magazine's $3 million subscription liability and assure more than short-term solvency. Initially, several board members wavered. It was an unorthodox project.

COLUMBIAN

The elusive Mr. MacArthur, in his '78 yearbook photo

To convince them, Rick put together a three-part strategy. First he wrote an analysis of the merits of the magazine, stressing that it was "the best literary magazine in America today... its folding would be another in a continuing succession of journalistic disasters... another television casualty."

The analysis included columns from both The Nation and the National Review lamenting Harper's demise, and quoted William Buckley's astute observation that a foundation ought to pick up the magazine.

The board then hired a financial consultant who came up with a surprisingly optimistic analysis which said the magazine could be self-sufficient in three years if given not-for-profit status.

Finally, in just one day, Rick and Harper's soon-to-be-born-again editor, Lewis Lapham, came up with testimonials supporting the magazine from People Page luminaries ranging from Henry Kissinger to Walker Percy.

The sales pitch worked. The purchase appeared ready to go forward without a hitch, until one of the directors got the idea that it would be nice to have a second foundation split the costs. A hitch.

One director wanted to bring in the Atlantic-Richfield Foundation and one of its other philanthropic endeavors, the Aspen Institute, a Great Humanist Institution which shuttles businessmen in and out of the Rockies for crash instruction in the classics.

"We said okay, fine, just as long as no conditions are set on control," Rick said. "At the final board meeting, we sat down for some of the most brutal politicking I've ever seen. You get these high powered people in one room and it's just a real heavy scene. Unbelievable. Fortunately, we had prepared and done our campaigning ahead of time. We knew what to expect, who was for it..."

"After a few last-minute calls, to Thornton Bradshaw, president of Arco, he said he wouldn't insist on Aspen and it was made very clear that we were going to set up a separate non-profit corporation whose only function was to run Harper's magazine. It would have an independent board of directors which would guarantee that there would be no editorial meddling from either Arco or MacArthur."

"The commitment is to make the magazine break even. It's still losing a pile of money. Everybody knows it. But we think we're going to turn it around," Rick said.

Now the serious stuff. All his friends want to know: what's Rick MacArthur going to have to do with the magazine?

"Nothing. My job is finished."

Aw, c'mon.

"There's nothing more for me to do."

Except write four cover stories a year?

"In fact, as far as I'm concerned I can't even write for the magazine. I wouldn't think of submitting anything to them. Conflict of interest and all."

* * *

Rick calls back. He does not object to the story. "Yeah, it might keep some of those crazies from calling me." He goes back to writing obits.

—Richard Hart '78 (sort of)

John Schutty will probably be attending Fordham Law School in the fall but now he's working downtown for Marine Midland Bank; George Anagnos is working for Comex and attending NYU Business school. Greg Breene will get his MBA at NYU, too.

After teaching a computer science course at Columbia summer school, Dave Israel is spending eight weeks in Europe. Mike Rogers (also now in Europe), Jay Ziffer, Dave Maloof and Jeff

Tamarin will all be attending law school come September, but as yet, they haven't let us know where. Dave Leahy, Teddy Edelman, and Thae Khwarg know where they will be in the fall—all three will be attending Harvard Law School; Dave Moser will be joining them in Cambridge if Yale doesn't lure him away to New Haven.

Finally, best wishes to Leo Wolansky and his Mrs.—they tied the knot in August.

The Lion's Den

An open forum for opinion, humor, and philosophy.

Columbia, Bow Ties, and other Lost Arts

by Henry Lowenstein '80

I suppose that everyone who ever went to Columbia at one time thought about what it must be like to be an alumnus. You know, during the last semester of your senior year you get to thinking about all the "old guys" who sat in the same chairs you sat in, scribbled on the same bathroom walls you scribbled on, and had water fights in the same halls where you sloshed your best friend with a bucket of water. Pretty soon you start to wonder "How am I different from them?" Well, for one thing, the halls they walked down were one Hell of a lot newer back then, and I'm told that there were tulips growing where frisbees now sail in the wind. But besides that, what makes a graduate of 1980 different from a graduate of 1950? Recently I had a chance to find out.

You see, I had this problem. I was going to a formal party and I needed to know how to tie a bow tie. "No problem," I thought to myself, "everyone knows how to tie a bow tie." Little did I know that not only do people no longer know how to tie bow ties, but the forgotten little object has even been taken out of most smaller dictionaries. Pinworms and wombats have definitions all over the place, but you couldn't find a bow tie in there to save your life. The first place I went was to my best friend.

"Can you help me tie this?" I asked.

"Are you kidding? Get one of the clip-on jobbies," he responded.

"I don't want a clip-on jobbie—I want the real thing, just like they used to do it."

"Look, I don't know how to tie one," he said, "and even if I did, do you think I would tell you after that bucket of water you hit me with?"

My other friends weren't much help either. "I'm sure you can find some Monarch Notes on it somewhere," said one of my pre-med friends. No such luck. Tying bow ties is a lost art. I asked everybody I knew. I even called my father, class of '51, long distance. "It's sort of like tying a shoe from the inside..." he bluffed.

The date of the party was coming up fast. I was getting desperate. I started harassing every old person I saw on the street, since to my knowledge no one had tied a bow tie for ages. They thought I was a bow tie pervert and pelted me with canes and brass knuckles (old people are getting edgy these days) before I even got my question out. In despair, I sat down to rest on the splintery little park bench on the median between Broadway at 115th Street. A man in a grey suit sat down next to me.

"Why the long face, kid?"

"I don't know how to tie a bow tie," I said, my face in my hands.

"Hmm... That is a problem. You wouldn't happen to be a College student would you?"

"Yeah, I am."

"I went to Columbia College myself—" he said, staring longingly at the sky, "thirty years ago."

"Do you know how to tie a bow tie?" I asked with hopeful eyes.

"Nope. But I used to."

"That's what my dad said."

"We all knew how to tie them then—that's what school was all about."

"Tying bow ties?" I asked.

"Well, not just tying bow ties. It was lots of things. It was learning about art, and philosophy, and it was about knowing how to do lots of things so that you could be a well-rounded person."

"You mean like a Renaissance Man..."

"Right, someone you'd want to talk to for more than a few minutes."

"Do you remember all the stuff you learned in Contemporary Civilization?" I asked.

"Naah, I forgot all that around the time I started using those clip-on jobbie bow ties."

"That's too bad."

"Yeah, but it's still in me somewhere. It was the kind of stuff that became a natural part of me and helped me to understand things better as I got older."

"Sort of like Hegel's dialectic..." I said, getting excited.

"Who?"

"Never mind," I said, getting the point, "but what does that have to do with bow ties?"

"Not much—just that back then we all took the time to figure out the little things about life—like bow ties. People weren't tagging us with standardized test scores and grade-point averages and passing us on our way. They looked at us a little more carefully and measured us by the kind of people we were. Knowing what was playing on Broadway and who the new writers were was all part of it. Stanley Kaplan couldn't teach us how to tie bow ties, and an 'A' in Contemporary Civilization didn't necessarily mean that you were going to do anything better than anyone else, until you got out and showed that you knew why you were studying in the first place."

"Wow..." I said, overwhelmed by the good old days.

"And you know what?" he asked.

"What?"

"Carman Hall was a tennis court."

"No fooling?"

"No fooling," he said, getting up, "And now it's getting late and I think I have to get going. Good luck, kid."

Shortly after that chat on the bench, I made a more concerted effort and found an old lady who taught me how to tie a perfect bow tie. I'm not telling who she was, but she said she'd been teaching Columbia students to tie bow ties for about fifty years. I also figured out the difference between me and the College alumni. Nothing. Only I'm not going to forget how to tie a bow tie.

Henry Lowenstein '80, a former Editor of Jester, is now studying at the University of Florida Law School.

Classified

TRAVEL

Caribbean Sea Efficiencies. Oceanfront, Private coconut beach, Swimming, Snorkeling, Surffishing, Relaxing, memorable vacationing. CARIBEPLAYA, Patillas, Puerto Rico 00723.

FOR SALE

Walking sticks, canes. Free color brochure. Marche, Dept. CCA, 1123 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10010.

Take the drudgery out of letter writing with our Incredible Rubber Stamps! Our Catalog has hundreds of fun stamps, from Armadillo to Zeppelin. Send $1.00 to: Rubber Stamps of America, Box 67-C, Saxtons River, Vt. 05154.

FURNITURE—40% Off. 150 Major Companies. FREE Brochure. SOBOL HOUSE, Box 218-C, Black Mountain, N.C. 28711. (704) 669-8031.

PRE-COLUMBIAN ART

Mayan Rubbings/Serigraphs! Catalog $2.00 (deductible with purchase). BERNARDO, 2400 Westheimer, #108W(CCT9), Houston, Texas 77098.

SERVICES

Individual/Group Fund Raising. New. Free Details. Fund Raising, Box 530, Richfield, Utah 84701.

Hans Utsch & Co. Public offerings, private placements, acquisitions and divestitures for the small, emerging company. Peter Lerner '69, (212) 344-5350.

Engle Investment Co. An SBIC providing loans and equity capital to small business concerns. Peter Lerner '69, (212) 344-5350.

Having a party? A reception? Need a bartender? Call: Columbia University Student Bartending Agency for professional, reliable service throughout the metropolitan area. (212) 280-2392.

Tennis Anyone? Indoor court time still available at the Columbia Tennis Center. For information, call (212) 942-7100.

WANTED

Oriental Women seek correspondence for cultural exchange, language practice, friendship. Asia Exchange. Honokaa, Haw. 96727.

'77 Alumnus, Sorbonne, M.A. Pennsylvania (communications/marketing) seeks advertising, marketing, public relations or media position. PR experience. Fluent French, German, Italian. Resumé upon request. David Andrusia, 2017 Locust, Phila. 19103 (215) 561-0817.

PUBLICATIONS

Support independent scholarship. $5 a year brings you The Columbia Journal of Ideas, a forum for undergraduate academic writing. Write: Columbia Journal of Ideas, 206 Ferris Booth Hall, New York, N.Y. 10027.

RECORDINGS

Original Cast recording: "Fly With Me," the 1980 revival of Rodgers & Hart's first complete musical and the 1920 Varsity Show. Now, for a limited time only, just $7.45. Center for Theater Studies, 605 Dodge Hall, Columbia University, New York, N.Y. 10027.

Renting, selling, hiring, looking to buy or swap? You can reach 38,000 prime customers with a CCT Classified. Only 75¢ per word. Ten-word minimum (count phone number as one word, city-state-zip as two words). 5% discount for four consecutive placements. 10% discount for Columbia College alumni, faculty, students or parents. Send copy and payment, or inquiries on display rates:

*Columbia College Today
100 Hamilton Hall
New York, N.Y. 10027
(212) 280-5538*

THIS WAY BACK TO COLLEGE.

ALUMNI!
YOU CAN STILL ORDER
THE COLLEGE RING
YOU LEFT BEHIND.

JOSTEN'S

CONTACT:

Columbia University Bookstore
2960 Broadway (between 115th-116th)
New York, N.Y. 10027

TENNIS with a TWIST

Bored with bridge?
Down on disco?
Sick of small talk and canapés?

Have your next party at the Columbia Tennis Center — four indoor courts, locker room facilities, comfortable clubhouse and party set-up assistance are all yours for less than it costs to take four friends to dinner and the theatre.

Rates are based on a minimum of twelve court hours: a typical party (from 7 to 10 pm on any Saturday night) would cost only $192. Mention this ad for a 10% discount.

So if you're pooped out on pâté and Perrier, why not try tennis with a twist?

The Columbia Tennis Center
Dan Rivkind, Director
575 West 218th Street (at Baker Field)
New York, N.Y. 10034
(212) 942-7100

Easy access from Manhattan, Westchester and New Jersey.

